TROOPS FIGHT FLOOD

SOURIS, Man. (CP) — Troops moved into this southwestern Manitoba town early today to join the fight against record flood levels on the Souris River.

Ten homes had been evacuated by early today in the low-lying northeast corner of the town. Another 50 were considered in danger in an area never before flooded.

Occupants of a trailer court were evacuated at Melita, upstream from Souris, where a control dam was washed out Thursday night.

Mrs. L. W. Knight, wife of the mayor of this town of 1,700, described the flooding as "by far the worst we've ever had."

The river rose about six feet Thursday afternoon but the rise slowed considerably overnight.

High water and ice Thursday knocked out the historic swinging bridge over a narrow section of the river at Souris. The bridge was a pedestrian crossing which had survived all previous spring floods since it was built in 1904.

School Taxes Up 16%: McGeer

Education tax rates could increase by an average of seven mills — from 40.98 to 47.6 — across the province this year, Education Minister Pat McGeer said today.

The rise of 16 per cent will occur if school districts do not trim their budgets back from the previously announced 19 per cent average increase.

The basic school tax levy, set by the provincial government, will be 32.5 mills, up six mills from 1975.

This levy is imposed to pay the local share of basic education costs and is the same in most school districts. The difference between the amount the basic levy raises and the actual cost of the basic education program, is paid by the provincial government.

But most school districts draw up budgets which go beyond the basic education program and thus actual mill levies go beyond the basic 32.5 set by the government.

While the basic mill rate levy has increased dramatically, McGeer said the provincial government's share of basic coasts is still $309 million or 47 per cent.

In addition, he said, the government pays 71 per cent or $42 million of college costs.

Quebec Teachers Defiant

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Quebec's 80,000 teachers, bluntly ordered by special legislation Thursday to cease work stoppages and harassment tactics, will likely risk grave penalties by defying the law and pursuing their contract battle with the government.

Most schools throughout the province were closed today as thousands of teachers gathered at union meetings to decide future strategy.

In an early development, the North Island Teachers Association, representing about 800 teachers in suburban Montreal, voted 95 per cent to defy the law.

The legislation, which goes into effect midnight Sunday night, bars the teachers from holding any disruptive activities for 80 days.

Unions face fines of up to $50,000 a day and members $250 a day for defying the law, which passed third and final reading Thursday night.

Nanaimo Vandals Go on Rampage

NANAIMO (CP) — More than $10,000 in damage was done Thursday night to the furnishings, equipment, glass and structure of the Nanaimo District Secondary School by vandals, RCMP said today.

Officials said in one wing of the school alone two large glass windows were shattered in the library, bookcases were pushed over, student lockers were opened and the contents strewn, musical instruments were smashed, and overhead projectors tossed to the floor.

In the audio-visual centre, television sets and other equipment were destroyed, a television in the shop wing had a hammer thrown through it, the school office was broken into and a cabinet file pushed over, vending machines were rifled open and plate glass dividers broken.

Joe Kilner, chairman of the Nanaimo School Board and head of the Mid-Island Public Employers' Association, said today that the school was closed but probably would be re-opened Monday if striking school workers allowed the board to hire outside workers to clean up the mess.

Both the Nanaimo School Board and the Canadian Union of Public Employees locals 606 and 401 have offered $100 rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone wilfully damaging city or school board property.

Local 606, representing employees of the school board, had been picketing the school as part of a strike action that began Monday.

CBers SPARK BLAZE

BURNABY (CP) — Two men were badly burned early today when a radio antenna they were erecting on an apartment house roof came into flashing contact with a 12,000-volt B.C. Hydro line.

The resulting fire burned the three-storey apartment building in this municipality neighboring Vancouver, sending five firemen to hospital with minor injuries.

Douglas Hawley and Gary Skett, both in their 20s and both residents of the apartment block were in fairly good condition in hospital with third-degree burns.

A fire department spokesman said that the two men were putting up a citizens' band radio antenna when it touched the 12,000-volt line.

"It caused a short circuit that turned all the electrical wiring in the building red hot," said Burnaby assistant fire chief Basil Pontifex.

"At first, we thought it was the work of an arsonists."

Pontifex said that 40 firemen using five pumper trucks fought the fire for almost seven hours.

ECUADOR QUAKE KILLS 10

Times News Services

QUITO — A strong earthquake hit western Ecuador early today, killing at least 10 persons and injuring dozens in the Pacific oil port of Esmeraldas.

A number of buildings collapsed when the quake struck with a force of from 6 to 7 on the open-ended Richter scale at about 2:15 a.m.

The city was blacked out and people ran into the streets in panic.

Meanwhile a small boy was killed Thursday as a series of earth tremors continued to shake the eastern Turkish province of Agri.

The latest fatality brought to seven the death toll since earthquakes began to hit the foothills of Mount Ararat, the highest mountain in Turkey, a week ago.

B.C. to Join Federal Guides

Legislation allowing the B.C. government to sign an agreement with Ottawa to participate in the federal anti-inflation program was introduced in the House today.

At the same time the province announced it will intervene in a Supreme Court of Canada case which is testing the constitutionality of the federal anti-inflation program.

Premier Bennett said while B.C. supports the federal program it wants to ensure that agreement will not lead to any infringement on provincial rights in future.

In the court case, therefore, B.C. will support the federal position on the clear understanding that Ottawa can intrude on provincial rights only if there is evidence that emergency conditions exist.

The B.C. legislation, entitled Bill 16, the Anti-Inflation Measures Act, authorizes the government to enter into agreement with the federal government to have the anti-inflation guidelines applied to prices and wages in the public sector of the province.

Bennett stressed that the agreement, which is still under negotiation, will likely expire in April, 1977, considerably before the federal program is scheduled to end.

But Bennett said that by next year B.C. should have its own anti-inflation program in operation and can take back jurisdiction from the federal government.

The bill also allows the province to investigate and regulate the prices of commodities and services in B.C.

BOMB SCARE

A telephoned bomb scare resulted in the B.C. Medical Building on Government being temporarily evacuated today. An evacuation fire drill was carried out while units of the city police and the provincial government's security section searched the building.

BANK ON IT . . . AKLAVIK'S HERE

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A school teacher in the remote Northwest Territories community of Aklavik thinks a Canadian bank needs a geography lesson.

Barbra Lakatos is upset because a letter from the Banque Provinciale de Canada said:

"Further to your renewal for a Master Charge card, we have to inform you that we do not issue cards to be sent out of Canada.

"However, if you come back to Canada please get in touch with us and we will be glad to issue you a Master Charge card."

Mrs. Lakatos said she replied informing the company that Aklavik is in fact in Canada but has had no response from the company.

A spokesman for the firm, Francois Kogovsek, said it was a coincidence that Mrs. Lakatos got the letter, designed for people now living in the United States.

Secretary Says Lauk Removed Gov't Papers

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A secretary has accused former economic development minister Gary Lauk of carting away 22 boxes of government files at government expense shortly after the Dec. 11 election.

Socred Economic Development Minister Don Phillips carried the accusation into the legislature and at one point accused Lauk of "stealing" government material.

Lauk said all the files he removed were personal and it is common practice to take such material away when a minister leaves office.

But his former secretary, Sarjit Olaizola, said she felt what she was instructed to do was wrong and all the material taken away was ministerial, rather than personal files.

Olaizola said Lauk instructed her on Dec. 15 to pack up all the files in the office. On Dec. 16 he told her to rent a van and personally take all the material over to his home in Vancouver.

"I literally emptied the filing cabinet drawers," she said. "I objected to what I was being told to do, but I'm just a civil servant and I did as I was told."

(B.C. civil servants and cabinet-appointments take an oath of secrecy which stipulates they will not divulge or speak out on any government business.

(Ministers' secretaries by tradition are appointed politically through cabinet order in council. Olaizola was appointed by both NDP and Socred governments as secretary to Lauk and Phillips respectively — and similarly was made secretary to former highways minister Phil Gaglardi in the previous Socred regime.)

That same day the former premier's secretary phoned Olaizola and told her to be sure she packed up all the mining files.

"She said Dave (Barrett) wants you to be sure to take all the mines material," said Olaizola.

Former provincial secretary Ernie Hall apparently called Olaizola next and also told her to be sure to pack up the mining files.

She closed the minister's office for two days — Dec. 16 and 17 — while she moved the material.

Rent of $41.70 on the van was charged to the government and the department also paid a second bill, she said, covering the cost of sending over Lauk's personal possessions on another date.

Asked why the former government wanted to take the files away, Olaizola said she assumed it was because they had something they didn't want anyone to see.

She said none of the 22 boxes contained personal files, and most of it was correspondence with other government departments and agencies.

Shortly after Phillips was sworn in as minister in late December, a registered letter was sent to Lauk requesting he return the files, she said.

But Lauk phoned her she said, and told her the materi-

Marchand, Jamieson Grilled Over Sky Shops

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Two cabinet ministers were grilled in the Commons Thursday over the possible role played by former assistants of theirs in the Sky Shops Affair.

Don Jamieson and Jean Marchand who came under fire from Tory MP Elmer McKay have already turned over to the RCMP files from their tenures as transport minister.

McKay asked Marchand to "clarify the role his staff played with regard to the sky-Shops affair and whether unauthorized acts and signatures were arranged without his knowledge."

"The matter is hearsay," Marchand later told reporters, "and I will not comment further. I do not know if there is any foundation to the matter."

MacKay told reporters later there was "foundation" behind his questions and that the time frame involved was the spring of 1972—which was apparently the focal point for the RCMP investigation.

At that time, Jamieson was minister of transport and Marchand was minister of regional economic expansion and the prime minister's chief Quebec lieutenant.

Jean Rivard, Ottawa correspondent for Telemedia, the Quebec radio network, meanwhile, quoted letters purporting to show that the former aides are involved.

The case involves the 1972 cabinet extension, without competitive bids, of a Sky Shops license to operate a duty-free store at Dorval Airport in Montreal until 1980.

As reported Thursday by Rivard and also by Dan Turner on the Ottawa TV station CBOT, documents obtained in the investigation show the following sequence of events.

On Oct. 26, 1971, Marchand aide Carmel Carriere sent a handwritten note on ministerial stationery to Andrew Chatwood, executive assistant to Jamieson.

The note said Marchand insisted on reversal of transport ministry advice to call for competitive bids for the duty-free license at Dorval, rather than simply renewing the Sky Shops licence.

On Nov. 12, 1971, a Carriere note in the same vein went to Chatwood.

On Nov. 23, 1971, Chatwood wrote to William Huck in the air transport division of the transport ministry, with a copy of the letter going to O. G. Stoner, deputy transport minister, saying Marchand was insisting that no competitive bids be called.

On May 1, 1972, a typewritten letter from Chatwood informed Carriere that the decision on putting the Dorval duty-free license up for competitive bid had been reversed.

Third Mudslide Closes Road

CASTLEGAR (CP) — A third mudslide in three days has closed another portion of Highway 3 between Castlegar and Nelson.

The new slide, 200 feet long and about 12 feet high, closed the road about 3 a.m. today, a half-mile west of the two other slides and about eight miles east of Castlegar.

B.C. Telephone Co. reported long distance circuits in the area were out, although service was expected to be restored by afternoon.

NEW HOUSING DEPUTY NAMED

A program director with the housing department has been appointed deputy minister to replace Gary Begg, who resigns at the end of this month.

Larry Bell, 38, will receive a salary of $43,080 in his new post.

Bell has been with the department since June, 1974, and prior to that was research director with United Community Services in Vancouver.

He has a BA in economics from the University of B.C. and an MA in social sciences from San Jose State College.

Brentwood Man Drowns

Shawnigan RCMP said Sam had been a passenger, apparently heading home across Saanich Inlet about 4:15.

He was noticed in the water about 100 yards out by Roy Daniels, of Mill Bay, and Peter Jones, of Sidney, who were working on a roof nearby. No one on the ferry apparently was aware that Sam was in the water, despite his cries for help, and the vessel kept moving.

Jones and Daniels heard the cries and ran to the water's edge to see what help they could give, but the body was not recovered by police until 5 p.m., with assistance from a nearby marina and boat from Brentwood College.

B.C. Paying for Montreal Oil?

The B.C. government has asked Ottawa to subsidize the estimated $37 million increase in the province's petroleum cost resulting from the federal government's export policy.

Transport Minister Jack Davis, also responsible for energy matters, said Thursday he has sent a letter to federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie asking for the subsidy.

Davis said Ottawa's decision to cut off crude oil exports to the U.S., and therefore divert oil previously going to the Pacific Northwest to Eastern Canada, is driving up the price of oil in B.C.

Because there is much less oil travelling westward, the cost of transportation from Alberta to Vancouver will go up 74 cents a barrel next year.

The resultant penalty to B.C. consumers will be about $37 million in 1977, said Davis.

So while Ottawa subsidizes a new Sarnia-to-Montreal pipeline and assures Montreal of a constant oil supply from Western Canada, at no increase in price, B.C. will be facing price increases.

Davis said the federal government is subsidizing the Sarnia-to-Montreal pipeline at a cost of about $20 million this summer and it should also subsidize the Trans-Mountain pipeline by $37 million to keep prices in B.C. constant.

"Clearly, British Columbians are faced with added costs as a result of the federal policies which put Montreal ahead of Vancouver, he said.

TransMountain Pipe Line Company, of Vancouver, has requested National Energy Board permission to increase the pipeline tariffs for delivering oil from Edmonton to Vancouver and Puget Sound refineries by 25 per cent, effective this month.

But the NFB has set aside the application and has asked TransMountain to provide additional financial and economic information to justify the 10-cents-a-barrel tariff increases.

In his letter to Gillespie Davis said not only does Montreal get an assured oil supply from Alberta but it continues to draw on subsidized oil from the Middle East.

"Our deliverd price, meanwhile, is going up and we do not have an alternative source of supply in sight," he said.

Federal Guidelines

It gives the government the legal authority to establish a freeze on prices or "general guidelines for the restraint of prices" for a 60-day period.

It allows the government to carry out any "investigation, survey, research, study, inquiry or inventory" respecting prices.

Any person who provides false or misleading advertising or avoids compliance with regulations or guidelines under the act will be liable to a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years.

When the agreement with Ottawa is signed, it will mean national guidelines will apply to the public sector and therefore any wage agreements arising since Oct. 14 will be subject to review by the Anti-Inflation Board.

In a statement to the House, Attorney General Garde Gardon said B.C. has decided to intervene in the Supreme Court constitutional case because the outcome will be very important to the future of constitutional issues of the country.

Provinces would normally have control over wages and prices and Gardom said exceptions to this rule of provincial autonomy, whereby the federal government can intrude, "are limited to where national emergency conditions exist."

The federal government feels it has the authority to intrude on the provincial domain on the basis of the "peace, order and good government of Canada" provision of the BNA Act.

Bennett said B.C. believes "controls and interference with our market economy are necessary in a time of temporary crises.

Lauk sai da copy of "each and every letter" was filed with the deputy minister's office or with the relevant agency.

CUPE Lifts Pickets

NANAIMO — Malaspina College opened for classes today after a four-day shutdown as striking members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees withdrew their picket lines from the school.

The move came after a Labor Relations Board hearing in Vancouver Wednesday when CUPE agreed to withdraw pickets from Malaspina and from two construction sites, one at an addition to the senior citizens' centre, the other at a school board garage.

The pickets were members of the school board local of CUPE. Union members employed at Malaspina were respecting the picket lines.

The pickets are still up at civic sites, including city hall, in Nanaimo and Ladysmith, and the deadlock in negotiations between CUPE and the Mid-Island Public Employers Association continues.

Myth:

Fact:
Pontiac's new Acadian is priced lower than many imports.

Small foreign cars used to have the edge in price. But have you checked around lately?

Acadian is even priced lower than a '76 Beetle ...or Toyota Corolla 1600, a Fiat 128 or a Datsun B210 Hatchback.*

The facts speak for themselves. Head to head with many popular imports, it costs less to buy Pontiac's new Acadian!

Terrorist Freed: Bloodbath Feared

DUBLIN (Reuter) — David O'Connell, regarded as the most dangerous man in the Irish guerrilla movement, stepped to freedom Thursday after nine months in jail and set off fears of imminent new bloodshed.

Authorities in Northern Ireland, now facing a renewed spate of bombings, said O'Connell's release might signal fresh violence on both sides of the Irish Sea.

Around the time O'Connell was being let out of Portlaoise prison in Eire, two more bombs went off across the border in the north.

One explosion was in the centre of Craigavon, County Armagh. It went off at a building site and injured seven people.

Another bomb in Londonderry injured four British army personnel, one a woman, who were frisking people at a checkpoint.

Official apprehensions were heightened by a telephone warning from a Protestant extremist group called the Ulster Freedom Fighters.

The UFF threatened to wage all-out war against the Roman Catholic-based IRA, which for nearly seven years has been battling to force a British retreat from Northern Ireland.

The UFF furthermore threatened to assassinate Merlyn Rees, the British secretary of state for Northern Ireland.

"We have to take all these threats seriously," a British military source said. "There is no doubt that all these people have the power to cause trouble."

A former schoolmaster, O'Connell is viewed by the British as the most bloodthirsty of the IRA leaders. The fear now is that he may galvanize hesitant followers into a full-scale resumption of bombing and murder.

IRS SUES ESTES FOR $46 MILLION

ABILENE (UPI) — The internal Revenue Service Thursday filed a $46 million suit in federal court against convicted Texas swindler Billie Sol Estes and his wife for back taxes.

The IRS claimed Estes owes the government $21,094,955 and that his wife, Patsy, owes another $24,558,025.

The IRA said the sums included back taxes, penalties and interest incurred from 1959 through 1962.

Estes, 52, currently works on his brother's farm near Abilene and serves as a radio dispatcher for Permian Petroleum Co. Mrs. Estates works as a dentist's receptionist.

It wasn't always so.

Estes served six years, four months and seven days in federal prison for perpetrating one of the great swindles of all time.

Operating from his Pecos, Tex., home, he induced farmers in 11 West Texas counties to sign mortgages on non-existent fertilizer tanks for anhydrous ammonia.

The farmers would go through the motion of buying the tanks (worth about $1,000 each) from an Estes-controlled company, taking out the mortgages and then leasing them back to Estates.

Estes then made the lease payments equal to the mortgage payments so the farmers would not have to pay out any money and even offered them a fee of 10 per cent of the purchase price — in effect, something for nothing.

He then sold the mortgages to finance companies for $32 million to finance a growing "paper" empire.

A federal jury convicted him of fraud in 1963 and after a number of appeals, he entered Leavenworth, Kan., prison in 1965. He was paroled in 1971. His parole term expires in 1980.

Faith Healer Charged

BURNABY (CP) — RCMP have charged a 30-year-old Philippino woman with practising medicine without a licence in connectibn with a number of faith healing sessions within the last two months in this municipality neighboring Vancouver.

An RCMP spokesman said Mrs. Thelma Imberio, who has been in Canada for two months on a visa, was charged after the British Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons received complaints that a woman was practising psychic surgery.

The spokesman said a number of elderly persons suffering from incurable diseases were found when police checked a Burnaby residence.

Hughes 'Cousins' Eye Inheritance

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Two Cleveland area sisters and one in California who claim to be second-cousins of the late Howard Hughes are attempting to claim part of his reported $1.5 to $2 billion estate.

"We are trying to determine whether Howard Hughes left a will and, if he did, where our clients might fit in sharing the estate," said attorney Peter Brown, Los Angeles, according to the Cleveland press.

Brown and Paul Caruso, also of Los Angeles, have been hired by Mrs. Elspeth Depould, Rocky River, Ohio, and Mrs. Agnes Roberts, formerly of Olmsted Falls, Ohio, and Mrs. Barbara Cameron, formerly of Cleveland now living in Beverly Hills.

Mrs. Depould, an employee in the Rocky River High School library, said she saw Hughes in New York when she was about 22.

"That was nearly 30 years ago," she said. "We were in a hotel and he was just getting into an elevator when someone pointed him out to me. We never said a word to each other."

Mrs. Depould said she and her sisters are related through their grandfather, Rupert Hughes, brother of Howard Hughes Sr., who had one son, Howard Hughes Jr.

Rupert had a daughter, Elspeth, who was the mother of the three sisters seeking a claim in the estate.

Scholarships Won

Three British Columbia secondary school students have won $12,000 provincial government scholarships to the Lester B. Pearson World College at Pedder Bay and the United World College of the Atlantic, the government said Thursday.

Robert Mout, 17, of Aldergrove, and Cynthia Zoyetz, 16, of Kamloops, will attend Pearson College, while Thomas Hahn, 17, of Vancouver, will attend the college at St. Donat's Castle in Wales.

More than 100 students applied for the scholarships, funded jointly by the department of education and the provincial secretary.

Judge Clears Way For Betty Ford

NEW YORK (AP) — It took the U.S. National Labor Relations Board and a federal court judge to clear the way for Betty Ford to personally accept on television an award as one of 10 Women of the Year despite a strike by National Broadcasting Co. technicians.

Mrs. Ford spelled out her dilemma to reporters Thursday night as she entered the Ed Sullivan Theatre on Broadway through an entrance cleared of pickets by court order.

"I had promised to be here," she said on arriving for the taping of the show. "I certainly did not want to cross the picket line."

Connecticut Governor Ella Grasso, also an award winner, and Representative Bella Abzug (Dem. — N.Y.) who was to make a presentation, refused to attend taping of the awards show, telecast by NBC several hours later.

Marlo Thomas, Billie Jean King, Pearl Bailey, Cicely Tyson and others went through the picket line at another entrance, some silently with averted eyes, others protesting they had not known of NBC's labor troubles.

Hijackers Rebuff Deal

BANGKOK (UPI) — Three armed Moslem hijackers, their plane grounded by mechanical problems, today turned down an offer of freedom in return for their weapons, a Royal Dutch KLM Airline official said. One of the hijackers shoved his pistol to the head of the pilot when told of the delay.

At the same time, the KLM official said Burmese authorities in Rangoon refused permission for the Philippine Air Lines jetliner to fly over Burma on its way to Calcutta, next scheduled stop on the hijackers' flight to Libya, the official said.

Canada Or More Comfort?

Even the title, Foreign Investment Review Act, has the effect of curdling the imagination. Nationalists seize on the statement by review agency chairman Gorse Howarth that five out of six foreign takeover decisions are given the go-ahead. The business community grouses about the cabinet's second rejection of a takeover bid for the appliance division of Westinghouse Canada Ltd. The general public, judging from polls, is vaguely concerned about the degree of foreign ownership in Canada but could give a fig less for the intricacies of the act or its application.

Yet this contentious act could be a very important instrument of national economic policy rather than the political artifice it appears to be. The word "appears" is applicable because the government in its wisdom does not publicize the reasoning behind individual decisions. Rejection or acceptance is simply announced as a fait accompli, leaving an inevitable trail of suspicion that follows any government business conducted behind closed doors. The act is divided into two parts. Takeovers of existing businesses are covered in the first section, proclaimed almost two years ago. The second part, involving the screening of new investment by foreign-owned business did not go into effect until Oct. 15, 1975, because the provinces, notably Ontario, argued that it would harm slow growth regions.

To simplify a long and tedious argument, growth in terms of investment is the only criterion that interests most provincial governments. They can understandably point to concrete accomplishments, new industrial skylines, not to mention all the jobs and taxes that accrue to these projects. Conversely, the nationalists, a broad term including the New Democratic Party, some Conservatives, a few Liberals and organizations such as the Committee for an Independent Canada, recite chapter and verse of how the country is owned by foreigners.

Faced with these antagonists the federal government wrought the compromise known as FIRA. Five criteria are used to judge takeovers — the effect on the level and nature of economic activity in Canada, the effect on the degree and significnce of participation by Canadians, the effect on industrial efficiency, the effect on competition, and compatability with the industrial and economic policy objectives of federal or provincial governments likely to be effected. Given the latitude provided by such rules, especially the final one, cabinet can provide lucid reasons for almost any decision. The problem is the reasoning is never adequately explained. We know the noble criteria, but not how they are applied.

During the 1974-75 period, of the 92 resolved applications, 63 were allowed, 12 were disallowed, and 17 withdrawn by applicants prior to a decision. Other statistics suggest that in dollar terms the takeover of the Canadian economy is surging along. What to do? Are we destined to become vassals on our own turf. Successive governments, demography and our rich neighbor to the south suggest Canadians have no choice. The suggestion is actively reinforced by the actions of growth oriented business, chartered banks and most provincial governments. Perhaps the drift into continentalism is irrevocable, but there is no reason in Canada why we should give up without a stiff fight. Virtually all of Canada's oil industry is in foreign hands; the majority of manufacturing is in U.S. hands. The litany is familar. It is not impossible to remain friends with our American neighbors while resisting their natural inclinations to make money at our expense. Other nations have done it. Venezuela and Mexico are two examples. Canadians should not be made to feel guilty in claiming their birthrights although it sometimes seems that way.

The tools are at hand, including Petrocan, the Canadian Development Corporation and FIRA, if only the government would show more enthusiasm about using them. In FIRA's particular case, the government should be publicly candid about reasoning behind screening procedures. Criteria should be stiffened, even if it means less growth. No government can be expected to take a tough stand on the issue, if the electorate is indifferent. At this late hour it is almost a question of more creature comforts or our country. It is difficult to be comfortable when there is nothing to lie on.

Good News, Bad News

In the crush of bad news, some small success stories tend to get lost in the big picture. Such was the announcement from Camosun College that business course grads are in such demand that the college can't supply enough of them.

The bad news, of course, was that the situation is likely to remain the same for some time, as the province has imposed a freeze on college expansion and Camosun's operating budget will increase only 8.5 per cent for 1976-77, probably less than what inflation will eat up.

The two year business program emphasizes practicality, according to Peter McNeil, chairman of the business program, and it seems to be attracting a diligent, hardworking type of student. Banks, insurance companies and department stores are lining up to interview them and most of the 28 graduates this year already have jobs.

An across-the-board 8.5 per cent limit is as unfair to such a successful program as chopping off someone's legs to fit Procrustes' bed. With a program as effective as this in getting young people into the labor market — which the new provincial government trumpets daily as its primary objective — surely extra funds can be provided, either out of other less effective areas of the college or via special extra-budgetary grants from the province.

This is one flower that should be allowed to flourish, not fade for lack of funds.

MAURICE WESTERN

Don't Gallup Too Far, Joe

OTTAWA — If Joe Clark is new to the Conservative leadership he does have extensive experience in party politics, including some valuable training in Robert Stanfield's office. This should be enough to alert him to the danger of over-confidence based on Gallup ratings.

There are several problems with the Gallup poll. One is that they are based on samplings too small to permit accurate measurements. At best, they are likely to pick up trends, especially strong movements of public opinion. But a single finding is not necessarily much significance because it may reflect the immediate, possibly transient, influence of a single newsworthy event.

The latest survey by Gallup shows a very strong Conservative surge. For the first time in many years the PCs appear to have a substantial lead over the Liberals in public support 43 per cent versus 34 per cent. It is altogether likely that they do enjoy an advantage in the aftermath of an exciting and wide open national convention which attracted wide attention and much favorable comment. There was a similar movement of opinion following Stanfield's victory at the Tories Toronto convention in 1967. It dissipated very swiftly, however, with the emergence of Pierre Elliott Trudeau as Liberal leader.

Odd If They Weren't

In some respects, however, the situations are quite dissimilar. After the damaging blows they have sustained over the past year, it would be strange if the Liberals were not in political trouble. The interesting question is: how were they able, in a morass of misfortunes, to maintain an apparent lead for so long?

The probability is that the Liberals have been sustained for months by the inability of the Conservatives, under a caretaker leader, to exploit their opportunities. An unnatural situation in the opposition created a sort of dyke, partially blocking movements of opinion. Dissatisifed voters fell away from Trudeau but drifted into the ranks of the undecided. They could go no farther because the future of the Conservative party was a question mark. Who would lead it? Claude Wagner? Jack Horner? Paul Hellyer? The articulate but little-known newcomer from Alberta, Joe Clark?

Party militants aside, who could be expected to follow a question mark?

The convention has created a new and more normal situation in which Liberal losses are very likely to be translated into Conservative gains. They cannot, however, be taken for granted. Joe Clark has performed creditably to date but he has been dealing essentially with windfall issues. They throw very little light on the unanswered question: Where does he propose to lead the Conservative party and the country? If current trends are to solidify, the still untested leader will have to address himself seriously to a question which is all important.

JOE CLARK

cheer from Gallup, the Liberals would be equally foolish to shrug off a sombre warning. For plainly the government has fallen in favor since its 1974 victory and may be entering a danger zone from which recovery is likely to be very difficult.

Ministers have drawn a good deal of confidence from indications that most Canadians support the fight against inflation. But this does not necessarily mean that they admire the government's general performance. Nor is it clear that a government which campaigned vigorously against controls, only to implement them when its own program proved futile, has regained its credibility in the eyes of voters.

The problem for the Liberals is that, beyond a certain point in the life of a declining government, troubles tend to multiply. If they originate in economic disorders, the range of options narrows. There is simply no money for programs which might have popular appeal. Other spending, even though essential, draws adverse reactions.

To a degree, of course, governments always retain the initiative. They can draw for ideas on the resources of a vast civil service. They deal with other governments. Within the limitations of available financial resources, they can propose one item of legislation in preference to another. They have some opportunities, therefore, for shaping public discussion.

In fact — and this may be one measure of present difficulties — Trudeau has already sought to widen debate. He has resurrected the project of constitutional patriations and he has been going about the country delivering Galbraithian lectures about the society of the future. But whereas a new leader, or one riding a crest of popularity, may hope by such initiatives to excite a good deal of support, a leader who has become a bit shopworn or who, for various reasons, has fallen in public esteem is likely to find that bold ideas for a brave new world are received with a good deal of skepticism and even outright hostility.

Handwriting on Wall

Even in politics, perhaps, there is something resembling a law of diminishing returns. The most notable victim was certainly R. B. Bennett who failed utterly to turn the tide against his party with the famous New Deal.

It may also be that failings and minor scandals which would count for little if alleged against a popular government are considerably more damaging when the afflicted ministers are already in trouble with voters for their general management of the country's affairs.

A government, two years removed from an election has no reason to accept a single Gallup poll as the writing on the wall. Trudeau is a resourceful politician, who has twice rescued his party from very difficult situations. The fact is, however, that the Liberals, having sustained one shock after another, are now in a highly vulnerable position. If they fail in the time remaining to impress the country by greater competence and more sensitivity than they have recently displayed, the handwriting will show up as it did for the St. Laurent Liberals after the pipeline debate and for the Diefenbaker Conservatives after the Coyne affair.

Some Violets

A refreshing spring potpourri of reader interest in the April 3 issue of the Times. It surely could be in the class of a much-needed catharsis to help cleanse one's mind from the past winter's hodgepodge of senseless rantings among uptight citizenry, self-appointed guardians of sin-tempted folk, ill assortment of politicians plying under various classifications across the land.

Points in question particularly on the editorial page which included the editor's notebook with "Our Criminal Law: A Damning Indictment" and one very commendable letter to the editor from Ken McAllister of Vancouver. In both instances the writers pinned back some ears (dangerous antennae) of growing numbers of people who last winter more than usually rushed their tempo of misanthropic blindness for calculated revenge from across the board of law and directed toward those in conflict with society which is in turn riddled with gross contradictions in application of justice.

Yes, spring will be springier and Harold Hosford's Stray Feathers, Where Birds Go To Watch People was a delight to read twice over. All of which helped to deaden the mad cries of revenge and retribution for certain miscreants, to be dealt out by some would-be modern executioners even while they ready themselves sanctimoniously for the annual commemoration of another execution of one gentle law teacher considered rebellious in His day.

This supposedly the season for harbingers of happiness and newness of life, elan, and when we may rightfully welcome one editor who is not "married to the past!"—M. Anderson, 640 Dallas Road.

Breakfast Program

At Christmas time we all give to organizations collecting for those, particularly children, who might otherwise be deprived of food and small gifts to celebrate that special day. At Easter time many give to the Easter seal campaign and other worthwhile causes. Both days are considered days of feasting to most of those living in the western world. It would seem particularly appropriate this year to make a donation also to S. J. Willis school to help them inaugurate a program to serve breakfast to undernourished children.

This letter is written, not as a request from the school to the writer, but because we know of the beneficial effects on the health and learning ability of children so fed in a similar program in another city. Whatever the cause, children arriving at school without breakfast are not the ones at fault. We are all our sisters and brothers keepers.

Cheques, large or small, may be made out to S. J. Willis school and sent to 923 Topaz Street, Victoria, with a note declaring the purpose, so that such donations may be used for these beneficial breakfasts. Donations will be acknowledged with receipts.—Mrs. D. W. Macauley, 548 Dallas Road.

Sensible Guidelines

It seems that some civil liberties outfit is objecting to the fact that welfare recipients have to provide some information to justify their application for subsidies which come from the taxpayers' pockets.

What is the matter with these civil liberties advocates? Don't ordinary taxpayers — working or retired — have to fill in income tax forms which require them to state fully and truly any source of income, the amount of rent paid — if entitled to a rental grant — any deductible charitable donations and so on and on? Surely taxpayers don't consider all that information they have to provide as an unwanted invasion of privacy. It has to be done. What do welfarites expect — a blind cheque from the government?

Come on, just be sensible. We have far too many storefront lawyers, social workers, community organizations talking about the poor's "rights," in some instances perhaps using these "poor" to make headlines.

It won't take long before the real poor are the taxpayers with a taxable income below $10,000. I know. — Irate Taxpayer.

Good Insurance

The Trident nuclear submarine base being built in Bangor, Wash. is probably the best insurance we'll ever have against the threat of Russian attack. To oppose the base on the grounds that its existence invites nuclear annihilation is to admit the Russian threat is real. Instead of impotently complaining about the threat, shouldn't we as proud Canadians be prepared to play some part in the defence of our land?

Members of the Pacific Life Community who recently staged a demonstration against the Trident base are obviously unprepared to pay any price towards our common defence. These heroic defenders of life appear more concerned about the proximity of the base to their own homes than the ethics of its construction.

Unfortunately for these ostriches this will not happen, even if their ranks swell to millions and they go gawking and goggling off to Ottawa following the trail of their petition to the prime minister. Yes, even if this happens, the United States is unlikely to drop its aggressive military stance in return for a Russian promise of everlasting friendship. The world of people unlike the dreams of ostriches is one of continual confrontation with friendship only an ideal and an iron fist ever-ready to meet a naive smile.

Is it any wonder the Pacific Life Community's little display of sticks and bits of plastic met with so many silent smiles?—Roger Fossey, 526 Tait Street.

Film Sadism

Why is it that when movies are rated, people are not warned of everything that could be offensive to them. Recently I saw Lucky Lady and unless I'm mistaken (maybe they were just "acting") it included a scene of cockfighting. When I see a movie I'd like to "get away from it all," not have it shoved down my throat. The movies aren't the movies anymore, you have to be subjected to real live blood and guts. I wish I hadn't seen the movie. If I had known, the money wouldn't have been wasted. Not everyone wants to see this sadism and I think the least the B.C. director of film classification could do is warn us about it. What a ripoff. — Elizabeth Aubry, 3060 Donald Street.

Penetrating Insight

Loo Flirpa's recent column (Marguerite to Be Casino, Times April 1) was most enjoyable. Such penetrating insight into legislative reporting is difficult to achieve. It is really too bad Ms. Flirpa cannot be convinced to write more than the one column each year. —Nosmo King, Victoria.

Managing Profiteers

On the morning of April 1 I found myself driving on the road half way between Kamloops and Quesnel. The car radio was telling of some fellow — a mayor or someone — making a premature bid for increased revenues for his town council because the present government was going to pass Bill 3 permitting increased borrowings of vast sums of money needed because of the gross mismanagement of monies by the former government.

I got to thinking that this cacophonous air on a theme about money mismanagement which a lot of tin-eared people are humming is starting to show the character of its hummers.

I feel that anyone with kidneys strong enough to hold their ears apart should be able to reckon that every nation begets the government it deserves. Similarly, in our much cherished democratic ideal, I am confident that most of our populace will agree that it was far better to have placed monies accrued from our labor and resources in the hands of co-called responsible people heading and managing our myriad functions so that they could do their best on our behalf, and for us to see and criticize — as has been done by the last government — than in the hands of managing profiteers so that we cannot see where it is used, and thus we cannot criticize — as seems to be the trend with this government. — Joseph Gregge, Erickson, B.C.

Recycling Support

On Saturday April 3, the recycling sub-depot in Esquimalt was so well supported, hardly another item could have been crammed onto the truck on its return to Borden Street. This was only the second month of this depot's operation and I feel this kind of support from the community should be encouraged. The news that the sub-depots face the real possibility of being closed due to the recent cut in budget from the Capital Regional Baord was met with shocked disbelief by many recyclers last Saturday.

Greater Victoria has gradually been building up a reputation across Canada as one of the most progressive cities in the country in its attitude towards recycling. This is the kind of prestige we want. There is no reason why, with progressive thinking and planning, we could not become one of the leading cities in North America in the recycling of our waste product resources. Instead of building a mammoth incinerator for the city, let us rather think of building a plant to recycle some of our waste resources in our own area. I think the time has come for us to ask ourselves not "can we afford recycling," but "can we afford not to recycle?" I want a future for my children. I know what my answer is!—Marjory J. Acton, 469 Admirals Road.

The New Society: What Kind Will it Be?

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — Although Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has retreated in disarray from his vision of a new society, the phrase has stuck, and others are putting forward their ideas about the future — some highly optimistic, some downright gloomy.

The most complete prospectus has come from Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey, in a recent speech to the National Press Club, and as one might expect from such a happy political warrior, he could hardly wait for the new day dawning.

"Some say we're entering a new dark age of psychotic self-seeking anarchy, and utopia looks less like tomorrow than like yesterday," he said. "There is certainly less unity, and much less respect for authority, but in some ways this indicates sanity rather than anarchy.

"In the past we've been united by concern for bread and meat, clothes and cars, broadloom and dishwashers. We've accepted the goals of the institutions—their own survival and growth—because they squared with our own desire for more. But last year our income per capita was $4,966, and people who have enough goods are finding that goods are not enough, and they're challenging the institutional goals.

"Who are these dissident pressure groups? Anarchists? Maoists? Marxists? No, they're your wives, your children, your neighbors, your customers—women, students, urban taxpayers and consumers. They're concerned with equity, education, health and safety—what we're calling the quality of life.

"They're not challenging the vested interests because they want to create disorder, but because they want to create a new social disorder. It's not authority as such that they disrespect, it's authority that obstructs rather than leads.

"The chaos in society doesn't stem, in my view, from greater self-seeking; it's a grass roots movement against it, against the narrow self-concern of the past. Our citizens groups are setting limits on institutional self-seeking wherever it conflicts with communal concerns, and today these concerns are with people as well as things, with quality as well as quantity, with the rights of the disadvantaged as well as the privileges of the powerful....."

SCHREYER . . . pessimistic

Mackasey went on to describe the problems, which he thought were all soluble, and then said:

"In my view, we're shaping a more enlightened society, goal-directed, politically responsive, economically innovative, co-ordinated, accountable and humane.

"I don't know what to call it. Co-operative capitalism, perhaps. But it will be capitalistic, and its enterprise will be free, as free as its degree of self-regulation. Outwardly, it won't look too different from what we see today. Inwardly, the change will be revolutionary."

Another optimistic outlook is provided by Andre Raynauld, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, who in fact was talking about new values for a changing economic environment before Trudeau's year-end musings.

In a speech last November, he said: "The work ethic is far from dead. What has been lost is the blind submission to any working conditions that are imposed, and the servile attachment to a job that was necessitated by poverty or family responsibilities. Prosperity has given man unparalleled freedom of choice with respect to work."

The new freedom, he continued, was most obvious to young workers, and he concluded:

"No doubt they are less punctual than their elders, attach less importance to their work and therefore give it less attention, and accept discipline less easily. But this is simply a reflection of an attitude that is natural among people who have to change to achieve what previous civilizations could not—the long-held Utopian dream of a world where work is just one activity among many, freely chosen and accepted.

"They are within sight of Plato's ideal — which is ours too — that man may do what he likes and like what he does."

Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba agrees completely on the need for a new society — he also was talking about it before Trudeau — but is pessimistic about the chances of achieving it through the democratic process.

In a recent interview with Maclean's magazine, he said: "To me it's obvious what's happening. The industrial West has generated, in the 1950s and '60s and mid-70s fairly dramatic increases in material wealth largely by running down capital resources and that can't go on forever.

We must take a dramatic turn. In fact, I'm not sure if that's going to be easy. It may not even be realistic in the context of parliamentary institutions. But somehow, somewhere there has got to be a diversion of substantial amounts of the gross national product into capital investment funds into transportation and primarily for energy development."

Schreyer talked about investment of $100 billion over the next 10 to 15 years, but said he could not see where the money would come from because it would be politically impossible to impose the necessary forced saving through taxes or to put a ceiling on consumer demands.

MACKASEY . . . he can't wait

"All I know is that what is involved here is a change of lifestyle, a complete change of lifestyle, and I just don't think the present style of political institutions would bring it off.

"As a consequence, we'll drift for a decade, avoiding all of the more painful decisions."

Schreyer didn't say what would happen thereafter, but the implication is that some form of authoritarian government will make the tough decisions and impose the new society upon us.

He disclosed in the interview that one of the reasons he declined to take the national leadership of the New Democratic Party, and is planning to retire even from provincial politics, is his dismay at the attitude of the trade union movement. While Schreyer believes with J. K. Galbraith that income and price controls must be a permanent part of the new economic system, he believes organized labor on which his party depends for support is fundamentally, and not just temporarily, opposed to this sort of government intervention. He did not fancy years of agonizing political adjustment.

Mackasey, who is often identified as a friend of labor in the cabinet, is more optimistic about winning the co-operation of the unions—although he was speaking before the recent confrontation between the cabinet and the Canadian Labor Congress.

The new society fashioned by technology he suggested, demands co-operation to solve problems rather than the clash of adversary institutions, and he said:

"This means a new working relationship between government, business and labor. I think that labor will come to recognize its stake in productivity."

This confidence in the willingness of unions and business to co-operate with government in creating a new society makes Mackasey optimistic about democracy. He recognized in his speech that at present, "the response to issues is so divisive, consensus is so elusive, that some people say democracy is dying," but went on:

"In my view, it means precisely the opposite. We're getting demands in Ottawa now from all sectors of society: Marginal farmers, unemployed workers, the unorganized, the elderly. The political order is giving them what the economic order couldn't, not because managers were heartless, but because it wasn't their responsibility . . . Power is being transferred from the boardroom and union offices to a Parliament responsive to all the electorate."

In reviewing opinions on the new society of the future, what is most disappointing is to find little or nothing of substance being said by the opposition parties in the democratic system. Neither the Progressive Conservatives nor the New Democrats seem to have many ideas on what the future holds for us—or can be made to hold.

. . . Trudeau Taking Us Toward Corporatism

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — Someone leaked me a "paper" that supposedly is under consideration in that great brain-chamber, the PMO (i.e., the Prime Minister's Office.) It's a forward-looking proposal to organize the participation of the corporate community in order to "interface" it with the federal government more effectively.

I use the phrases "forward-looking" because the impetus for the paper (apparently) is to ready "business" for the "new society", i.e., the kind of Canada we should try to establish in "the post-controls period." The paper, then, is of a piece with the line Mr. Trudeau took with Joe Morris of the CLC two weeks ago. Won't you join us in readying for the future?

Implicit in the prime minister's vision is a more rational planning process for the direction of our economy and the use of our manpower and natural resources.

For many years governmental advisory councils have been in vogue. Business and industry and trade union persons of note are appointed to them. Such organizations (e.g. the Economic Council of Canada) prepare and publish reports. These suggest policies, criticize current and recent policies and performance, and make projections.

Essentially, these councils and boards are designed as advisory to governments and/or advisory and educational for the public. They are never really part of the direct planning process that leads to executive decision. In flow charts or diagrams of government structures they are usually off on a side bar, not incorporated within the box of a government ministry or the PMO or the Privy Council Office, and never hooked directly below to Parliament.

Provincial governments have aped Ottawa, particularly Ontario and Quebec. Such advisory councils and boards abound in this country.

On the surface, such councils seem rather innocuous and accomplish two rather pleasant things. They make business and union and professional groups which participate feel recognized. They "belong." For governments, they enable prime ministers and ministers to point out to parliaments and legislatures the authority and the high, broad, neutral quality of the counsel they receive.

If all these councils or boards really shared power, such as partaking in the final planning and decision-making process, our democratic process would be dead. That is, the basis of our government's authority is the voter, the election, and the elected representative in Parliament. If others, such as Joe Morris of the CLC or Ian Sinclair, CP President, were actually inside the planning and decision-making process by virtue of their posts and not as persons elected by the voters, then we would have a different form of government. It really would be what is called "corporatism".

Feudal society with its hierarchies and loyalties was a form of corporatism. Fascism, particularly in Mussolini's Italy, strongly manifested corporatism. The initial motives for feudalism and fascism have elements of nobility. Providing stability and security. Guaranteeing a place and a role in government for the grand interest groups of society. Establishing certitude of rank and authority. Ensuring continuity.

The question — a moot question and one that is already being debated in academic circles — is whether Pierre Trudeau's new society envisages corporatism.

A few days ago one of our politicians in Opposition let me see a letter from one of our ablest economists. I close with a few paragraphs from it, not so much because of its immediate significance but to start you pondering this matter of corporatism. You'll be hearing much more about it.

The economist wrote that the Trudeau speech brought the issue of corporatism into the public domain.

"Trudeau himself," he said, "was not unveiling anything about which he has deep thoughts. He picks up ideas from whatever he has recently read, or whatever his camp-followers put together from Ottawa's salons, and trots them out without digestion or calculated purpose. In times past —I have no doubt he was an ecological freak, a nogrowth man, an economic nationalist of violent temper, a worrier about affluence, and a 'computer-revolution' pessimist — all for two or three weeks or even two or three months while his attention span held.

"Corporatism is in the air, nonetheless, even if Trudeau is merely a symptom rather than a cause, it is antithetical to parliamentary democracy, for it does not imagine opposed views competing for power but a system in which opposed views have been wiped out and only a general, organic will remains. It has been manifested in Canada by the deliberate fostering of anti-Parliaments like the Economic Council, National Economic Conferences, and, of course, by the supreme example of the AIB and all its satellite organizations. True, all of these had parliamentary birth, but live now in virtual autonomy thanks to enabling laws by which Parliament has abdicated its authority.

"Many who should know better have fallen for this anti-democratic fantasy. Labor leaders sit with the councils and join the corporatist panels of conferences as though they feared their boots squeaked and their ties were not on straight — and hoped they would become better persons by meeting with their betters in substitute governments where real governments are routinely condemned. Academics are even more easily seduced. Let any high official pretend that intellectual values count, and the universities rush to do reverence. Galbraith, Trudeau, the Kennedy mob and Camelot, Buckley . . . it is all one so long as there is room for officers and gentlemen."

Government by Guru

By WILLIAM SAFIRE
New York Times

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. — People here tighten their sunbelts, dodge tornadoes, witness ruefully the decline of George Wallace and look hopefully toward the likes of Jimmy Carter and California Gov. Jerry Brown.

Most of us equate the fading of Wallace with a rejection of racism, but we forget that the Alabama governor's appeal included an anti-establishment, anti-intellectual element that has deep roots in American history. Messrs. Carter and Brown do not use the "pointy-headed perfessor" rhetoric but inherit the Wallace resentment at "bureaucrats" in far-off Washington manipulating the lives of "plain folks."

While Carter, a Baptist, is the consummate political evangelist, Brown, a former Jesuit seminarian now dabbling in Zen, is the new-fangled political spiritualist. Each seeks to give the voter the impression he is in close touch with the Great Campaign Manager in the Sky.

Brown goes out of his way to stress his personal asceticism. Spartanlike, he refuses to live in the governor's mansion; he drives a small car to work; he spends occasional weekends at Zen and Trappist monasteries, excellent places to think quietly. Most appealing of all, he delivered a seven-minute inaugural address. This makes him "anti-political," which is this year's role for the smart politician.

Taking advantage of the revolution of lowering expectations, Brown lingers on the questions and procrastinates on the answers. He murmurs profundities like, "Who knows if there are any answers?"

To a persistent interviewer for Playboy magazine, Brown said: "I've spent more time with you than on anything this month. And its made me ask myself whether or not I'd ever want to be President. There are just too many issues on which you have to have positions."

Even as this interview appeared, Brown announced his candidacy for president, hinting broadly that what he really had in mind was the nomination for vice-president. He has entered his own state's primary, and that of Maryland as well, to prove his coast-to-coast appeal.

Brown understands two principles better than most anti-politicians around today. First, he has grasped the Satchel Paige political philosophy — that is, keep running and never look back; something may be gaining on you. Brown ran for California secretary of state on the basis of his father's name, won, and then narrowly won the governorship a year ago. Rather than tackling the job he was elected to, he keeps running — not so much for higher office as away from present office.

The second principle, an understanding of which Brown shares with Carter, is Charles de Gaulle's axiom that "there can be no power without mystery." This holds that answers need not be specific when trust is the candidate's demand: "Nothing more enhances authority than silence. It is the crowning virtue of the strong, the refuge of the weak . . . the prudence of the wise, and the sense of fools."

Zenocrat Brown and country-slicker Carter have developed the mystic straddle to a high art. Today, "I don't know" is received as a refreshingly honest answer, the follow-up, "Why don't you know?" is rarely asked.

In the past, politicians stuck to generalities because specific positions lost votes; but Brown — and to a lesser extent Carter — stick to fuzzy generalities because they do not have the specifics in mind. In public affairs, honesty is not always the best policy; policy is the best policy.

If we were only dealing with the vice-presidency we might relax about providing a Washington monastic retreat for Brown. But our last three Presidents have been vice-presidents, and two of them stepped suddenly into huge responsibility.

Can Democrats be serious about placing a pleasant, engaging man of such limited experience so close to great power — when he admits he has no idea what he would do with that power? When asked about detente, Brown replied; "I'd have to give that one a lot of thought."

★ ★ ★

Perhaps Democrats should give more thought to the Browning of America. Envision Jerry Brown as president — having refused to live in the pretentious White House like other politicians — surrounded by limousines loaded with Secret Service agents and cops on motorcycles, driving his own little car to work from his bachelor pad. It would vividly symbolize the Spartan life, but it would cost a fortune every morning.

Spiritualism and evangelism have their place, but that place is not in national politics. California, with its wonderful culture of cults, is entitled to a chief executive with sects appeal, but the rest of the country will look askance at government by guru. As politicians say of the mystic pitch: nobody should seek the presidency as a steppingstone to higher office.

"With 50 tons of logs breathing down your neck..."

"With 50 tons of logs breathing down your neck, it's nice to know you won't slide around."

It was no modern Saga of the West! But it was quite a test of a car. Two cars, to be exact. A Fiat 128 sedan, and the new Fiat 3P hatchback coupe. The occasion: A photographic session in the Rockies and the Alberta foothills.

Vancouver photographer Toby Rankin and one of the drivers, Montrealer Robi Roncarelli, know cars. Both raced and rallied in club events, as Rankin puts it, "in our impetuous youth". But the Fiat 128 was unfamiliar to them. And a surprise to both. Some sample quotes:

Rankin: "The cars would start off on steep hills, in packed snow, no fuss at all. With my car I'd have had to back right down to the bottom and try again." (Rankin owns a small import — a sporty, expensive one. But unlike the Fiat, it doesn't have front-wheel drive.)

Roncarelli: "Fantastic handling. Rankin would say things like 'take the bend a foot from the snowbank, slide the rear end round so I can take a side shot, then straighten out in front of the tree.' And it would do it like that." (The 128 has won the Canadian Winter Rally five times — a record that will most likely never come close to being equalled.)

Rankin: "That's a really solid car. No squeaks or groans — and some of those logging roads were rough."

Roncarelli: "The engine had the guts to keep going at high speeds mile after mile."

The writer: "I was in the back most of the time. Boy, there's a lot of room! I'm big, but my legs weren't cramped at all. That little 128 will take four big men — comfortably. And a lot of luggage."

Verdict: "Tremendous little cars!

Note — The Fiat 128 costs more than most other small cars. But if you want more space, and guts, and front wheel drive, and super handling, as Roncarelli observed: "It's more than worth the extra money." But you'll have to take a test drive to know for sure!"

LIVESTOCK

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. at the Calgary Public Stockyards totalled about 1,950 head, mostly feeder cattle, stock calves and cows.

Trade was active with a good local and eastern demand although there were too few slaughter steers or heifers to establish a market.

Feeder cattle were mostly steers up to 800 pounds, selling steady to slightly higher. Heifers were steady and stock calves, mostly in the 700-pound range, also were steady.

Cows D1-D2 28.50-30, D3 26.50-28, D4 22-26.

Good feeder heifers over 700 pounds 29-34, 600-700 pounds 30-36, 500-600 pounds 30-35.

No hogs.

Toronto Prices Follow New York

TORONTO (CP) — Stock prices on the Toronto market turned mixed in slow midmorning trading Friday in response to uncertain movements on the New York market.

The industrial index fell .22 to 188.94 and base metals .07 to 88.93. Golds rose .76 to 280.94 and western oils .14 to 214.94.

Volume of trading by 11 a.m. was 425,000 shares, down from 527,000 at the same time Thursday. Declines led advances 98 to 69 with 166 issues unchanged.

Trading in shares of Abbey Glen Property Corp. was delayed from opening at the request of the company pending an announcement expected Monday. On Thursday, shares of Abbey Glen gained 40 cents to $4 and warrants 15 cents to $1 amid reports of a possible takeover bid for the company.

Falconbridge Nickel fell 1 to $39½, Texasgulf ½ to $34, Kaiser Resources ⅜ to $10⅝, Versatile Manufacturing A ⅜ to $15⅜ and Western Broadcasting B ⅜ to $10¼.

Noranda A rose ⅜ to $35¾ and Bell Canada ¼ to $45⅝.

Agnico-Eagle lost 10 cents to $4.50 and Westfield Minerals four cents to $1.73. Giant Mascot was up six cents to $1.44.

Canada Northwest Land was off ¼ to $7½ and Alberta Eastern ¼ to $10⅝. Merland added 15 cents to $3.60.

New York

AT NEW YORK the stock market declined again in light trading Friday, giving up on a brief mid-session rally attempt.

After a 27-point slide over the last three trading days, the Dow steadied in early trading Friday and showed a one-point gain by noon. But the short spell of bargain hunting attracted little support, and the market was falling again by early afternoon.

Analysts said investors seemed convinced that the market was due for a period of retrenchment after its sharp gains earlier in the year.

The market also evidently was weighed down business

Cdn. Utilities

Canadian Utilities Ltd. of Edmonton reports net earnings, fully diluted and after extraordinary items, of $26,194,000 or $1.61 per share for 1975, up from net earnings of $15,704,000 or $1.08 per share for 1974. The extraordinary items were non-recurring gains, amounting to $2,329,000, from the sale of property and certain utility distribution facilities.

Canadian Utilities is the holding company of Alberta Power Ltd., Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd. and Northwestern Utilities Ltd.

Crow's Nest

Crows Nest Industries Ltd. reports net profit of $487,000 or 65 cents a share for 1975, compared with a net loss of $831,000 in 1974. The company said the results were not comparable because of a $1 million writedown of forest products inventories at the end of 1974 that "had an adverse effect on that year's earnings but made possible the profit in 1975."

Alta. Energy

Alberta Energy Company Ltd., owned jointly by private investors and the Alberta government, reports net income of $3,981,000 last year. This compares with a loss of $242,000 in 1974, when the company was in the early stages of formation. Alberta Energy's major source of revenue in 1975 was interest earned on the net $146,995,000 received from Albertans and the provincial government for purchase of company stock. Interest income totalled $5,289,518. Of the money received from the initial stock sale, the report says, $25 million has already been spent, including $14 million for the initial payment to the Alberta government for purchase of the Suffield Block gas reserves in southeastern Alberta.

TransCanada

The substantial increase in natural gas field prices in 1975 should encourage the producing sector to explore and develop the gas reserves needed in the market, James W. Kerr, chairman of TransCanada PipeLines Ltd., says in the annual report. But he warns that care must be taken not to reduce total natural gas sales by overpricing "because this would result in idling facilities which would be translated into higher unit gathering, transmission and distribution costs." TransCanada announced earlier that 1975 earnings were $52.4 million in 1974.

Belkin

Belkin Packaging Ltd. of Vancouver has announced plans to build a $5-million corrugated containers plant at Edmonton to supply prairie industry. A contract has been let to Dominion Construction Co. to build the plant on a site south-east of Edmonton. The plant will employ 120 persons. Belkin has three plants in British Columbia including a paperboard bill, a carton manufacturing plant and a corrugated container plant.

Volkswagen Eyes American Plant

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — The supervisory board of the Volkswagen Company probably will approve construction of an assembly plant in the United States when it meets April 23, according to a member of the board.

Walter Leisler Kiep, finance minister of the State of Lower Saxony, told the foreign press association he is convinced that "the alternative to an assembly plant in the U.S. is the loss of the American market."

Kiep sits on the Volkswagen supervisory board as representative of tthe State of Lower Saxony, a part owner.

Kiep said his optimism is based on recent statements by Volkswagen directors that assembly of Volkswagen cars in the U.S. would not mean loss of jobs in the company's German plants. He believes that statement will enable Eugen Loderer, the metal worker's union chairman who also sits on the supervisory board, to vote for the American plant. Until now, Loderer has opposed the plan for fear it would cost German workers their jobs.

The company's management board would decide on the site of the American plant "very soon" after the supervisory board approved it's establishment in principle, Kiep said.

No Heroin Cut-Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Life sentences handed out Wednesday to two king-pins of Vancouver's heroin trade will have no effect on the drug trade here, the head of the city's drug squad said Thursday.

Staff Sgt. Lloyd Turncliff said there was as much heroin on the street now as there was Wednesday and "removing the Palmer Brothers from the scene was the same as cutting off only one of the tentacles of an octopus."

Douglas and Donald Palmer, each sentenced to life imprisonment by Mr. Justice A. B. Macfarlane, had both been previously convicted of conspiring to traffic in heroin.

Turncliff said that although the sentence is stiff it is not an uncommon one for heroin traffickers convicted in the Vancouver area.

Five other men convicted with the Palmer twins received lesser sentences.

"Putting them behind bars has not slowed the drug trade at all," said Turncliff. "It's a continuing battle. We won in the Palmer case. We got rid of them. But there are just as many others involved now."

He was reluctant to talk about the investigation "because it involves still larger things."

"No one in the drug business operates alone. They are part and parcel of a machine. You don't stop it just by removing a few pieces," he said.

Mandatory Seat Belt Law Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Medical Association has urged all members of the legislature to introduce legislation for mandatory use of seat belts for all automobile drivers and passengers.

In a position paper released Thursday, the association said 717 people died on B.C. roads last year, but if seat belts had been used, 115 of them would have survived.

"How many more British Columbians have to be killed and maimed before mandatory seat belt legislation is brought in?" the association asked.

The paper said documentation favoring use of seat belts is overwhelming and includes the B.C government's own advertising campaign.

"Sixteen countries, including Australia, New Zealand, France, Norway and Czechoslovakia now have seat belt laws," the paper said. "In Canada, Ontario has shown the lead with a law effective last Jan. 1."

Indian Lands Dispute Threatens Army Plan

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Canadian Armed Forces manoeuvres on 100,000 acres of national defence land near Williams Lake may be blocked May 26 by members of the Toosey Indian Band unless a dispute for ownership of the land can be settled.

Ray Hance, chief of the Tossey Band, said in a telephone interview Thursday, "I don't think we'll allow the May 26 manoeuvres."

The Toosey Band has claimed 100,000 acres of national defence land near here, saying the issue is part of a long-standing claim. The land is about 70 miles northwest of Williams Lake.

Chief Hance said he will meet with department and federal government representatives in Ottawa next week to try to resolve the dispute.

He said the issue was not one of land claims and was dissimilar to other Indian land issues.

"The federal government knows we used to use the land about 10 years ago — until the army moved in," he said.

The 100,000-acre parcel was given by the province to the federal government in 1912 in exchange for the University of B.C. Endowment Lands in Vancouver.

Bob Foulkes, assistant to federal Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that his department is waiting for documentation from B.C. Indian bands, outlining all specifics of land claims.

Foulkes said Labor Minister Allan Williams, responsible for Indian affairs in B.C., will be meeting with Buchanan at the end of April to discuss land claims.

Williams met with Hance and other band chiefs from the Williams Lake area Wednesday but little is being made public about the meeting.

Games Site Death

MONTREAL (CP) — A worker on the main eastend Olympic site was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital today following an accident on the site. He was the 12th fatality since the project began.

METHADONE SWIG KILLED ADDICT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A lethal amount of methadone drunk from a bottle in a friend's refrigerator caused the death last December of a 26-year-old Richmond woman, a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday.

In ruling the Dec. 19 death accidental, the jury said Carol Hartley died "as a result of misadventure due to (her) judgement being impaired."

The jury recommended methadone, used as a heroin substitute on drug withdrawal programs, be given only under the supervision of qualified persons.

During the hearing witnesses claimed Mrs. Hartley, overdue on a pass from Twin Maples Prison, where she was serving two years on a drug charge, visited the Richmond home of Calvin and Sandra Dante on Dec. 18.

The Dante's, who both admitted a history of drug addiction, told the jury Mrs. Hartley arrived under the influence of depressant drugs and drank several ounces of brandy.

They claimed that after she drank the brandy, Mrs. Hartley developed breathing problems and was given mouth-to-mouth resusictation by Calvin Dante.

The Dantes said that Mrs. Hartley went to sleep on their bed, lying between them, and was dead when they awoke about 4:30 a.m.

Dante said that before putting Mrs. Hartley to bed he noticed a considerable drop in the level in a bottle of methadone used by him in a drug withdrawal program and stored in the refrigerator.

Pathologist Dr. George Wasty told the jury lethal amounts of methadone were found in Mrs. Hartley's body. There were no traces of alcohol.

Anti-U.S. Sentiments Worry Forest Industry

VANCOUVER (CP) — Continued anti-American sentiment in Canada is of major concern to the B.C. forest industry, Gordon Draeseke, former president of the Council of Forest Industries (COFI), says in the council's annual report.

Draeseke says representations have been made to both the provincial and federal governments to seek "a relaxation of tensions which reflected themselves in increased resistance to Canadian imports."

The report, presented Thursday at the opening of the council's two-day annual meeting, says poor markets, protracted labor disputes and conflicting market projections resulted in severe budget restrictions and a general air of uncertainty in the industry.

"Consequently, many potentially productive programs had to be eliminated or severely curtailed," the report says.

Statistics in the COFI report show that B.C. produced a total of 1.7 billion cubic feet of logs in 1975, down from 2.1 billion cubic feet in 1974. About 5.4 billion board feet of lumber was exported from the province in 1975, the lowest level since at least 1967.

An estimated 4.4 billion feet went to the U.S., 403 million feet was sold to Japan and 226.6 million feet was exported to the United Kingdom. The European Common Market accounted for 104 million feet while 227.6 million feet was sold to other countries.

Total lumber exports in 1974 were 6.4 billion board feet.

Pulp and paper productions in B.C. last year was 1.6 million tons compared with 2.1 million tons in 1974.

Deadbeats No Problem

VANCOUVER (CP) — The director of conference services for Habitat said Thursday that hotel bills left unpaid in Stockholm after the 1972 United Nations environment conference were almost nil.

Herb Graves said the suggestion that delegates had used hotels and left unpaid bills was denied by Swedish authorities when he made inquiries into the allegations in the early months of organization for the Habitat Conference on Human Settlements set for Vancouver May 31 to June 11.

NO STRANGERS TO CRUDE OIL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ken Hall, president of Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co., said Wednesday his company is prepared to go to extra lengths to prevent damage to the environment that could result from a proposed oil port at Prince Rupert.

"We are no strangers to crude oil. We know what we're doing," said Hall in response to criticism of his company's proposal by the Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society of Vancouver.

Trans Mountain is studying the possibility of building an oil port at Prince Rupert and a pipeline from there to Edmonton to ship Alaskan and Middle East oil into the North American pipeline systems.

Hall said he would insist that all ships entering the proposed port meet Canadian Ministry of Transport standards for Canadian inland waters.

Hall also said that all Alaska crude coming to the port would have to be carried by U.S. ships because the U.S. Jones Act requires that only U.S. ships because the U.S. for consumption in the United States.

Early estimates place the 36-inch line's coast at between $400- and $500-million.

PAY MORE WARNING

Agriculture Minister Don Phillips warned British Columbians Thursday to expect to pay more if they want the farming industry to continue in the province.

"We must be prepared either in the grocer ystore or through tax dollars," he said.

During debate on the budget, Phillips said the farming industry in B.C. comprises people who want to make it or break it on their own without government handouts.

He said there are numerous problems which are beyond the control of independent farmers due to the diversification of the industry.

B.C. farmers produce almost every type of food throughout the province and they're at a distinct disadvantage because they must compete with others who import lower-priced foods.

Phillips said the cost of producing food in B.C. is far higher than anywhere else in North America and in many parts of the world.

He said that in Washington, for example, farmland is 43 per cent cheaper, labor is 25 per cent cheaper and equipment is between 10 and 20 per cent cheaper.

During the same speech, the minister also warned provincial marketing boards to be on their toes because the government intends to place them under constant scrutiny.

Proposed Budget 'Work of Fiction'

British Columbia's proposed 1976-77 budget is a "work of pure fiction" and imposes savage increases on the average person, Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) said Thursday.

"I do not think for one minute that this is a people's budget or a fair budget," he said.

Three pages later, figures show that capital and repair investment increased by 8.9 per cent in 1975, he said.

"There you have two inconsistent statements in a budget which is really a work of pure fiction."

He said the budget also indicates that the province's real growth in 1975 was up by one per cent while the national increase was zero.

Macdonald said the government was "pouring gasoline onto the raging fires of inflation" by increasing such things as automobile insurance and sales tax after making a deal with Ottawa which would exempt those items from the federal anti-inflation guidelines.

He said the government is increasing costs for ordinary people through taxes but not tapping the province's resources.

The budget for legal services in B.C. is not generous, but there are major problems in the legal system, he said. There can't be equality for rich and poor before the law without legal services.

"We will once again have, in this province, cash register justice."

For a short period during Macdonald's speech, every cabinet minister had deserted the legislature.

"I've managed to drive all of the cabinet of B.C. out," he said, "I couldn't have done better if I'd shouted fire."

Don Phillips, minister of agriculture and economic development, said the number one aim of his economic development department is to restore investor confidence in the province.

He said since the Social Credit government took office the number of new companies formed in Victoria is up 33 per cent over last year and the number of companies expanding is up 26 per cent.

"People again have faith in their province," he said. "People again have courage."

Macdonald said the numbers of new companies or expansions increase every year.

Eileen Daily (NDP — Burnaby North) said the budget shows the new government has no commitment to quality education.

She said the 9.4-per-cent increase in funds for public schools leaves school boards with the tough choice of placing an exorbitant financial burden on local taxpayers or making major cutbacks in services.

4-DAY BREAK FOR SERVANTS

Provincial government employees will get a four-day weekend next week, with government offices closed for Good Friday and Easter Monday.

There will be no guided tours of the Legislative Buildings during the holiday period but the Provincial Museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. from April 16 to April 19 inclusive.

NDP Plan Backed By Shrum?

Special consultant Dr. Gordon Shrum has decided no changes should be made in plans for the provincial government office-courthouse development in downtown Vancouver, Gary Lauk, (NDP —Vancouver centre) said Thursday.

Lauk said that Public Works Minister Alex Fraser has received an interim report from Shrum, who was appointed in February to review plans for the three-block development. Fraser told the legislature he has received the report, but would not disclose its contents.

Lauk said he believes the report "recommends absolutely no changes whatsoever" from the NDP plan for the area.

"It makes me want to know why $225 a day is going to Dr. Shrum when he has found that the plans are perfectly acceptable," said Lauk.

Toronto Man Named B.C. Rail Arbitrator

Toronto arbitrator Owen Shime will chair a three-man board of arbitration between the B.C. Railway and three unions.

Labor Minister Allan Williams appointed Shime chairman after the union and management nominees were unable to agree on a chairman between themselves.

John Brown, a part-time member of the B.C. Labor Relations Board, was chosen by the Teamsters Union, the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way and the International Union of Operating Engineers as their representative on the arbitration board, and Amres MaGregor, retired CP Rail official, was chosen by BCR.

The agreement to submit the railway dispute to arbitration came on March 26 when the Teamsters agreed to stop their work stoppage and let the railway begin operations again.

Efforts Boosted to Get Vaccine

OTTAWA (FP) — With the outbreak of swine influenza spreading in the United States, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Thursday negotiations have been stepped up with "various foreign sources" to obtain adequate supplies of vaccine to provide a mass immunization in Canada this fall. All age groups in Canada will be covered by the program, except children under 16 years of age, he added.

Dr. P. R. Rynard (PC—Orillia) said he is worried that Canada will not have sufficient supplies of the vaccine available in the fall to cover the 18,000,000 or more Canadians that should be vaccinated.

There has been a fresh outbreak of swine flu in Virginia, he added.

Vaccine makers in the U.S. will be "pushed" to provide sufficient supplies to provide for the mass immunization of all people there, he claimed.

If U.S. laboratories cannot supply Canada's needs the Canadian government should be urging Connaught Laboratories in Toronto and the laboratory in Montreal which can produce 300,000 doses, to swing into production as soon as possible, Rynard stressed.

Lalonde said his officials are constantly in touch with the Connaught laboratory and the Montreal laboratory.

At the same time they are now exploring the possibility of getting supplies of the vaccine from sources other than the U.S.

The minster did not want to mention the names of other countries.

Asked why the emphasis was on imported vaccine Lalonde said there was a cost factor and it was doubtful that the production facilities in Canada could be geared up in time for the needed amounts.

New Clerk For Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond L. du Plessis of Ottawa has been named law clerk and parliamentary counsel to the Senate, Senator Keith Laird, chairman of the Senate internal economy committee, announced Thursday.

A native of Montreal, du Plessis, 47, has been senior advisory counsel to the justice department's legislation section since 1967.

He replaces E. Russell Hopkins, who retired recently.

CP Bureau Vetoes Overtime

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of employees at the Ottawa bureau of The Canadian Press, the national newsgathering co-operative, has voted to refuse to work overtime in protest at what they say is lack of progress in contract negotiations between the company and the Canadian Wire Service Guild.

The decision by the employees was made Wednesday night. There was no indication how long the protest will last.

The Guild was certified last Sept. 17 as bargaining agent for most employees of The Canadian Press and Broadcast News Ltd., CP's associate company which serves private broadcasters in Canada. Negotiations, which started Nov. 26, continue under direction of a federal conciliation officer.

New Mackasey Post Seen as Key Role

By PETER THOMSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The appointment Thursday of Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey to the consumer affairs portfolio permits him to become a key interpreter of Prime Minister Trudeau's new society and the minister designated to help make the free enterprise system work.

Mackasey will also continue as postmaster-general until a major cabinet shuffle this summer, Trudeau stated.

He said a new postmaster-general will be named in the shuffle and Mackasey will continue in the consumer and corporate affairs portfolio.

Trudeau agreed that he does not believe in doubling-up responsibilities, but said Mackasey is "a strong minister" and it is for a short period.

Mackasey told reporters he was reluctant to leave the Post Office portfolio immediately because there are several projects under way which he would like to see farther advanced.

He referred specifically to advancement of industrial democracy, a minor re-organization and a strong marketing push as well as several task forces that are studying other areas.

In his new role as consumer and corporate affairs minister Mackasey promised a strong voice for the free enterprise system.

He referred to the banking business as one where he would like to see increased competition which is perhaps now being restricted by "too many regulations.

"They want more competition and I want to see them compete, to the advantage of the consumer," Mackasey said.

He acknowledged that one of his major tasks will be to introduce the long-delayed second part of the Competitions Act.

Mackasey did not promise immediate legislation, however.

He said he wants a series of studies done and a report, probably produced by this fall and perhaps made public. Legislation would flow from that — probably next spring.

"I would rather have good legislation next spring than a rush job now," he stated.

The whole area of developing more competition has a lot to do with evolution of the new society to which Mr. Trudeau has referred, Mackasey commented.

"The objective is to make the free enterprise system work the way it is supposed to," he stated.

Mackasey declared that he has the consumers' interest at heart and noted that he has generally been involved in people-oriented portfolios in the eight years he has served in the cabinet.

Come-By-Chance Lineup Growing

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government has joined the long list of creditors interested in recovering money from the bankrupt oil refinery of New York industrialist John Shaheen at Come-By-Chance, Nfld.

Ottawa, ranked among the much shorter list of "preferred creditors" which are likely to recover most, if not all, of their money, is claiming that Newfoundland Refining Co. Ltd. and sister company Provincial Refining Co. Ltd. controlled by Shaheen owe the federal treasury between $12 million and $16 million under the federal government's import compensation program.

The Come-By-Chance refiner was automatically paid import compensation on imported crude oil for oil products and the bankrupt refinery now would like to export.

Normally the compensation payments would have been recovered from later crude oil imports, by reducing the compensation payment accordingly.

The federal government, which a month and a half ago suspended all the refinery's crude oil product export licenses, now won't lift the export suspension unless the trustees nor the bankrupt refinery first pay back the $12 million to $16 million in compensation advances, since the refinery is no longer importing any more crude oil.

Ottawa would in fact be satisfied if the oil products in question — some 3.2 million barrels, including about 1.3 million barrels of heavy fuel oil and 500,000 barrels o motor gasoline — were just sold in Canada.

That way, the government would no longer figure that any money was owed the treasury, since the original compensation payments were made on the assumption the oil products made from the crude oil would be used in Canada.

EMOTIONALISM FAKED, LANG SAYS

OTTAWA (FP) — Transport Minister Otto Lang accused a Conservative MP Thursday of taking advantage of "emotionalism" surrounding fatal fishboat accidents off both coasts.

He also said it was "completely unfair" of James McGrath (PC — St. John's East) to suggest that the government could do everything required to end the tragedies which occur every fishing season.

Lang said that his department will continue to improve its marine rescue capability even while cabinet is considering new proposals to reorganize the present system.

McGrath was questioning the minister on his admission that the marine search and rescue organization on the East and West coast is no longer "entirely adequate."

The Tory MP demanded to know what immediate steps Lang will take to improve rescue capability until the new organization — placing a heavy reliance on a voluntary rescue auxiliary invloving fishermen themselves — is set up.

The minister protested that his department is making "ongoing improvements" and will continue to do so. But he added that "a great deal of co-operative effort is required" not only by government forces, but by private vessels and aircraft as well.

Fish Union Leader Blasts Coast Guard

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Nichol, secretary-treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, Thursday agreed with Transport Minister Otto Lang that the marine search and rescue organization is inadequate.

"This is what we've been saying for years," said Nichol.

"We have always claimed that the Canadian coast guard is inadequate and that the real coast guard on this coast is the commercial fisherman.

"The Canadian coast guard is a token thing, with most of the major rescues being done by the fishermen or the U.S. coast guard."

Nichol said the idea of a voluntary coast guard auxiliary was a good one, if it was not used as a method of sidestepping a well-equipped, well-trained, full-time rescue service.

He said the use of fishermen in a voluntary auxiliary is a good idea because they have been used in rescue work for many years.

"Fishermen could take training courses and be part of a well-organized service but they should not be asked to take the place of a highly-trained and well-equipped coast guard, Nichol said.

Major Lou Villenouve, the officer in charge of air and sea rescue operations on the West Coast, said the growth of the demands on the coast guard has outpaced its expansion.

INDUSTRY BENEFIT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian industry stands to benefit more from the acquisition of the U.S. Lockheed Orion patrol plane than it would if the government decided to use the Canadian DASH-7 for patrol work, Defence Minister James Richardson said Thursday.

He also told New Democrat Leader Ed Broadbent in the Commons that it would take seven or eight DASH-7s, the short takeoff and landing STOL aircraft being developed by de Havilland Aircraft Ltd., in Toronto, to do the job of two of the Orion LRPAs the government wants to buy.

The minister later told reporters that talks with banks on the possibility of Lockheed borrowing up to $300 million to finance the first 2½ years of a $1-billion Orion project are proceeding on schedule.

In the Commons, the minister was responding to a continuation of the NDP argument that Canada does not need the 18 highly-sophisticated planes.

MP Fears Lockout

OTTAWA (FP) — Air Canada is contracting our finance work in Winnipeg, Vancouver, Toronto and Ottawa in preparation for a lockout of its employees at the finance branch in Winnipeg, Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) charged Thursday.

He introduced a motion calling on the commons to direct Transport Minister Otto Lang to instruct Air Canada to stop contracting out finance work.

But he failed to get unanimous consent for his motion and it was dropped.

McKenzie said this problem of trying to negotiate a reasonable contract with the finance employees of Air Canada has been before the house for over a year.

Reactor Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — It may take two months before a decision is made on a contract for sale of a nuclear reactor to Argentina, Energy Minister Gillespie said Thursday.

"All I can say is that the matter is still pending," the minister said as he emerged from the cabinet's regular weekly meeting.

He said it could take up to two more months "to iron out final details" on the renegotiated agreement. Some further talks with the Argentinians are possible, he added.

Last week, the minister said an agreement had been successfully negotiated substantially reducing the debt faced by Atomic Energy Canada Ltd., The federal nuclear agency.

A FURTHER DELAY FOR DAIRY POLICY

OTTAWA (FP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has postponed announcement of the government's new dairy policy until next week.

There have been repeated reports that Whelan is having trouble obtaining cabinet approval of the amount of money he and the dairy industry want to subsidize industrial milk production.

The problem is that at last year's support price levels production increased dramatically, producing a surplus of powdered skim milk estimated at 200 million to 400 million tons.

The government has been embarrassed by the surplus as the Canadian Dairy Commission attempts to sell the surplus on world markets for 14 cents a pound, or less while Canadian consumers who are supposed to be subsidized are paying a great deal more.

Restaurant Approved Despite Objections

Victoria city council overrode objections from a few James Bay residents Thursday in approving a land-use contract which will permit property at 225 Quebec Street to be used as a Chinese restaurant.

James Robertson, representing the applicant Lam Sau Hong, assured aldermen at the public hearing that, in the owner's words, he had no intention of running a "Chinese greasy spoon" type of operation.

Upwards of $70,000 would be spent on renovating and converting the old home now standing on the lot, a former rooming house which used to be a "disgraceful mess," said Robertson.

He said the former tenants of the rooming house were "not the most desirable type of people."

But one of those opposing the application, Mrs. Ann Leachman of 230 Kingston Street, said: "We had a bunch of hippies there and they were nice characters."

She and her husband, Michael Leachman, both said there were already several restaurants within the immediate area and there shouldn't be any more.

"The noise that's going to come out of there is going to be something terrific," he told council.

Kenneth McKenzie, of Beverly Hills, California, said he had travelled to Victoria especially to oppose the rezoning attempt, as he had last September for an earlier hearing which saw the restaurant application turned down.

Owner of four rental properties on Quebec Street, McKenzie claimed that the provision of only nine parking spaces would "definitely create a parking hazard." He, too, predicted there would be problems.

Although he said a restaurant would not be an appropriate type of development, considering the site's nearness to the high-quality Laurel Point condominium, McKenzie when asked by Ald. Helen Beirnes could not cite any examples of what he considered would be appropriate.

Both Ald. Alf Hood and Ald. Bob Wright said a restaurant of the quality described and with extensive renovations would be an improvement.

Hood said the Quebec frontage "could do with a good deal of face lifting and upgrading," and Wright said he hoped the restaurant would be a start toward the "sprucing up of the block."

On Mayor Mike Young's suggestion, council stipulated that the contract include a clause which would prohibit any type of take-out food operation.

NEW ENGINE DEMONSTRATED TONIGHT

One of the developers of a new lightweight portable engine using free-moving pistons will demonstrate its capability as an air compressor tonight at 8 in the Union Centre, 2750 Quadra.

Ron A. MacDonald, president of Vancouver-based Avalanche Industries Ltd., said chief engineer Stanley Butler will attend the public meeting along with directors and shareholders of the company.

Butler and fellow-Englishman Patrick Watson are co-developers of the free piston engine based upon an old concept and given some impetus by the British government. But according to MacDonald the government had allowed the work to lapse and it was through Avalanche — a company listed for trading in Vancouver—that work resumed.

"We found a need for certain sizes and they developed a vastly improved machine," MacDonald said.

He said the principle is simple and there are few moving parts to the engine. Two free-moving pistons — unencumbered with connecting rods, shafts or gearing — are located in a single cylinder and are fired horizontally opposed by an ignition point at centre.

They, in turn, cause air or gas at the extremities of the cylinder to compress, the effect of which is to bounce the pistons back to centre.

The action is comparable to a two-cycle lawnmower engine, except for the absence of connecting parts that convert reciprocal motion to circular motion in a conventional engine.

With the new motor, MacDonald said, the oscillating energy can be captured at each end of the cylinder where it may be used to generate comparatively large amounts of electrical power for the size of the motor.

And of equal attraction in today's energy-conscious community, the motor is easy on gasoline, diesel oil or propane and natural gas, depending on which it is tuned to consume.

1,500 Helpers Wanted

The Salvation Army has about 1,500 volunteer canvassers for its annual Red Shield appeal next month but it could use another 1,500, Capt. Stan Ratcliffe said Thursday.

Anyone willing to donate some time for a residential blitz canvass the Army plans for May 3 is asked to call the campaign office at 386-6304.

Target this year is $160,000 in Greater Victoria. Last year's goal was $145,500 and donations just passed $150,000.

The money is used to meet the operating deficit on the Army's social service institutions which include an alcoholic rehabilitation centre, a men's hostel, two senior citizens' homes, court assistance for accused people, visiting programs in hospitals and homes and a family welfare department.

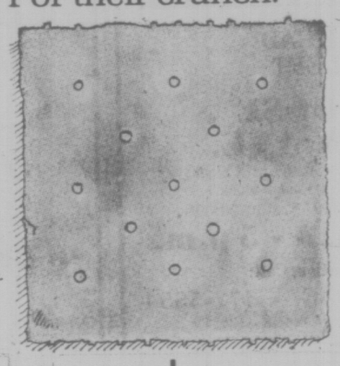
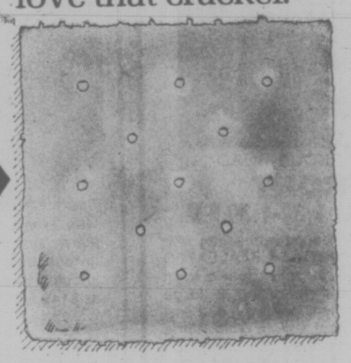
HOW NEW CHEESE PREMIUM PLUS WAS BEGOTTEN.

First, there was Premium Crackers by Christie. And for generations people loved them for their taste. For their crunch.

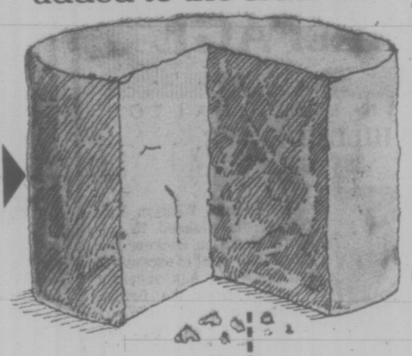


Then, as was fitting, the cracker evolved into a thinner, crunchier dimension.

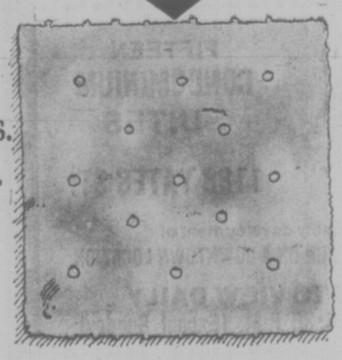
It was called Premium Plus Crackers by Christie. And soon people grew to love that cracker.



Then, because variety is the very spice of life, aged Canadian Cheddar cheese was added to the cracker.



And Christie called the new cracker, new Cheese Premium Plus Crackers.



Then to let the general public know that new Cheese Premium Plus Crackers are from the same family as regular Premium Plus Crackers, we packaged them in an identical box. Except for the colour and the word "Cheese". And this is a picture of the box.

Borrowing Bill Passes 30-to-16

After nine days of repetitive, often bitter debate, royal assent was given Thursday to a bill to allow the provincial government to borrow $400 million.

The B.C. Deficit Repayment Act, passed by a vote of 30 to 16 with Liberal Leader Gordon Gibson voting with the government, will allow the government to pay a deficit it says was incurred by the former New Democratic Party administration.

Throughout the debate, NDP members accused the government of spending money unnecessarily in 1975-76 to make it appear a huge deficit had occurred during the NDP administration.

The opposition said many expenditures made by the Social Credit government during the last fiscal year did not need to be made until this year.

NDP members also questioned the Clarkson Gordon financial review of the province saying the national accounting firm, which predicted a $541 million deficit for last year, received government instructions on what figures should be included in the report.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, who was continually accused of refusing to answer questions about the bill, said the deficit might not reach $400 million but the government needs ample money to cover it, whatever it may be.

During debate on a bill permitting an increase in provincial sales tax to seven per cent from five, Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) said it "is legislation which is all slipping backward."

The legislation is retroactive to March 26 meaning it is effective before it is actually passed by the legislature.

"Retroactive taxation should not be permitted," he said. The government is taxing people before it has authority to do so.

He said the fact that the legislation is in effect shows the government has a high disregard for the legislature.

Opposition Leader Bill King described the bill as a regressive approach to taxation and said it affects most those who can least afford it.

He said the government would have been wiser to increase royalties on coal exports to earn $200 million during the next year. The government expects to get $200 million from the increase in sales tax.

King said coal export royalties were increased to $1.50 a ton in 1975 from 10 cents in 1972 but profits of companies increased by about 300 per cent last year.

PR BOSS APPOINTED

A director of information services within the education department will take over the job of press secretary to Premier Bennett and his cabinet.

John Arnett, 45, will continue to receive his civil service salary of about $25,000 a year in his new position in charge of press relations.

Since he came to Canada in 1951, Arnett has worked for the CBC, the St. Catharines Standard, the Vancouver Province and the Vancouver Sun.

He was a public relations consultant in Vancouver for a short time and served for two years as information officer with the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the University of B.C. before joining the education department in 1975.

Although the position is usually considered a political one, Arnett will remain a civil servant.

Northern Sellout Attempt Charged

The former New Democratic Party government would have sold out the northern half of the province by signing a federal-provincial agreement for northern rail development, Transport Minister Jack Davis told the legislature Thursday.

During debate on a bill which allows the government to borrow $400 million, Davis listed reasons why the Social Credit government refused to become involved in the deal which would have meant $30 million for the province.

The former administration had agreed to the proposition during the Dec. 11 election campaign.

Davis said that under the agreement B.C. would have received a fixed sum from Ottawa, regardless of what construction began, and contributed the remainder, possibly years after the agreement was signed when inflation would have increased construction costs.

The B.C. Railway would have lost some of its bargaining power with the Canadian National Railways because the agreement said that certain products originating in Prince George would be carried to parts of the province by CN, the minister said.

The agreement did not stipulate a date for completion of construction of the CNR track and it therefore could have been postponed indefinitely, he said.

B.C. also would have been responsible for settling Indian land claims without federal assistance, Davis said.

The minister said some track would have run through Indian land and the agreement would have allowed the federal government to dissociate itself from the land claims problem.

Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) said although there was no date set for completion of the CNR track, it was understood that a date would be fixed before the agreement was signed.

He said there has always been a clear understanding between the two governments that settlement of the Indian land claims issue is a mutual problem.

Lauk said the new government destroyed a dream which people in the north have wanted for many years and the government should begin negotiations to redesign the agreement before Ottawa decides to pull out entirely.

Often copied. But never equalled.

When Westcoast Savings Credit Union created Prime 55, we became the industry leader in providing a comprehensive banking package for people 55 and over. Just check and compare what other financial institutions offer. None can compete with Prime 55.

8¾% INTEREST ON YOUR FREE CHEQUING/SAVINGS ACCOUNT

Conventional chequing accounts earn no interest. While conventional savings accounts allow limited or no cheque writing privileges. Prime 55 pays 8¾% interest, plus you can write all the cheques you wish at no charge. And there are no other service charges. Meanwhile, your interest is paid and compounded monthly.

BONUS INTEREST ON GUARANTEED INVESTMENT CERTIFICATES

Your longer term deposits receive a special bonus when held to maturity. Rates are available on certificates from one year to ten years. Here is an example of the Prime 55 Bonus paid. If you take a regular 3 year deposit, you receive the standard rate of 9¾% plus an extra ¼% bonus. So you receive a full 10% when you hold your investment to maturity. The ¼% bonus applies to all Prime 55 Guaranteed Investment Certificates and Term Deposits. All deposits are withdrawable at anytime, and all deposits are fully guaranteed without limit by the Provincial Credit Union Share and Deposit Guarantee Fund.

ANOTHER INNOVATION...

All new 1 year Guaranteed Investment Certificates are withdrawable anytime. With no interest penalty!
For example, if you start a new 1 year Guaranteed Investment Certificate, you receive the standard rate of 9½%. However, you may cash in your certificate at anytime and still receive 9½%. Therefore, if you cancelled your certificate after 30 days, you would receive 30 days interest at the full 9½% interest rate. If you hold your certificate to maturity, you then receive the Prime 55 Bonus of ¼%, so you earn a full 9¾%. Either way you can't lose.

Wind Quintet Plays

The Pacific Wind Quintet, which has been busy establishing a considerable reputation on the Pacific Northwest music scene, will appear in a spring concert at The Belfry Saturday at 8 p.m.

The ensemble has been performing together for more than three years now so that, apart from the fact that each member is a fine musician and an exceptional instrumentalist, the "seasoning" as a group has had time to develop and become established.

Among the five performers are two Fulbright Fellowship winners — oboist Eileen Gibson and clarinetist Timothy Paradise — an Eastman School graduate and member of the Casenti Players, flutist Lanny Pollet; a former member of the Metropolitan Opera National Company and San Francisco Opera, bassoonist Jesse Read, and former member of Dallas and Denver Symphonies, hornist Richard Ely.

All except Pollet are principals with the Victoria Symphony.

Out of an impressive repertoire that has been developed since the Pacific Winds' formation, they have chosen for Saturday's concert a quintet by the late 19th century composer August Klughardt, Three Bagatelles for oboe and bassoon by Alexei Haieff, Cassazione by Mozart, Choros No. 2 for flute and clarinet by Villa Lobos and a suite for woodwind quintet by Boris Savelyev.

Tickets will be available at the door of the Belfry, 1291 Gladstone. Admission is $3 for adults, $2.50 for students.

Hotel Staffs Fear Boost In Ferry Fee

The hotel industry and its workers in Victoria will suffer badly if ferry fares are doubled or tripled, as predicted, a Victoria Labor Council delegate said Wednesday.

Jack Sullivan of the Empress Hotel local of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers Union, told the council it may be time to put up a sign in Seattle warning tourists to "Keep the hell out of B.C."

The council delegates voted to protest the planned ferry fare increase and ask that the federal government take over all costs involved in the ferry service, arguing that the ferry system is part of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Vimy Veterans Honored Tonight

The Sidney unit of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada tonight will celebrate the 59th anniversary of the battle of Vimy Ridge.

Their guests will be 31 patients from the Royal Jubilee Hospital's Memorial Pavilion and four of the veterans' wives.

This is the third party given for the veterans in a week.

The first was Saturday afternoon in the hall of the Esquimalt Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion. The party was attended by 37 patients and four of their wives.

Four members of the Old Contemptibles were among the veteran patients from the pavilion and the Gorge Road Hospital that were honored that evening at the annual membership night of the Victoria unit of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada.

Six Months Added

A visit to Victoria for three days last month wound up costing a 34-year-old Victoria area man an extra six months in prison Thursday.

William Henry Pepper was sentenced by Judge Blake Allan after pleading guilty to a charge of being unlawfully at large from William Head institution March 8 when he was due back from a three-day temporary absence permit.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the permit allowed Pepper to visit his brother and the Victoria Lifeline project. He said Pepper, who was arrested March 24 by Victoria police, was serving eight years imposed in 1973 for possession of heroin for the purposes of trafficking.

From the cool upland vineyards of the mountain.

Riesling wines are made traditionally from grapes that thrive in the cooler areas of the world, particularly in Germany's Rhine Valley where they've been traced back to the days of the Romans.

That's why Calona's Mountain Riesling is made from grapes grown on the cool side of the mountain in the uppermost areas of our Okanagan Valley vineyards.

The stony soil, the cool nights, the high elevation and the gentle sunshine of our valley virtually duplicate the ideal growing conditions of the Rhine Valley.

Mountain Riesling is light, delicately flavoured and naturally dry. Try a bottle, well chilled, and judge for yourself the distinctive character of a true Mountain wine.

Mountain Riesling. From Calona Wines.

CIA MYSTERY LINK ON LOCKHEED PROBED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. commerce department has asked the CIA about alleged agency links to a mysterious Japanese figure who was reported to have received $7 million in bribes from Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

While Lockheed was agreeing Thursday to supply Congress with the names of foreign officials it bribed, Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson said he had asked the CIA to deny or confirm published reports that the CIA is linked to Yoshio Kodama, the Japanese official.

Richardson also told the Senate banking committee the new cabinet-level study committee he heads on questionable corporate payments overseas will hold its first session Monday.

In a related matter, Lockheed told Senate investigators it will comply with a subpoena demanding the names of officials in Japan and other countries who were paid millions of dollars in bribes.

The Senate foreign relations committee subpoena is said to request answers to a number of questions asked two months ago by Senator Charles Percy of Karl Kotchian, then Lockheed's chief executive officer.

Treasury Secretary William Simon said the intelligence division of the Internal Revenue Service is investigating 34 corporations "to determine if illegal payments were fraudulently claimed as tax deductions or credits."

TV: 'Pollution of Mind'

BOSTON (UPI) — Television violence has polluted the minds of American children and is a major cause of death and injury among young people, a prominent health economist charged Thursday.

Writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, Dr. Anne Somers of Rutgers University called for "an attack on this new risk factor — pollution of the mind — which has contributed to an epidemic of youthful violence that seriously threatens the health of American youth."

Dr. Somers, a community health specialist, cited statistics showing an alarming increase in violent deaths among persons aged 15 to 24.

"Television has become the medium for children and it is difficult to overstate its influence on them," she said.

She said low income children spend more time in front of the television set than children from other homes.

According to her statistics the death rate in the 15-to-24 age group grew by 19 per cent from 1961 to 1974 — "entirely due to deaths by violence."

She said 18,000 young Americans died in auto accidents during 1973. During that same year 5,182 were murdered and 4,098 committed suicide. She said that 425 youths between the ages of 5 and 14 were murdered in 1973 and another 342 between the ages of 1 and 4 were murdered.

In New York City the number of children arrested for murder in 1973 tripled between 1964 and 1973. The numbers arrested for robbery increased from 1,279 in 1964 to 4,449 in 1973.

"It is this almost total immersion in the home setting, combined with the audiovisual impact, that sets television apart from other entertainment media and necessitates special consideration as a risk factor influencing the health of American youth," she said.

"For a considerable proportion of American children and youth, violence has become a major health problem. For an alarming number it is a way of life," she said.

Last December, Dr. Michael Rothenburg of the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle, a pediatric psychiatrist, wrote in the Journal of the American Medical Association that "the time is long past due for a major organized cry of protest from the medical profession in relation to what, in political terms, is a national scandal."

Jews Arrested Over Protest

NEW YORK (WP) — A small group of militant Jewish protesters was arrested at the Soviet United Nations Mission Thursday night after defying a warning by U.S. ambassador William Scranton that U.S. authorities might take new legal action against demonstrators who harass foreign officials.

However, the legal confrontation the protesters had sought as a way of dramatizing their professed right to carry placards containing "abstract" threats against the lives of Russian diplomats failed to materialize.

Instead, police arrested the protesters on simple disorderly conduct charges for shouting in violation of court restraining order issued in 1971.

The signs carried by members of the JDL, considered by city police to be the most militant of several Jewish anti-Soviet organizations here, contained such slogans as "death to the Russians' Firstborn" and "Seize Russian hostages."

Layoffs Or Paper Will Fold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Star has told its 1,700 union employees the newspaper will be shut down unless they accept an immediate salary freeze and 215 layoffs.

The financially-troubled afternoon newspaper says it has been suffering deficits of about $1 million a month and had losses totalling $9.5 million for 1975.

Publisher Joe Allbritton proposed the economy measures Thursday after negotiations with union leaders over the last two weeks at the offices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The labor leaders were said to have been allowed to inspect the company's financial ledgers to assure their memberships of the extent of the paper's economic difficulties.

The economy moves are designed to save the Star $5.9 million a year.

All Star unions have to agree to the Allbritton proposal if the shutdown is to be avoided, sources said.

The 272 Star printers will vote Sunday on a proposal that includes a reduction of 100 jobs.

Indian Musician At Art Gallery

Featured musician in a concert of classical East Indian music at Victoria Art Gallery on Saturday is Ustad Zia Mhiuddin Dagar, eldest son of a musician at the court of the Raja of Udaipur.

The family has been famous for centuries as court musicians.

Ustad Dagar is best known for his mastery of the rudra vina, which is his own modern adaptation of the most ancient Indian string instrument. He has been an artist with All-India Radio for many years.

In 1968-69 he taught at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., and has been a visiting artist at University of Washington school of music since January, 1975.

His accompanist, performing on the pakhawaj, is Raja C. Singh. He is also with All-India Radio and has accompanied the most noted musicians of India on world tours.

Co-sponsor of the concert is the University of Victoria music department. General admission is $2 and starting time is 8:30 p.m.

THE MALE SECRETARY IS STILL AROUND

Male secretaries haven't entirely disappeared from offices.

The National Secretaries Association has a number of male members, says Judy Scott, head of the publicity committee for an educational seminar Wednesday at the Canterbury Inn sponsored by the Victoria chapter.

"At our international conferences there are often men in attendance," she said.

Seventy or 80 years ago most secretaries were men.

The seminar starts at 5:30 p.m. and will include an address on Motivation by Frank Mallory, who teaches a business course at Camosun College, and Planning for Career Growth by Ann Reay, who works for the attorney-general's department.

Registrations may be made up to the start of the seminar, said Mrs. Scott.

SPY TAUGHT IN CANADA

Times News Service

WASHINGTON — James Frederick Sattler, who admitted to being a spy for East Germany, is believed to have left the United States for Mexico within the past few days, reliable sources said Thursday.

Sattler, whose activities became known after he registered with the justice department as a paid agent for East German intelligence services, disappeared from his suburban Washington apartment earlier this week.

A political scientist, Sattler claims to have been a student and teacher at several Canadian universities.

Sattler admitted he began selling information to the Communist government in 1967.

If Sattler's statements to U.S. authorities are true, he was working for the East German government while he lived in Canada, where he may have been recruited by East German intelligence.

Sattler's personnel file indicates he received a doctorate in political science from the University of Alberta in 1971. He is believed to have moved to Canada about 1968.

Sattler also says he taught at Carleton University in Ottawa and at the University of Toronto.

Trackshoes Needs Help

Lamps, radios, records, rugs, clocks, rakes, shears, ski poles, tennis raquets, bikes, backpacks and cameras — all items which you may have tucked away in basement or closet, attic or garage and don't want anymore.

Operation Trackshoes wants them. It needs them for a garage sale likely next month, president Judith Armstrong said Thursday.

Operation Trackshoes will hold its annual track and field meet for the handicapped June 11 to 13 and about 700 are expected to take part.

The program will need a budget of about $18,000 so anyone with a contribution for the garage sale is asked to call 386-9233 and arrangements will be made to pick items up.

A provincial grant, which was $3,000 last year, is in doubt this year, she said.

Are You Set To Pool It Workdays?

Measures to encourage extensive use of car pools are being studied by city and regional officials, following a visit to Seattle earlier this week.

Ald. John Hayes, chairman of Victoria's traffic and transportation planning committee, said Thursday the main purpose of the trip was to see how Seattle's one-year-old car pool system is working, and whether a similar program can be adopted locally to ease acute traffic and parking problems.

He was accompanied by city traffic engineer Derek Wild and Capital Regional District planner Peter Hammer.

"The Seattle traffic department people gave us quite a fascinating insight into some of their problems, and we've brought back tons of material to study," he said.

Hayes noted that the U.S. city has spent $3 billion on roads since 1961, which breaks down to $40,000 for every registered vehicle. Last year the city decided that even more roads were needed, but a referendum for a major road expansion program was turned down by 80 per cent of the electorate.

That started a search for cheaper alternatives, including ways to encourage wider use of car pools.

Hayes said there were already some 8,000 pools operating at that time, and in the year since the city's official program started another 2,000 have been added.

A number of incentives are offered for commuters to join car pools, including free use of downtown parking structures and "preferential treatment by means of reversible lanes." In other words, cars bearing the city's official sticker can nip down one-way streets the "wrong" way on special lanes.

To qualify for such benefits under Seattle's "Pool-It" system, a minimum of three persons per car is laid down. Hayes said frequent checks are made and so far there appears to be no sign that commuters are cheating the rules.

As there is a free downtown bus service, the city has found that most applications to join car pools come from outside the five-mile circle.

"So you have a five-mile radius which is public transit territory and outside that people will consider pooling," he said.

Hayes was non-committal about the Seattle ideas which might be copied or adapted for use in Greater Victoria. The preferential lane principle was a possibility, but he was skeptical that free downtown parking could be provided as an incentive to poolers.

He said car pools could be organized for longer-distance commuters, including residents of the Saanich Peninsula and the western communities of Colwood, Langford and Metchosin.

But it will require a co-ordinated approach by municipalities, the regional district and the provincial government, and to be at all effective the program must be accompanied by significant improvements in public transit.

Cable Fee Hike

A $1 a month hike in Central and North Saanich cable TV fees has been authorized by Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission.

Subscribers to Saanich Cablevision Ltd., operating in Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney, will pay $6 a month for the service, which has been expanded to include community programming on channel 10.

The CRTC also approved installation fee of $15 for the first 150 feet of overhead cable or 100 feet of underground cable, with additional charges for longer lengths, an increase from the flat $15 fee.

Other approvals affecting Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands include a $2 rate increase to $8 for Salt Spring Cablevision (1972) Ltd., with installation up $6 to $25.

Night in Jail Called 'Inexcusable'

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A Victoria lawyer levelled sharp criticism Thursday at the lack of facilities here to handle people found not guilty of criminal offences because of mental illness.

Mike Hutchison said it "borders on the inexcusable" that a person specifically remanded by the court to be held in custody at a mental clinic on the mainland had to spend a night in jail here "because it happened at 4 p.m. rather than 1 p.m. or 10 a.m.

This occurred this week when Hutchison's client, Robert Schoeman, was found not guilty of raping one woman and common assault on two other women by reason of insanity

County court Judge Peter Millward directed that Schoeman be held in custody at the provincial forensic psychiatric institute at Essondale pending a decision by the cabinet on his future.

Hutchison said in an interview Thursday there are two reasons why Schoeman spent a night in jail: Courts end at 4 p.m. each day "in accordance with the union contract," leaving disposition of matters such as Schoeman's transfer to the mainland until the following day, and the absence of suitable facilities in Victoria.

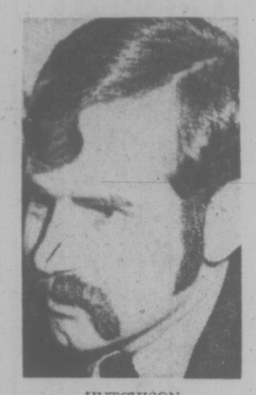
He said Schoeman was prepared for and understood why he had to spend a night in jail, but he wondered if that would apply to other persons in similar circumstances.

"I wonder what would happen to a dangerous criminal psychopath . . . who had to be strait-jacketed, would they hold him in city cells or make other arrangements," asked Hutchison.

He said there is "an inexcusable lack of facilities" in Victoria for people found by courts to be sick rather than criminal and "an apparent difficulty over time" if court decisions occur late in the day and sheriff's officers put off a transfer to the mainland until the next day.

He said there "obviously seems some logistical problem" in arranging transfers to the mainland late in the day, "but there are ferries."

The biggest problem is that in an area where there is a holding institution such as Wilkinson Road Jail, there are no psychiatric or forensic facilities.



HUTCHISON
. . . no facilities

Hutchison said he knows the provincial government has been considering such facilities at the Eric Martin Institute but there are no security arrangements there "and why this hasn't been done escapes me."

TOWN TALK

It would be nice, wouldn't it, if the Anti-Inflation Board lived up to its name and set the rest of us a modest example by keeping its stationery costs as low as possible?

A skimpy six-paragraph press release announcing the board's decisions on two teacher contracts in Ontario arrived at the Times office in a massive 15-by-10-inch buff envelope, the kind used for mailing bulky legal documents and technical reports.

An envelope one-quarter the size would have been ample. Please note, AIB bureaucrats.

At the end of the stormy conference, he grinned a little and popped it back in his mouth.

Phone rings. S. J. Willis School bandmaster Ron Davies says, how about us? Every Wednesday night for about the same length of time the Coppertones have been together — 18 months — Davies' 10-piece stage band has been playing on contract at Esquimalt Legion.

Davies, who plays sax and clarinet, has three other reed players, two trumpets, trombone, electric bass, piano and drums and gives faithful rendition of mostly dance band arrangements of the Dorseys, Miller, Artie Shaw and the like.

"Are they popular?" we asked.

"The place is packed every Wednesday night," Davies said.

Several months after the widening of the Trans-Canada Highway into town supposedly started, all there is to show for it is a third-lane section about 150 yards long, just east of the Thetis Lake interchange.

Car-driving commuters caught in the wretched congestion of peak-hour traffic figure at this rate it will take another four or five years before the Trans-Canada has been widened to four lanes all the way to the Town and Country shopping centre.

By that time, of course, the present traffic will have doubled and even four lanes will be hopelessly inadequate.

Why so slow, provincial department of highways?

And why, for that matter, wasn't the job done years ago? Surely it was obvious to everyone at least 10 years ago that rapid population growth in the western suburbs would place an impossible strain on that stretch of highway?

Ottawa Last Hope —Realtor

The federal government may have to intervene directly in the mortgage market to keep interest rates from soaring, Victoria Real Estate Board President John Thomson said today.

If interest rates go much higher it will become almost impossible for young couples to buy their first home, he said.

Federal government intervention may soon by necessary to assure a large supply of mortgage funds at interest rates young couples can afford.

Thomson, who was installed as board president Thursday, said the federal government should consider the following moves in order to keep the cost of home-buying within the reach of most Canadians:

—Require lending institutions to set aside a fixed quota of mortgage funds so there is a good supply during the year. Interest rates tend to rise as funds become scarce near the end of the year.

—Permit home-buyers to deduct part or all of the interest payments from taxable income. (On a $30,000 mortgage, a home-buyer pays about $3,600 interest the first year, which would make a tax rebate of over $1,000 cash if it were permitted. This type of deduction is permitted in the United States.)

—Devise methods of keeping interest rates stable.

The provincial government could assist by increasing its second mortgage loans (to first-time home-buyers) above its present level of $5,000 at 8.75 per cent interest. This type of grant helps young couples put together the down payment.

Thomson said lending companies appear to believe the interest rate will go higher rather than lower and are moving to shorter-term mortgages.

'Wicked Business' Drains Cancer Research Support

The manager of the local Canadian Cancer Society office said today that "quack" cancer treatments publicized locally have persuaded some people not to support the current cancer campaign.

Wilf Burton singled out Laetrile, made from apricot pits, as the biggest of several "treatments" found useless in coping with cancer.

The society has had half a dozen phone calls this week from people asking what's being done about Laetrile and the possibility its effectiveness hasn't been sufficiently researched, he said.

"There are two or three organizations which are proponents of quackery and we can no longer afford to bury our heads in the sand against these accusations."

The Canadian Cancer Society takes its medical advice from the Canadian and American Medical Associations and other affiliated organizations throughout the world, he said.

And the society has been provided with sufficient evidence from the medical profession to convince it that these quack "cures" are exactly that.

Burton said that besides Laetrile, the public has been fed stories about the effectiveness "of everything from psychic surgery to grape juice, castor oil mixed with olive oil, garlics and various herbs, as well as a 'magic cure board.'"

It's important people understand there are no "miracle cures" for cancer and the only ones proven successful are the techniques now used by doctors — surgery, radiation and drugs, he said.

The quack cures have been denounced by doctors as "a cruel fraud" and by the National Cancer Institute as "a wicked business — on a par with swindling widows."

All have one thing in common, said Burton, according to reports from major medical centres across North America.

"They have no recognized value in the treatment of cancer after thorough investigation and testing."

In the case of Laetrile, it was tested again recently under pressure of its proponents and found again to be valueless, he said. It has been banned in both Canada and the U.S. because it has never passed trials required by food and drug regulations.

Burton said the complexity of cancer coupled with the anxieties it produces has given rise to "miracle cures" for the sole purpose of extorting money from patients, their relatives and friends who are ready to clutch at straws.

The answer to cancer lies in legitimate research and the Canadian Cancer Society is the only local organization raising money for projects endorsed by the medical profession, he said.

A. Yes. It's a member of the woodpecker family, found mainly in the East, and is so named because part of its diet is the sap from trees. There is also a Red-Bellied Sapsucker on the Pacific Coast.

Q. Could you find out for me what year Saskatchewan became a province? K.L.

A. Sept. 1, 1905.

UVic Standardizes Entry Requirements

University of Victoria senate has voted to standardize admission requirements for students.

Students must have at least a C-plus average in all Grade 11 and Grade 12 subjects, as an average taken over the best 11 subjects in those two grades. Course average excludes physical education and guidance.

Dean David Jeffrey, chairman of the senate committee on academic standards, said the "rationale is to remove inequities in treatment between applicants whose secondary school transcripts may show: all courses taken, all courses passed or only those selected courses which give the highest average while satisfying the minimum graduation requirements."

Senate, at its business meeting Wednesay, also defeated a motion by senator Charles Daniels to discontinue the schools of nursing and social work, scheduled to open with minimum staff this fall.

In his written statement, Daniels asked if the university could start two new schools with a total of 20 faculty members when philosophy, music and Slavonics still had not attained full faculty complements.

Only three of the 40-member senate supported the motion.

Police Get Less Cynical

Police become less cynical about life the older they get while members of the public tend to become more cynical as they grow older, a UVic sociologist's study shows.

This seems to contradict "a lot of comments by civilians and academicians about police being cynical and authoritarian because police have considerable contact with the seamy side of life," writes professor Daniel Koenig.

But the study also shows another contrary trend between police and public: as police grow less cynical, they also become less satisfied with their own life situation, especially with pay and standard of living, in relationship to males the same age among the working public.

KOENIG
. . . contradiction

Koenig and reseach assistant Marlene Martin wrote the report following two surveys in 1974, one a province-wide random sampling of public attitudes towards police and the other a sample from the ranks of RCMP officers working in B.C.

Koenig earlier wrote reports about each of these surveys and the current report represents a comparison of the surveys.

The study, entitled "Police as People: A Comparison of the RCMP and the Public within British Columbia," was funded by the Justice Development Commission.

The report also revealed that neither public nor police believe there is widespread police graft in the part of the province in which they live.

TWO DOWN was only temporary situation for New York Islanders. Vancouver Canucks' Andre Boudrias (right) watches as Andre St. Laurent (21) and Dave Lewis (25) sprawl during National Hockey League playoff action in Vancouver Thursday. There was nothing wrong with Islanders' position at game's end. They won, 3-1, to eliminate Canucks and advance to next round of Stanley Cup playdowns.

Check Those Cats

MEDICINE HAT — The checkers accomplished all that was asked of them but Victoria Cougars' opening-game success in their Western Canada Hockey League quarter-final series with Medicine Hat Tigers couldn't have been achieved without the timely sniping of Jeff McDill or the goaltending of Murray Bannerman.

The checking, McDill's two goals and Bannerman supplied the winning edge Thursday as the Cougars edged Medicine Hat 3-2 before 3,155 fans.

The six-point series continues here Saturday and then shifts to Victoria Memorial Arena for the third game Sunday.

In addition to McDill and Bannerman, that also meant Al Hill, Dennis Fenske and Gregg Anderson — a line thrown together earlier this week specifically to check the high-scoring Medicine Hat unit of Greg Carroll, Don Murdoch and Morris Lukowich.

The line that scored 213 goals and 261 assists during the regular season managed one goal — by Carroll, and on a power-play situation — but otherwise was checked to a standstill.

Murdoch, who topped the league in goals with 88, was held to only two shots on goal because of the tenacious checking of Fenske. Hill, at centre, shadowed Carroll while Anderson covered Lukowich.

Bannerman had to be the key. Medicine Hat outshot Victoria 39-31 but the 18-year-old Cougar netminder turned the tide with his puck-stopping, especially in the second period.

He turned the tide when, with the score tied 1-1, he stopped Jim Nill, who had scored Tigers' first goal, on a breakaway at the 10:40 mark of the second period.

Moments later, Jim Bertram broke in on Bannerman but the Victoria goalie again responded with a great save.

Later in the game Bannerman came up big on goal-scoring chances by Tom Bast, Carroll and, finally, Lukowich.

Victoria drew seven minors and a major to Fenske for fighting with Murdoch. Medicine Hat's only other penalty was a minor to Murdoch, offset by a roughing sentence at the same time to Hill of Victoria.

Meanwhile, at Lethbridge, a last-minute gamble by Saskatoon coach Jack McLeod paid off as the Blades rallied for a 6-6 tie with the surprising Lethbridge Broncos.

The eight-point series is tied 6-6 with the seventh game scheduled tonight in Saskatoon.

Trailing 6-5, McLeod yanked goalie Randy Ireland with 49 seconds remaining and winger Blair Chapman scored the tying goal 10 second later.

Chapman and Neil Hawryliw both scored twice for the Blades while Wes George and Bruce Hamilton added singles. Willie Desjardins, with two, Ron Delorme, Rick Peter, John Scammell and Darcy Reiger replied for the Broncos, who out-shot Saskatoon 41-27.

Kings In; Penguins Sabres Even Series

Times News Services

Two berths in the National Hockey League quarter-final playoff series have been decided. The other two will be known sometime tonight.

New York Islanders and Los Angeles Kings qualified Thursday night. The Islanders beat Vancouver 3-1 and the Kings blanked Atlanta Flames 1-0. Both series ended in two straight games.

Tonight, Buffalo Sabres meet St. Louis Blues in the third and deciding game of their best-of-three series at Buffalo while Toronto is at home to Pittsburgh in the other series.

The Sabres were forced into overtime before defeating the Blues, 3-2, Danny Gare scoring the winning goal at 11:43 of the first overtime period. The Blues had defeated the Sabres 5-2 in the series opener at St. Louis.

The Penguins, beaten by the Leafs, 4-1, on Tuesday, played the Leafs at their own game, hard-checking, Thursday and tied the series with a 2-0 victory.

In Atlanta, the Kings waited until the final two minutes before disposing of the Flames. Bob Berry scored the only goal of the game when the puck deflected into the Atlanta net off goalie Dan Bouchard. Kings won the opener against Atlanta 2-1. Goalkeeper Rogie Vachon was outstanding in both Los Angeles victories.

Goalie Ed Staniowski, hero of the Blues' victory over Buffalo on Tuesday, was almost good enough again on Thursday. He stopped 37 of 39 Buffalo shots Tuesday, but Thursday he bumped that total to 55. The Sabres had 39 shots in the first two periods to only six by St. Louis.

For Gare it was his second goal. Gary Unger gave the Blues the lead at 2:01 of the third period. Buffalo's Craig Ramsay, scoring on a backhander, tied it up at 7:35. Gare then gave the Sabres the lead, Dave Hrechkosy sending the game into overtime for the Blues with 1:58 to play.

Coach Jean Pronovost of the Penguins credited a harder-checking game as the key over the Leafs. "We weren't going to be outbullied," he said. Pittsburgh out-shot the Leafs 49-21.

Lowell MacDonald and Vic Hadfield scored for the Penguins, Hadfield's goal being scored in an empty net.

The Penguins heaped praise on Toronto goalie Wayne Thomas. "The guy's hot, no question," said MacDonald. "We'll just have to keep shooting at him, and hope for a little luck tonight."

Howatt: 'Bobby Did Work, I Just Pulled Trigger'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Garry Howatt gave most of the credit to linemate Bob Nystrom for the winning goal Thursday which sent New York Islanders into the quarter-final round of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs.

Howatt broke a 1-1 tie against Vancouver Canucks when he scored at 11:39 of the third period and the Islanders went on to win 3-1.

"Bobby did most of the work, I just pulled the trigger," Howatt said in the dressing room. "It was his work in the corner that made everything possible."

Nystrom out-muscled defenceman Tracy Pratt of the Canucks in the corner after Bert Marshall of the Islanders had shot the puck into the Vancouver end. Nystrom's pass to Howatt gave the left winger plenty of time to beat Vancouver goaltender Curt Ridley with a quick shot along the ice from 20 feet out.

"I had plenty of time to look at the net," said Howatt. "But I didn't wait that long because you can't give the goaltender time to move."

Coach Phil Maloney of the Canucks said a line change while the play was in progress hurt the Canucks.

"I tried to use Harold Snepsts and Mike Robitaille on defence when Nystrom was on the ice because they're strong enough to work against him in the corners," said Maloney. "But we changed to Pratt and (John) Grisdale just seconds before they shot the puck in (and scored the winning goal).

"We played a very good game against them and we have no reason to hang our heads. It was just a matter of who would score the next goal . . . and it wasn't us."

Goaltender Glenn Resch of the Islanders, who stopped 29 shots and was named the star of the game, said the Islanders decided to play conservatively because New York didn't want to run into unnecessary penalties.

"We took the man, but nothing extra," said Resch. "We knew we couldn't get into a penalty situation away from home."

Resch said he was lucky when Dennis Ververgaert of the Canucks hit the goalpost after seven minutes of the third period.

"I thought it was in, but when I heard the crowd groan, I knew Lady Luck was on my side again," said Resch. "He was at a bad angle and on his backhand, which didn't help him."

Islander coach Al Arbour said he told his team to play a good 20 minutes in the final period and "we can get a couple days of rest."

Arbour said the Islanders were a little too careful at times, but that was because of their respect for the fast-skating Canucks.

Squash Lovers Lapped It Up

KEN HISCOE
. . . crowd favorite

"That was really squash!"

That phrase was heard more than once when about 100 or so avid fans left the seats overlooking the main court at Sussex Squash Club in Victoria Thursday night.

They had just watched an incredibly athletic performance in which veteran Ken Hiscoe upset fellow Australian and world champion Geoff Hunt 5-9, 9-6, 6-9, 9-5, 10-9 in an exhibition match.

The fans had come to see the 29-year-old Hunt, recent winner of the British Open and top-ranked player in the world today, who pounces around the court with the speed of a large cat and hits the most fantastic boast shots off the side wall.

And yet it was the 38-year-old Hiscoe, seven-time winner of the Australian championship (the first time was back in 1960) who became the sentimental favorite of the crowd.

Hiscoe made up for his waning strength and power with an impressive display of angle and drop shots to nip his faster opponent. But he had to survive two match points in the final set to do it.

As well as providing fans with "real squash" and an array of shots that featured many they had never seen before, Hunt and Hiscoe also charmed the spectators with their natural open Aussie humor.

Once, after Hiscoe hit a very unorthodox winning shot, Hunt asked him:

"Are you taking that?"

They proved true professionals and yet there was none of the tension that marks most professional sport today.

They did their best to get out of their opponents' way in the most gentlemanly fashion and the let calls were very few indeed.

Nationals Moving In On Toronto?

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn has advised all 24 major league teams he will make an announcement today and is expected to approve National League expansion to Toronto and Washington for 1977.

The American League has already awarded franchises to Toronto and Seattle for next year but Kuhn later declared that approval of the move to Toronto would be contingent upon the AL finding a way to return baseball to Washington.

He gave the American League seven days to come up with a solution and today is the deadline.

The National League, which unlike the American requires unanimous approval to expand, has voted 10-2 against adding any clubs next season. Presumably, if Kuhn is to order the league to expand, it will be over the opposition of the two holdouts — Cincinnati and Philadelphia.

The Star quotes AL president Lee MacPhail as saying in Milwaukee that he did not know what action his league would take until Kuhn makes his announcement.

Yankees Release Vet

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — New York Yankees asked waivers this week on 16-year veteran Tommy Davis, a two-time National League batting champion, for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

BATES PLAY EXHIBITION

The Major baseball leagues opened play on Thursday and can Bates be far behind. Not much. Only by two days.

Co-holders of the world championship, Bates will play an exhibition game against Ingraham Hotel of the Stuffy McGinnis League at Athletic Park Saturday morning at 10:45.

The club has been working out four times a week under new coach Bob Burrows in preparation for the Pacific Coast Fastball League opener against Abbotsford in Abbotsford on April 24.

First baseman Pete Songhurst and utility infielder Lyall Cornett are the only two players of the championship team who will not be returning. Songhurst has retired temporarily and Cornett will stay on with the club as an assistant coach.

Of the several players trying out for places on the club, three are still under consideration. They are John Green of Cumberland, Bob Gray of Royal Oak and Don O'Keefe of Lake Cowichan.

Rick Bate and Bob Bugslag, who played for Royal Oak of the McGinnis League last season, have been released from the tryout camp.

Bridgend XVs Win Openers

Bridgend High School of Wales scored two impressive shutouts over St. Michael's University School on Thursday to open a rugby tour of British Columbia.

The visiting side tripped St. Michael's first XV 24-0, after dropping the host school second side 16-0 in the preliminary match.

St. Michael's was strong on the lineouts and the scrum played well but the backs weren't able to move the ball against the excellent tackling displayed by Bridgend, which led 6-0 at the half in the main tussle.

Meanwhile, the speedy Bridgend forwards kept the ball in the St. Michael's zone for most of the match.

Roger Jones, Stephen Gardiner, Hugh Jenkins and Steven Davies scored tries for the first side and Robin Beer was successful, on all four conversion attempts.

The next match is Saturday when Bridgend I tackles Royals Roads Military College at 2:30 p.m. at Royal Roads.

Aaron, Cincinnati Still in Top Form

By The Associated Press

It's a brand new baseball season but some players and clubs never change—like Hank Aaron, for one instance, and Cincinnati Reds, for another.

Aaron, 42 years old and in the twilight of a magnificent career, got Milwaukee off on the right foot by driving in three runs with a pair of singles Thursday as the Brewers opened the new season with a 5-0 victory over New York Yankees.

"He may be 42, but whatever the Hammer does doesn't surprise me," said Brewers' first baseman George Scott. "He's still one of the all-time greats."

The Reds, who terrorized enemy pitching last season en route to the World Series championship, picked up where they left off by hammering out 15 base hits in an 11-5 romp over Houston Astros.

"Sparky Anderson believes in hitting," said Cincinnati first baseman Tony Perez, "and we got more than enough of it."

Milwaukee jumped on New York ace Jim (Catfish) Hunter for five runs over the first two innings and right-hander Jim Slaton coasted by the Yankees with a four-hitter. Aaron drove in two runs with a single in the first inning and another run with a single in the second.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Poles Shock Soviet

KATOWICE, Poland (AP) — Poland built up a 5-2 lead in the first two periods and scored a stunning 6-4 upset over Olympic-champion Soviet Union in the first round Thursday of the world hockey championships.

Wieslaw Jobczyk scored three goals for the Polish team, which was expected to have a struggle just to stay in Group A this year.

In other first-round games, Czechoslovakia beat East Germany 10-0, Sweden beat West Germany 4-1 and the United States and Finland played to a 3-3 tie.

Billy Klatt, a former Central Hockey League and World Hockey Association pro, scored early in the third period as the Americans fought back from a 2-0 deficit to take a 3-2 lead. A goal by Hannu Kapanen midway in the final period tied it up for Finland.

Among other professionals on the U.S. squad are goalie Peter Lopresti, defenceman Lou Nanne and forwards Mike Antonovich, Tom Younghans and Steven Jensen from Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League. Goalie Mike Curran and forwards Gary Gambucci and Craig Sarner, all former members of the new defunct Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA, also are on the U.S. roster.

Salmon, Trout Returns Pick Up Around Island

Salmon fishing seems to have taken a turn for the better, especially around the southern end of Vancouver Island, and trout catches are beginning to increase in a number of Island lakes and streams as the weather gets warmer.

Jim Biggar of Summerland topped most local fishermen this week with a 28-pound Columbia River chinook taken Monday while trolling with strip, two pounds of weight and about 60 feet of line near the Becher Bay trap shack.

Other good catches landed in the same vicinity were weighed in by Juanita Brock (first fish, a 21-pounder taken Sunday on strip, two pounds of weight and 100 feet of line near Aldridge Point); Ken Jones (a 24-pounder taken Monday on anchovy near Peechey Head); and Phil Hale (four 12-pounders boated Wednesday on anchovy, two pounds of lead and 60 feet of line near the Head).

Pedder Bay fishermen are also enjoying a little better success. Ed Brownlee came in with a 20½-pounder and two in the vicinity of four pounds after trolling with a blue and silver hootchie off Bentinck Island.

Most catches in the vicinity have been made between 9 a.m. and noon while trolling with anchovies, two pounds of lead and 100 to 125 feet of line on both sides of The Race and off Fossil Point.

Chinooks averaging eight pounds are being landed right close to the Victoria waterfront with the main concentration located between Brotchie Ledge and the Brother Islands. Other catches were noted off the Flagpole area of Beacon Hill Park and right inside Victoria Harbor. Anyone trying the area should fish very deep with either strip or minnow.

★ ★ ★

Fishermen venturing out from Oak Bay are landing chinooks in the three to eight pound range (12 pounds is tops) inside The Gap as well as along the other side of Discovery Island. A great number of needlefish are in this vicinity, so the best choice for terminal gear has been strip, Tom Mack spoons or Squirts.

For variety, one can try for ling cod (to 28 pounds) on the far side of Discovery or Halibut (to 30 pounds) on Chain Flats or Constance Bank.

Ada Smith landed the biggest chinook in Saanich Inlet recently. Her 20:10 pounder was taken Saturday while fishing near The Boulder and other good catches of smaller chinooks were recorded in Indian, Coles and Mill bays as well as off Bamberton and Whiskey Point.

Most catches were made on anchovies, strip and green or blue hootchies trolled as deep as 250 feet in the afternoon.

Misery Bay and Goldstream Island waters are yielding chinooks to 13 pounds along with a few blues. Strip, minnows and Tomic Plugs have worked best.

Further up-Island, chinooks to eight pounds are still coming in from Sansum Narrows and off Crofton, near The Fingers, at the mouth of Alberni Inlet, between Denman and Hornby islands and off Shelter Point.

★ ★ ★

Trout catches for anglers using paste, eggs or gang troll and worm have been good in Shawnigan, Quamichan, Brannen, Long, Northy and most of the smaller lakes in the Sayward Forest area.

Cowichan Lake is also starting to pick up a little and some searun cutthroat trout have been taken in the Sarita River and Miller Creek.

Steelheading continues to be good in a number of rivers — like the Cowichan, Koksilah, Chemainus, Nanaimo, Qualicum, Stamp, Puntledge, Oyster, Trent, Tsable and Gold — but an ever-larger precentage of the catch consists of spawned-out kelts.

Playboy Convert Leads Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Ray Floyd, who outshot Jack Nicklaus to take the lead going into today's second round of the Masters golf tournament, has some advice for anyone aspiring to be a great athlete.

Shun strong drink, Turn your back on riotous living. Dedicate yourself to the game.

"I wish in my youth I had had the good sense and knowledge to train," Floyd said. "I would like to do it all over again. I would do it differently. You never know, but I think I would have won a hell of a lot more times."

Floyd, a one-time army brat and renowned playboy, unleashed a brilliant seven-under-par 65 in ideal conditions at the Augusta National Club on Thursday for a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the prestigious golf tournament.

He was a stroke in front of Andy North, one of the least known of the game's "young lions," who used a $2 junkyard putter in fashioning a 66, and two shots ahead of the great Nicklaus, defending champion and five-time winner who was tied with veteran Larry Ziegler at 67.

On a day when Nicklaus's chief title threats — Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf, Hubert Green and Gary Player — failed to get it going and others shattered the reputation of Augusta's 7,030-yard, par-72 monster, U.S. Open champion Lou Graham followed with 68 while Dave Hill and Buddy Allin tied at 69.

Arnold Palmer, who once claimed Augusta as his personal domain, shot 74 and Lee Trevino, struggling to crack a Masters hangup, scored a 75. British Open champion Tom Watson had bogeys on five of the first six holes and finished with a 77.

Floyd strode from the 18th green to press headquarters and told how he had changed his once boisterous ways to become a better golfer.

"I really didn't like to play golf in those early days," Floyd, 33, a pro for 15 years, acknowledged. "I was very juvenile. Now I have a wife and two kids and everything is great."

SHAMROCKS SIGN HALL

Another former performer in the now-defunct National (Professional) Lacrosse Association has returned to the Victoria Shamrocks.

Manager Norm Kowalyk has confirmed the signing of Chris Hall, squelching recent rumors that the versatile Victoria-reared forward would not be playing with the Western Lacrosse Association team

"I don't know how they got started," said Kowalyk, "but so much for rumors."

Hall has been bothered in recent years by a recurring shoulder dislocation, especially while playing basketball.

Hall, who also played basketball with Victoria Scorpions and is a better-than-average baseball performer, played with Boston Bolts last season.

The six-foot-four, 205-pound forward scored 34 goals, and 46 assists in 49 games to help Bolts reach the NLA final.

Among other former NLA players who have already signed with the Rocks are Ivan Thompson and Dan Green.

Shamrocks will open their 1976 campaign on the road, playing in Coquitlam May 1 and in Vancouver on May 5 before their home opener against New Westminster on May 11.

Newcomers Impress In Trials With Macs

The vacancies aren't many, so Victoria McDonalds don't expect any problems in rounding out their roster for the coming Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League season.

The Bakers, who will open the season May 4 at Esquimalt Sports Centre, will lose only three players through graduation.

The big loss will be the absence of Norm Baker, who finished third in league scoring last season behind teammates Kevin Alexander and Bob Cool. Baker has already signed with the senior Victoria Shamrocks.

Coaches Barry Forbes and Bill Munro may have only one problem in completing Victoria's virtually-intact lineup. The problem: who to pick from several impressive newcomers.

McDonalds formally started training this week and among the newcomers are junior "B" players Scott Browing, Kevin Kennedy, John Entzminger, Ross McKinstry, Mike Hardy, Jim Boyd and Steve Buckley.

Macs will play two preseason exhibitions before starting the regular campaign. The exhibitions are scheduled for April 25 against Richmond Roadrunners in Delta and April 27 against the Vancouver Island junior "B" all-stars.

Valcartier Holds Title

Valcartier, the Quebec representative and defending-champion, tripped host CFB Esquimalt, the Pacific rep, 15-8, 15-7, 15-8 in the best-of-five final for the Canadian Forces men's volleyball championship Thursday.

Esquimalt had reched the final with a 3-1 win over Calgary (Prairies) while Valcartier advanced with a 3-1 decision over Borden (Ontario).

Borden had finished first in the preliminary round-robin portion of the tourney while Quebec was second, Esquimalt third, Calgary fourth, CFB Europe fifth and Cagetown (Atlantic) last.

Wells Tops Battle Royal

In other bouts, Don Leo Jonathan and Johnny Quinn were both disqualified for fighting outside the ring, Eric Froelick outgrappled Johnny Khan, Bruce Smith defeated Yasu Fuji, Siegfried Steirke bounced Dean Higuchi, Wells topped Kinji Shibuya and Keith Franks and Igor Volkoff battled to a draw.

Adult Tennis Program Detailed

Registrations for the annual spring adult tennis instruction program will be taken April 20-24 at a variety of locations in the Greater Victoria area.

Sponsored by the parks and recreation departments of Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt in affiliation with Camosun College, the program offers instruction for both beginners and experienced players.

Head instructor Gordon Hartley expected an increase over the 800 players who participated last year and said the actual program will start April 26 and run two hours per week for six weeks.

Six courts — Beacon Hill Park, Oaklands, Lambrick, Reynolds Road, Royal Oak and Gorge-Kinsman — will be used for instruction and the fees are $18 for beginners and $20 for advanced players.

Registration times:

SAANICH — Gordon Head Recreation Centre: Tuesday-Friday, April 20-23, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; April 20-April 22, 7-9 p.m. and Saturday, April 24, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

VICTORIA — Beacon Hill Park courts: April 22, 2-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m., April 23, 2-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m.

ESQUIMALT — Esquimalt Recreation Centre: Saturday, April 24: 10 a.m. to noon, 7-9:30 p.m.

'15-and-Under' Women's Golf

9:44—Pat Derry, Gert Pumfrey, Madelyn McNamara.
9:58—Betty Phillips, Janie Gudewill, Edna Wondra.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Vancouver Island will be well-represented in the eighth annual Strait of Georgia race, which takes place on Easter weekend.

Deadline for registration with the West Vancouver Yacht Club is tonight but when I checked with Peter Robson earlier this week, 10 boats registered were from the Island. At that time, the entry field was 65 but Peter expects late entries to swell the race armade to well over the 120 that took part in 1975.

Royal Victoria Yacht Club boats entered under the International Offshore Rule section are Archie Campbell's Sea Robin, Fred Gardiner's Tringa, Tom Loney's Goodbye, Al Nelson's Lucifer, Bob Hosie's Meg and Greg Oliver's Distant Drummer.

Representing the club in the overnight 143-miler in the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet competition will be Mike Weir's Filey Brigg and W. T. H. Clark's Thunder III.

Also entered under the PHRF handicap are John Tarr's Concerto of the Nanaimo Yacht Club and Maple Bay Yacht Club's John Coleman in Two-For-One.

★ ★ ★

If you're in the Sidney area around noon on Saturday you'll witness the start of the first race of its kind in this area.

The Gaffers, a newly-formed group who all own 'character' gaff-rigged boats will hold the first race since the club was organized.

The boats will be using the six-mile course often sailed by the Canoe Bay Sailing Club, starting in the Beacon wharf area at noon.

"There'll be no protests, no handicaps, no start gun," Harvey Merritt, who will be sailing Hanna, the Tahitian ketch he bought from John Damgaard, reports. "We'll just get out there and go along with the crowd. The Sidney Hotel has promised the first boat home a bottle of rum!"

Harvey reports close to 15 boats are expected to take part, including the well-known Powindah skippered by Dave Betts, and a new ketch which Vic Lironi of the Brentwood Boys' College has spent four years in the making.

Appealing to the eye as they may be, gaff-rigged boats are no speedsters so, Harvey reports, there'll be no time limit set and the race may well turn into an overnight affair.

It certainly will if the winds are as fickle as last Saturday's when not one boat of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club was able to finish within the time limit.

The club has an 18-miler to Zero Rock and back scheduled for Sunday, starting at 9 a.m.

Headed by RVYC's junior commodore Jennifer Charlesworth, the club's juniors are hosting the invitational Gladwell regatta for juniors between 16 and 21 years of age this weekend.

Taking part in the five-race series at Cadboro Bay, which begins at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. on Sunday, will be teams from the Corinthian Yacht Club in Seattle, Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, West Vancouver Yacht Club, Hollyburn Sailing Club and the Kitsilano Yacht Club. Representing the local club will be Nick Thornton, Mike Angus, Tony Rose, Ian Pickles, Tim Roots, Liz Dewey, Rick Townshend and Jennifer.

The RVYC juniors had a pretty good warmup for the regatta in Seattle last weekend when they placed a creditable third in competition for the McCurdy Cup. Joining Liz on the team were David Scott-Moncrief, Ross Nunan, Derek and Ross Wilkinson, Andrew Furlong, Kim Hellwig and Don Illingworth.

Because of the regatta, the club's Laser sailors will not be racing this weekend. Last Saturday Tony Rose won the race to Oak Bay Marina and back. Finishing next were Jeff McBride, Ian Pickles and Charles Simpson.

Laser, 420 and Fireball sailors of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, will be racing again Sunday at noon in Esquimalt Harbor. Last week's Laser top-placers were Robin Spear, George Kirkwood and John Ganton.

Out at Sidney, members of the Saanich Peninsula Sailing Association will be racing again on Saturday, the first event starting at 1:30 p.m. They passed up on-the-water fun last weekend to hold a work party in Tulista Park, managing to erect all the poles for the club's dinghy enclosure.

Wings Concert Plans Just Flew Away

EDMONTON — Chuck Gowing feels "like the idiot of the year" in the wake of his involvement in attempts to book a concert here next month by former Beatle Paul McCartney.

Gowing, was the victim of a fraud.

About a month ago, he says, "this guy phoned me, using the name of a respected new York promoter and manager.

"He said he had a major act coming through and that he wanted me to check out a couple of dates at the Edmonton Coliseum.

"I checked out the available dates but I told him I could get a better deal at Speedway a local motor racing track, that he could get more than 40,000 persons there in one date."

Gowing recalled that the caller later told him the major act was McCartney and Wings.

Up until Wednesday he was ready to help stage a concert.

"I'd already put the sign up in the store where tickets were to be sold. I'd gotten $500 in change. I had all the cashiers lined up to sell the tickets.

"I lined up my security guards to go over to the bank with me when I would make my deposits from the ticket money. I was taking out $100,000 in insurance in case I was robbed of the ticket money."

"The whole thing started falling through yesterday afternoon," Ron Hodgson, president of Speedway Park, said Thursday.

"A friend of mine called me. He said it didn't sound straight. He suggested I call someone with Concerts West."

Concerts West, a Dallas, Tex., based agency, has the exclusive rights to book McCartney and Wings on their scheduled North American tour.

Hodgson said he was told that nobody else had the power to book McCartney.

Hodgson said he lost nothing in the transaction except the time and effort it took to draw up the lease.

He also said the man from New York could never have made it out of Edmonton with the $200,000 he wanted from ticket revenue.

There was a stipulation in the lease that all the money from the ticket revenue would be held in a trust fund until after the concert.

Gowing said he had 50,000 tickets ordered printed and they would have gone on sale Thursday. He said he lost about $1,200 in printer fees, art work for the newspaper advertisements that were ready to start Thursday, long distance telephone calls and promotional work.

SEN. HUMPHREY TREATED WITH ANTI-CANCER DRUG

WASHINGTON — Sen. Hubert Humphrey has been treated with a widely used anti-cancer drug to prevent the spread of chronic bladder condition his doctors say could be pre-cancerous. They also say his prospects for good health are "excellent." In repeated examination since 1968 the former vice-president has been found to have "carcinoma in situ," which means cancerlike cells that have remained confined to a single, surface site.

LOS ANGELES — Carol Burnett has sued the National Inquirer for $10 million for saying she had a loud argument with Henry Kissinger in a Washington restaurant and laughingly spilled wine on another diner. Miss Burnett charged that the March 2 newspaper story was published with an "evil motive." It said, "a boisterous Carol Burnett had a loud arument with another diner, Henry Kissinger . . . but Carol really raised eyebrows when she accidentally knocked a glass of wine over one diner — and started giggling instead of apologizing."

WARSAW — Jerzy Pawlowski, a former world sabre champion, has been convicted of spying for a NATO power and sentenced to 25 years in prison, stripped of civil rights for 10 years and had all his assets confiscated. The Warsaw district military tribunal passed sentence Thursday after a trial which began March 29.

COCOA BEACH, Fla. — Virginia Bennett, mother of Joan Kennedy and mother-in-law of Senator Edward Kennedy has been found dead in her Cocoa Beach apartment. Police ruled out foul play after her body was found Thursday, but said the cause of death could not immediately be determined. An autopsy probably will be held today.

ROME — Italian and Swiss police say they have arrested two men charged with stealing three priceless Renaissance paintings last year from the Ducal Palace in Urbino, central Italy. The paintings, Piero della Francesca's The Flagellation of Christ and The Madonna of Senigallia and Raphael's The Mute, were recovered two weeks ago from a Swiss hotel room. The arrested men were identified as Dante Gaudenzi, an Italian waiter living in Ascona, Switzerland, and Ottavio dell Osso, a trader from the Italian town of Pesaro.

OTTAWA — Dr. James Hawkes, 42, of the school of social work at the University of Calgary was appointed program director Thursday for the office of Conservative leader Joe Clark. Les Horswill, 30, assistant program adviser to former Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, was named program adviser, with primary responsibility for co-ordinating Clark's parliamentary activities.

LOTTSVILLE, Va. — The FBI announced Thursday the arrest of Richard Coffie of Ontario, Calif., on charges of stealing a truckload of tomatoes valued at $10,890. The FBI said its investigation had determined Coffie took the entire load of tomatoes, enroute to New York City from Nogales, Ariz., in the Roanoke area, without authorization from the shipper. Coffie was arraigned before a U.S. magistrate here and was released on $2,000 bond.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Whenever one makes an overcall, he is supposed to have a good five-card or longer suit, headed by no worse than the K-J-10 (or A-K, A-Q, or K-Q). The reason for this high-card requirements is that it is more or less of a command for the overcaller's partner to lead that suit, thus getting the defenders off on the right foot.

But, too often, one overcalls on a broken-down suit; and as a result, the overcaller's partner leads that suit, with dire consequences. Today's deal is a case in point.

NORTH
♡ A 6 2
◇ K Q J 9 6 3
♣ A 7

WEST
♠ A Q 7
♡ 8 5 3
◇ A 7 2
♣ J 10 9 8

EAST
♠ J 10 9 8 6 2
♡ 9

SOUTH
♠ K 4
♡ K Q J 10 7 4
◇ 8
♣ 6 5 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 ♡	2 ♠
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

On West's opening lead of the spade ace, East played the discouraging deuce. Belatedly West shifted to the jack of clubs, but he was now fighting a losing cause. Declarer won the trick with dummy's ace, and laid down the king of diamonds, which West captured with the ace. A club was then led to East's queen, but that was the defenders' last trick (South could dispose of his two remaining clubs either by ruffing them or discarding them on the board's queen and jack of diamonds). East's "lead-directing" overcall of one spade, on a jack-high suit, was a terrible call. Had he simply passed (as he should have) against South's ultimate four-heart contract, West would have made his normal opening lead of the club jack. If the trick were won by Dummy's ace, East would eventually obtain the lead via the club queen. And if, instead, declarer elected not to win the opening lead with the board's ace of clubs, east would overtake his partner's jack with the queen.

Once East obtained the lead, he would make the natural shift to the jack of spades, entrapping South's King, and enabling East-West to cash two spade tricks. The defenders would then have made one club trick, one diamond, and two spades, resulting in declarer's defeat.

But with East overcalling in spades, West dutifully opened the ace of spades at trick one, thus giving South a present of the spade king.

The moral of this deal is, of course, a simple and obvious one: if you're going to make bad overcalls, be prepared to accept the consequences — plus the disgust of your partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Reach beyond what appears to be a limitation. Make contact with active person who asks questions and goes after answers. Short journey, associated with former neighbor, relative, could be on agenda. Check fine print on any document offered for your signature.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be ready for variety, travel, unique calls, messages. Accent on payment, collection, protection of personal possessions. Investigate claims. Get money's worth. Take nothing for granted. Member of opposite sex does care and says so. believe it!

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Lunar cycle elevated—you are able to make important contacts, decisions. Your judgement is on target. Home environment improves. Views are vindicated. Family member makes major concession. Be a gracious "winner."

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Highlight subtle approach; be discreet. Aura of glamor should be encouraged. Don't reveal all you know. Keeping a secret could be necessary—at least for now. Pisces person is very much in picture. Someone wants to wine and dine you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on friendship, hopes, wishes. Fulfillment is indicated as you organize priorities. Means get down to business in connection with needs—and intentions. If single, discussion of marriage may be on agenda.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on how you finish task, close deal, make known your terms. Keep self-esteem high; refuse to be intimidated. One at top wants to lend helping hand. Know it and be confident. Avoid premature start. Get rid of unnecessary burden.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your spiritual insights, feelings come to forefront. You know when you are going; you perceive the light. Aim for highest denominator. Don't be misled by one of little faith. Leo, Virgo and Aquarius persons figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You'll be dealing in durable goods. You will obtain appraisal—you should take inventory. Sold material is featured and costs, expenditures are more important than usual. Partner or mate is very much involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Time is on your side. Don't be in hurry to reach decision. Give full play to curiosity. Make inquiries; write notes. This is fine for gathering information, investigating courses of education. A very talkative individual may attempt to "convert" you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stress the practical. Stay away from one who wants something for nothing and makes irresponsible statements. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio could figure prominently. Keep resolutions connected with diet and health.

IF APRIL 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you make new start this year. You'll be happier, more independent and creative. July should be your most significant month of 1976. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. You are attractive, inventive, original and creative—and very often you do insist on having your own way.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"It's a triangle, the corner lot at Craven Road and Tumble Trail, the same frontage on each. You know they run due east and west, and due north and south just there," said Joe. "Ideal for a house except for the old tree."

Ethel looked up. "Tree?" she repeated. "How can that matter?"

"A lot. We wouldn't be allowed to get rid of it," her husband replied. "It's badly placed. 30 feet from the intersection corner, 40 feet and 50 feet from the other two corners."

Awkward! But what was the approximate area of the lot? Thanks for idea to J. Carr, Thornhill, Ontario.

Spares the Rod

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Ford, wife of U.S. President Gerald Ford, says she was never spanked by her mother and that she has never spanked any of her four children. Mrs. Ford also told McCall's magazine that her husband has never spanked any of the children either.

Kahl Urges Canadianism In Schools

Canadian students should be taught by Canadian teachers, Esquimalt Social Credit MLA Lyle Kahl told the legislature Wednesday night.

The newly-elected member said this is the only way students will learn "Canadianism."

Saying he isn't anti-American, Kahl hoped there will be enough money in this year's education budget to provide aid for the development and production of Canadian textbooks.

Kahl was a teacher at Rockheights elementary in Esquimalt until taking a leave of absence.

"I know the cost may be higher because of the limited market, but we must believe that there is value in Canadian material for our schools," them. It needs them for a he said.

He said in his constituency many students had never had the opportunity to study their own communities in depth.

"Instead they have been inundated with material prepared by a foreign country and taught by teaches who were prepared, also, by foreigners — and administered during the past three years by a minister who was also a foreigner to the real educational needs of the children," Kahl said.

Indian Band Member Joins Duncan RCMP

DUNCAN — Lawrence Joe, a 29-year-old member of the Cowichan Indian band, has taken up duties policing various reserves with the Duncan detachment of the RCMP.

Joe completed an 11-week intensive training course and is one of 30 native Indians across Canada who have gone through the Regina program to become police constables.

He was a band constable for more than a year before being sworn in with the RCMP and a police spokesman said his training was equivalent to that of any RCMP recruit, except it was shorter because of his previous experience.

Union Employee Dies at 33

Funeral services will be held early next week in Vancouver for Mark Holtby, a negotiator for the B.C. Government Employees Union.

Holtby, 33, died Thursday at the B.C. Cancer Isnstitute, after a long illness.

A former Victoria resident, Holtby joined the BCGEU after working as executive assistant to the NDP caucus.

He is survived by his wife, Ronnie and daugher, Ney.

ROYAL SOCIETY DEPLORES OTTAWA RESEARCH 'FREEZE'

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Plummeting support for scientific or technological research and development in Canada is linked with erosion of national sovereignty in a brief to the prime minister from the Royal Society of Canada.

Science in Canada is the title of a succinct message laying much of the blame for diminished research and development on the shoulders of government which has frozen financial support following a seven-year period of erosion.

To continue government policies of this kind "is to ignore the severe emergency that already exists," said W. Bennett Lewis, president of the Society's Council of the Academy of Science, with endorsation of the president of the Royal Society, Dr. S. D. Clark of the University of Toronto.

Allowed to continue, such policies will damage Canadian research and development capabilities that will take years to reverse and cause Canada to become more dependent on foreign sources, with resulting decline of markets, living standard "and ultimately our sovereignty," the brief said.

It was presented Thursday to the government with the urging that further deterioration should be halted and research and development should be restored to a level where it can make proper contribution to the economy.

"It cannot be said that R and D has been a contributing factor in causing inflation. Rather, it has been the victim of inflation, compounded by current government policy," the brief said.

Further, it was tragic that Canada alone among advanced nations like the U.S., Britain and France had treated R and D the worst, and if the government has arrived at a different assessment of the role of R and D from what is accepted elsewhere, this should be made public, Lewis wrote.

Because of the freeze, cutbacks in spending and the erosion of funds through inflation, the breakup of competent research groups that took years to establish is threatened, not to mention downgrading in quality, scope and loss of morale.

"Canada cannot afford to depend on the scientific and engineering skills of other countries to solve its problems," the brief warned. Only a community of competent and active Canadian scientists and engineers can choose the best of outside technology for development at home, it added.

Decline has taken place in Canadian industry, government laboratories and university research programs. By 1975 government support of R and D in terms of gross national product was only 87 per cent of 1969 expenditure, when it was already too small. In terms of federal spending it was only 68 per cent of 1969.

In government-operated laboratories, the 1975-76 level of spending is 83.3 per cent of 1969, and in universities the proportion has dropped to only 67 per cent. This will drop to 60 per cent with the freeze.

Cutting back university research growth in the mid-60s was reasonable and justified, but it has developed into a trend not of slower growth but of gradual extinction, said the report.

Business Urges Fewer Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government should relax controls over corporate dividends and profits to encourage capital investment, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said today.

However, the business group says guides for wage rises must be strictly observed.

In its annual pre-budget submission to federal Finance Minister Donald Macdonald and Revenue Minister Bud Cullen, the chamber blames inflation on government spending and higher wages and salaries.

It says profits, dividends and investment have not been inflationary.

Looking to the full year 1976, the group says the weakest segment of the economy will be capital spending for new plants and equipment. Anti-inflation controls over profits would aggravate companies' problems in raising investment money.

"It is imperative that the federal government monitor the impact of controls, and provide assistance to industry in financing productive capital investment, particularly by enacting appropriate tax amendments," the submission says.

Once again, the chamber recommends that companies be allowed to depreciate their assets at full replacement value from taxable income.

It also wants the government hold its spending to the rate of increase in the gross national product — the value of all goods and services produced in the economy. Currently, federal spending plans are running at about twice the projected eight per cent inflation rate this year.

If any budget stimulus is considered necessary, then tax cuts could be considered. But if personal income tax cuts are given, they should not add to the current projected shortfall of $5.5 billion in this year.

Manslaughter Term Cut by Three Years

The B.C. Court of Appeal has reduced to five years the penitentiary sentence for a Victoria man convicted of manslaughter last June.

Curtis William Christie, who was 19 at the time of his trial, was originally charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment. The jury convicted him of manslaughter and Mr. Justice Harry McKay sentenced him to eight years.

Christie told the jury he and Stanford Clarence Wray, 53, left a pub in the older man's car to go to a party Oct. 15, 1974. When the car stopped, Wray began punching him and Christie, unable to free himself, pulled a borrowed knife and tried to cut Wray's wrist or shoulder.

But a key prosecution witness, Donald Charles McCrae, said when he loaned the knife to Christie in the pub and asked him why he wanted it, Christie replied that he needed it to "roll a wino or a drunk" and indicated an older man in the pub.

Wray was found dead on Grant Street near Fernwood Road with a single four-inch stab wound to the heart.

Yoga: A Way to Health For Both Young and Old

By NORA ANDERSON

Hatha Yoga is a system of exercises that can improve the entire physical and mental condition of the body. Unlike many Western exercises, these are gentle and relaxing. Therefore, people of all ages and both sexes can do the exercises without fear of strain or injury. It is wrong to think that an exercise is not effective if it is pleasurable.

Hatha Yoga is effective because the exercises (asanas) are performed slowly, with concentration, and co-ordinated with deep breathing. The slowness of the exercise allows not only the surface muscles, but also the inner glands and organs to benefit by receiving a deep massage.

The deep breathing prevents an oxygen debt so often incurred in activity. Since the exercises are pleasurable there is more incentive to actually spend time with them.

As I have said, Hatha Yoga is for everyone. All people can benefit from the asanas, and the benefits are many. Some of the benefits are increased flexibility, increased co-ordination, the toning of the surface muscles, the massaging and regulating of the inner glands and organs, the strengthening of the spine and supportive muscles, improved circulation, the regulating of the blood pressure, the normalization of body weight, and the lessening of stress and tension.

Each exercise has its specific benefits, and as we proceed in this series of beginning asanas, I will explain the benefits of each.

Before we begin, I feel it's important for everyone to understand that Hatha Yoga does not interfere with religious or philosophical beliefs. Other branches of Yoga do emphasize religious and philosophical teachings. However, Hatha Yoga is a system of exercise that improves the health of the body. With the body in top shape, each individual will have more energy and a more harmonious being to devote to his or her own system of belief.

Therefore, people of all religions and all philosophical beliefs can do Hatha Yoga without any conflict.

The first and most important step in learning Yoga is the deep breathing. Lay the newspaper down and quickly take a deep breath; you will notice that the chest expands and the shoulders lift.

Most people breathe very shallowly, and consequently only fill the top parts of the lungs. In contrast, Yogic breathing utilizes the full lung capacity. Yogic breathing is done with the diaphragm; the shoulders do not rise, and the lungs fill from the bottom to the top.

The diaphragm is a bell-shaped muscle; when it expands it forms a vacuum and air rushes into first the bottom parts and then the top parts of the lungs. Thus, a full lung capacity can be attained. People who sing or play a wind instrument also use a very similar breathing technique.

Again, lay the paper down and place the hand over the diaphragm. Try to visualize a balloon in your stomach. Inhale and let the abdominal area expand with the breath; do not let the shoudlers rise. The lungs will be filled with air from he bottom to the top, and the hand on the abdomen should be moved by the expansion as if it were resting on a balloon filled with air.

Exhale by contracting and squeezing the diaphragm and push, in a deflating manner, with your hand. Continue, and do not let the shoulder rise. Inhale and feel the muscle expand — exhale and feel the muscle contract. Visualize a balloon. When it fills with air, it expands, and when it empties, it contracts. There are many benefits to deep breathing: it prevents an oxygen debt when you are active, it is rejuvenating and refreshing, and it also has a calming effect on the nerves.

Next, you will learn two warm-up exercises, rocking and leg-stretching, both of which prepare and limber the body for the exercises. Rocking is very similar to a backwards somersault, but you do not go completely over.

First begin in a sitting position.

Clasp the hands underneath the knees and roll backward. It is important the spine be curved so that there is a rocking motion; also try to straighten the legs out behind you.

Return to the original sitting position and begin again. Try to keep the movement smooth and rhythmic. Continue rocking until the back feels limber.

The next warm-up exercise is leg-stretching. Begin by sitting on the floor with the spine straight and place the feet together.

Slowly move the knees up and down and try to stretch them to the floor. The whole leg should flow with the movement; visualize the legs as if they were wings and you were trying to fly.

It is important that you do not strain and if there is a hint of pain, do the exercise very easily, so that there is just a pleasurable feeling of stretch.

Yoga is progressive and you will find that, if you are regular with a daily practice, the muscles will begin to regain their flexibility and the knees will come closer to the floor.

If you find the stretching exercise easy, move the heels closer toward the body and the stretch will increase.

The warm-up exercises and the breathing are the first important steps in learning Yoga.

The first asana, known as the Cobra, will be the first of the series of beginning asanas. Ideally, one should do all on a daily basis.

The Cobra is a backward bending exercise, and as the series progresses you will find three basic types of asanas: backward, forward and neutral.

Yoga is a very balanced form of exercise and emphasizes the need for a balanced use of all the muscles, for an even and harmonious development of the body.

The exercises should not be done after eating, and each exercise should be repeated two to three times and held for as long as the muscles feel comfortable. There should be no strain or pain; if there is discomfort you are not performing the exercise properly.

When there is discomfort always lessen the position to the point of a pleasurable stretch. The asanas should always feel comfortable and pleasureable.

In doing the exercises this way, you will look forward to them and will provide a regular time for them in your daily life.

Diamond Jubilee Marked Saturday

Sixtieth wedding anniversary will be celebrated Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. David Cobb, 28 Chancellor Avenue.

Born in London, England, David Cobb came to Canada in 1905 and settled in Victoria in 1911. His wife, Ethel Rose Cobb, was born in Belvedere, Kent, and arrived in Victoria in 1912.

They were married in the old Christ Church Cathedral on Burdett Street, April 10, 1916, six week before Cobb's 88th Battalion went overseas. He returned to Canada in 1919 and since then the couple have resided here.

They have one grandson, David Yates of West Vancouver, two granddaughters Diane of Prince George and Patricia of Victoria, and three great-granddaughters, Rebecca, Lara, and Eliza.

An open house for friends and relatives will be held Saturday between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Protection Guide

TORONTO (CP) — Labor Law in Action, a booklet published by the women's bureau of the Ontario ministry of labor, illustrates how labor legislation can protect women from discrimination in the workplace. The six case studies reported in the booklet include discrimination in hiring, union membership, marital status and equal pay.

Free For The Asking

By HARRIET HART

It's a fact that homemakers never cease to be interested in a good recipe book.

The 64-page illustrated "New Metropolitan Cook Book" ("Nouveau Livre de Cuisine de la Metropolitaine") is based on the principles of variety and moderation with special attention to the reduction of total fat in the diet.

Most of the recipes in this book use skim milk instead of whole milk. In some recipes fewer eggs are called for and only nutritionally sound desserts have been included.

Besides its approximately 300 recipes, the booklet offers a food guide, weekly menu plan and an explanation of the three major types of fasts. It also lists common foods according to the predominant kind of fat they contain.

In addition, you will find a helpful list of substitutions which you can apply to any recipe. For example, you can substitute 1-3 cup of butter and 2-3 cups of milk for one cup of heavy sour cream, or, instead of using one tablespoon of cornstarch for thickening you can take approximately two tablespoons of flour.

Learning to Read Comes Eventually

BOSTON (UPI) — Children with learning disorders usually outgrow them and should not be forced to learn to read, according to a Boston neurologist.

Dr. Frank Benson, a professor of neurology at the Boston University School of Medicine, said "trying to teach them over and over to read is like banging their heads against a wall. They are simply not able to learn to read until later in life, when they do master reading reasonably well."

Specific dyslexia is rarely seen continuing into adulthood, he said. Dyslexia is the term used to cover a wide range of learning disorders with no obvious cause. Some dyslexics read words and numbers in reverse.

Film Festival

OTTAWA (CP) — The seventh annual Canadian International Amateur Film Festival will be held here July 21-24. There will be special awards for the best film by teen-agers aged 16 to 19 and for the best film by those under 16. Festival director is Betty Peterson of Toronto.

Better Water Promises Don't All Wash

By LYNNE GORDON

Water. We take it for granted, because it's always there. Just turn the tap and you can drink it, cook with it and wash with it. Fresh water is one of the richest natural resources we have in Canada. And perhaps because it is so plentiful, we don't give it much thought.

But maybe we should. Aside from polluting our waters, a serious concern to consumers in a "conserve society," we do a lot of things to water and with water that we don't pay much attention to. There's even a number of water related products being marketed with the promise of better water.

But can all those promises be accepted at face value?

BOTTLED WATER

Bottled water is becoming more and more popular but not always for sound reasons. We usually drink it believing it to be "purer" than tap water. It may not be.

Although bottled water can come from a variety of sources, it has even been known to come straight from kitchen taps.

The only thing the government regularly checks for is that it's free from bacteria. Many other substances — lead or pesticides — are not generally tested for. Most city water is checked far more scrupulously than bottled water and the main difference between the two is the price.

Although in some places people need bottled water, technology is such that practically all Canadians should be able to get cheap, good tasting, healthy water from their taps. If you can't in your community, it's time to get together with your neighbors and find out why.

HOME PURIFIERS

Another product that implies better, healthier water for your family is the home water purifier. They usually contain activated carbon but they're not necessarily a bargain either.

Although they can remove many impurities, they tend to concentrate bacteria. The organic substances the filter removes end up being a banquet for bacteria which can continue to multiply into a high enough dose to cause illness. Even letting water run doesn't seem to affect this.

Although it may be possible to have a safe sink-top filter, Consumer Reports quoted an official of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as saying, "Some are plainly hazardous and others are purely dangerous."

FLUORIDE

Most municipalities add fluoride to their water. It has been shown to be very effective in reducing tooth decay among children. Because of the controversy surrounding it, fluoride has been extensively studied and is still considered quite safe in the minute amounts added to our water.

WELLS

If you have your own well, you should test for bacteria and other substances.

Recently in Nova Scotia it was discovered that arsenic had slowly leaked into several wells and people had been drinking this contaminated water for up to 20 years.

For more information, check with your local public health official or someone from the provincial department responsible for water resources.

CHECK THE PIPES

Some water, particularly soft, is slightly acidic and can corrode the inside of your plumbing system.

If you have copper pipes, a common sign of corrosive water is a blue-green stain under the tap.

If so, let your water run about a minute after a period of non-use, such as in the morning. Heavy metals get leached into the water the longer it has been standing in the pipes.

Often hot water has more impurities than cold (sometimes because of old water heaters), so use cold water for cooking and drinking.

But when you're making a cup of tea, don't boil it for longer than necessary, because this only concentrates the dissolved substances.

WATER SOFTENER

Another gadget that's sold to provide better water, at least for washing, is the water softener. It does exactly what the name implies "softens" hard water, which inhibits the cleaning action of detergents. The soap is "consumed" by the minerals (usually calcium carbonate and magnesium carbonate that are dissolved in the water and forms into a curd or scum, often seen as bathtub ring. Detergents contain substances that "tie up" the minerals and allow the soap to work. A home water softener is a tank attached to the plumbing system that helps exchange these minerals for others that don't interfere with soap.

Softened water is not the same as soft water. The latter has few minerals but softened water just has different minerals and is not good for drinking.

The increased salt can be particularly bad for those with heart disease or high blood pressure.

Since softened water should not be used for drinking or cooking, water softeners should be attached so that they bypass at least the cold water pipes to the kitchen.

Take water for granted?

Not me — not anymore.

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Although the risk of getting into serious trouble with oral contraceptive pills is statistically small, no individual woman feels secure in counting on not turning into a statistic, however small the risk.

And as statistically-minded doctors continue to study the side effects of "the pill," the warnings of potential trouble continue to multiply.

Now it is women over 30 and particularly those over 40 who are being warned by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) that if they take the pill, they are seriously increasing their chances of having a heart attack.

Among women aged 30 to 39 who do not use the pill, the incidence of non-fatal heart attacks is estimated as 2.1 per 100,000. Among comparable women aged 30 to 39 who use the pill, the incidence of non-fatal heart attacks is 5.6 per 100,000, nearly three times higher.

Among women aged 40 to 44, the incidence of non-fatal heart attacks is 9.9 per 100,000 for non-users of oral contraceptives but jumps to 56.9 per 100,000 women who take the pill.

A second study compared the frequency of fatal heart attacks among women in the same age groups. The risk of dying from a heart attack was increased 2.8 times for users of the pill in the 30-39 age group is 4 per 100,000 in non-users and 11 per 100,000 in users.

In the 40-44 age groups, the combined rate of both fatal and non-fatal heart attacks is about 22 per 100,000 for non-users but rises to 112 per 1,00,000 for those who take the pill.

These figures are so persuasive in their implication, especially for women who are over 40, that the FDA advises that women in this age group should switch to some other method of contraception.

This is in part because the use of contraceptive pills appears to be a risk factor in the occurrence of heart attacks which is independent of other risk factors, such as cigarette smoking, diabetes, hypertension, overweight and hypercholesterolemia.

It was back in the late 1960s that it was pointed out that for some women the pill is associated with the formation of blood clots inn leg veins (thrombophlebitis) and the danger of clots traveling from the leg up into the lung (pulmonary embolus).

At the same time, it was discovered that in a small but definite number of women the pill is associated with the occurrence of strokes.

The great blessing of the pill to countless women, with all its attendant risks, must be weighed in the balance at any age against the often serious risk of pregnancy itself and the highly personal and spiritual question of whether or not to bring into the world children for whom no welcoming arms are waiting.

'Budget Beef' Catches On —And It's Just as Tasty

OTTAWA (CP) — An experiment with "budget beef," started a little more than a year ago by M. Loeb Ltd. in some Ontario and Quebec IGA stores, has proved so successful the company soon may be selling freezer orders, the company's director of meat operations said Wednesday.

"It's been very gratifying," Basil Somers said in an interview. "We've seen a continual growth in sales of the product so that now our budget beef is averaging 60 per cent of total beef sales."

Some weeks, during special promotions, the budget beef accounts for 80 per cent of beef sales.

"Budge beef" as it is called by IGA, is Canada Grade C beef. To most Canadians, used to supermarket advertisements stressing Grade A beef, Grade C might imply a substandard quality meat.

But Somers says he thinks his company has proved an aggressive consumer information program can help overcome this initial hesitancy.

Grade C beef, as IGA explains in its promotions, is beef from steers that are range fed — that is, on grass rather than on grain.

The beef therefore tends to be older and leaner when slaughtered. A lack of intercellular fat, which breaks down muscle fibre, means the meat is slightly tougher and drier.

But IGA has compensated for this extra toughness by using a tenderizing process involving the insertion of tiny needles. No chemicals are used.

They recommend as well that the meat be cooked for less time than fatter Grade A beef.

Nutritionally, there is no difference whatsoever, say experts in the department of agriculture.

As the name implies, the most obvious advantage to the consumer is price.

Depending on the cut, the meat is priced anywhere from 30 cents to 80 cents per pound less than its Grade A counterpart.

With Grade A porterhouse steak running at about $2 a pound, "budget beef" porterhouse is selling for about $1.20.

Reformed Smoker Choking Guests

DEAR ABBY: When my wife asked me what I wanted for Christmas, I said, "You'd never give it to me, so forget it. She nagged me until I finally told her that I wanted a wife who didn't smoke.

She thought for a minute, then put out her cigarette and asked, "How long do I have to quit for?"

"Forever," I replied. "But if you quit for a year, I'll be satisfied." (She was a three-pack-a-day smoker.)

Well, she hasn't had a cigarette since, and I'm really happy because I know she's better off. But now she's giving everybody who smokes a hard time.

She's put all our ashtrays away, and if we have guests over who start to smoke, she says, "If you MUST smoke, please go outside!"

When we're out and people ask her if she minds if they smoke, she says, "Yes, I'm allergic."

I'm glad she quit smoking, but how can I get her not make such a big deal out of it? — LONG SUFFERING HUSBAND.

DEAR SUFFERING: Anyone who can quit cold turkey after having been a three-pack-a-day smoker deserves a hand. But she shouldn't give the back of her hand to others who have yet to recognize the hazards of their habit — or are unable (or unwilling) to give it up.

DEAR ABBY: The hostess who was upset by early arrivals is making mountains out of molehills. Some folks are compulsive early arrivers. I know. I'm married to one. If I could sell the time I've spent sitting around in airports because my wife didn't want to "miss the plane," I'd have a fortune.

But the solution to early arrivals for a party is simple: Point them toward the magazine rack or give them today's newspaper. Oh, and assign them the task of greeting other early arrivals. That way you very neatly get the whole problem off your hands. — UNRUFFLED BY EARLY BIRDS.

DEAR UN: Thanks for making molehills out of mountains.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a chance to win an all-expenses-paid trip with me to Bermuda.

My problem: We would be flying to Florida, which I don't mind, then we'd go to Bermuda by boat through the Bermuda Triangle.

I have heard that planes and ships have been lost and never heard from again after going through the Bermuda Triangle.

If this is true, I am afraid to go because I have two children and I don't want to take a chance.

What is your advice? — SCARED UP NORTH.

DEAR SCARED: The captain and crew want to live as much as you do, dear, and if there were any possibility of danger, they wouldn't take that route. If your husband wins the trip, go. Bon voyage!

DEAR ABBY: The item in your column about people who wear dark glasses all the time prompts this letter.

Fish who live in caves and donkeys who work in mines eventually become blind. Our eyes need light, and without it, they become weaker and weaker.

Today so many people are driving automobiles and participating in outdoor sports that they may need protection from the intense sunlight. But please warn people that the constant wearing of sunglasses can be dangerous. — Cincy Reader

DEAR READER: Eye specialists feel that the human eye needs protection against the abouse of intense sunlight, and constant wearing of ordinary sunglasses will not create the degree of darkness experienced by fish in caves and donkeys in mines.

And by the way, it's a pity that most people have their automobiles checked more often than they check their eyes.

Back-Room Printing Pays Off

When over 30,000 new book titles appear on the market each year, can a one-man publishing outfit — operating from a bedroom, cellar or garage — hope to survive, let alone compete? Despite runaway paper costs and a generally tight economy, Stephen D. Brown says, "You bet!"

He should know. For the last year and a half, Steve has been busily turning out books under the highly successful Little Brown House imprint. What was once a part-time hobby for Steve has now blossomed into a full-time — and lucrative — self-publishing career.

Steve's family was launched into the publishing business by a spur-of-the-moment project; they wanted to print and hopefully sell a collection their favorite recipes. They split up the chores of editing, illustrating, layout and taking care of printing arrangements. Then they toted their wares to bookstores and souvenir and gift shops.

Their first press run of 2,000 copies sold out within several months! More books were ordered from the printer, and Steve was then anxious to attempt another book or two. The rest is history. The profits from the first several books made a sizable fund for future of book investments.

Self-publishing for a living is not exceedingly difficult, requires little investment and calls for little or no special equipment. And the rewards? In addition to the profits, you can work at home, set your own hours, answer to no boss but yourself and participate in an expressive creative outlet.

The most important question to answer before starting your venture is, "Do I have something of interest to say or offer to others?" If the answer is truly "Yes," you've largely solved your distribution and marketing problems. The big publishers only accept manuscripts when they feel the costs of production can be matched by future sales; the same rule should apply to the self-publisher.

Also, consider how many pages to aim for, possible dimensions of the finished book and the initial number of copies you want to produce. Total number and size of pages are the biggest cost factors, exclusive of such things as color reproductions, special card stocks, embossing and the like. Remember to save plates and negatives — the more books you print, the lower your cost per book.

Depending on the book you're producing, you may want to hand-letter, set on a typewriter or typeset its copy. Typesetting, of course, increases visual appeal and allows you to cram more words onto a page (which can mean a substantial reduction in printing costs). But, first take a hard look at the cost factor.

Typesetting rates range to $20 an hour in most locales, which can obviously make production costs soar unless coupled with a financially attractive printing arrangement. By leasing a composer you can set your own copy, but if you're planning only one book, the costs of doing so are far too high. Visit some printers or typesetters in your area and ask for a quote.

After your manuscript is written, edited, typed and ready for reproduction, think about illustrations. Photos and artwork with gray tones — as opposed to black-on-white line drawings — will have to be "screened" and thus will add a bit more to your initial printing costs. Your printer can explain to you the processes of screening, enlarging and reducing photos.

"Line-up" pads — which can be bought at any well-stocked graphic arts supply store — are indispensable for accurate layout work. Each sheet of card stock in these pads is ruled into small squares with light blue ink. (Blue does not reproduce when photographed for offset printing.) In blue pencil, you can mark off the areas where you want text and photos to go, and later you can glue your photo-ready copy to the layout sheet with rubber cement.

Now your book is ready to be reproduced. If you choose a local printer rather than a firm specializing in small books and limited editions, make sure you get a written agreement in advance which lists all specifics pertaining to the book's design, total cost and delivery date.

Remember: the craftsmanship of the printer you patronize will be reflected in your final product, and if his work is found lacking, your sales will be affected. Shop around among local printers and compare.

Papers come in a kaleidoscope of colors and textures. White offset paper is the most economical for a book of a acceptable quality. In general, be careful when you choose paper and cover stocks — paper is no longer inexpensive. Don't forget ink; black is the least expensive and is recommended for 90 per cent of all books.

Most small books under 80 or so pages are saddle stitched, which simply means they're stapled along the fold. If your book contains more than 80 pages — or in special circumstances — you can have its pages perfect bound, or glued to a flat spine. This costs appreciably more.

Sprial binding is used on a good number of manuals and church-produced cookbooks. This is the least expensive way to hold a large number of pages together and a volume, so bound, stays flat when opened.

When you begin to wholesale your book to retailers, they will want a discount off its cover price of perhaps 30 to 50 per cent. Leave no possible outlet — bookstore, gift shop, magazine stand or whatever seems appropriate — unaware of your work. Sometimes a buy-rack agreement with a retailer — as opposed to consignment — will seal the deal.

In your search for exposure, don't neglect mail-order companies, book clubs and book services. After you've built up a list of titles, have a catalogue printed and distribute that.

If you're looking to make a lot of money right at first, you'd better look elsewhere. When you have only one or two titles to market, you probably won't make more than $100 or $150 a month. But keep this in mind: Steve Brown's "The Little Brown Cookbook" costs 29.5 cents per copy to produce. It sells for up to $1.75 a copy and has gone through three printings in as many years. If you've got a good product and are well-organized, the profits will come your way.

BACK PAIN ENDEMIC

WINNIPEG (CP) — Lower back pain has reached almost epidemic propórtions in North America and may replace the common cold as the leading cause of missed work within five years, a Toronto chiropractor said on the weekend.

Dr. Ronald Gitelman, speaking to the annual meeting of the Manitoba Chiropractors' Association, said the trend is being caused by current life styles.

"We are continually insulting our spines by the way we walk, sit, work . . ."

Dr. Gitelman said muscular weakness caused by "people who spend too much time sitting around" is a major contributing factor to lower back pain. Furniture design is another.

He said 7½ million people in the United States now are being treated for lower back pain but there were no comparable statistics for Canada.

The guest speaker said many people are occupying hospital beds who could be better treated by Chiropractors.

Chiropractors must "educate both the public and members of other healing professions to recognize the worth of the chiropractor as being in the forefront of treatment."

"As a young professional, back in the thirties, we initially had people who graduated from two-year courses. They were very dedicated people but they were treating things they shouldn't have been treating.

"This has given the profession a bad name."

Dr. Gitelman said today chiropractors must complete a four-year course of studies at the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College in Toronto following two years of prerequisite college studies.

Premature Babies Soothed by Music

PORTLAND, Me. (AP(— The soft tinkling of wind-up plastic music boxes soothes premature babies in their sterile cribs at a hospital here as a result of a visit by two Canadian parents.

Dr. John Serrage, head of the Medical Centre's neonatal intensive care unit, says the folk songs and lullabyes soothe the babies — "The music box is there when the nurse or mother cannot be."

He said the practice began last summer when a child was born prematurely to an unidentified Canadian couple vacationing in Maine. The child was still in the neonatal unit when the couple had to return to Canada.

"As a kind of gesture, to leave something behind with the baby, they bought it the music box," Serrage said.

It was sterilized and placed inside the crib with the baby.

Then nurses began to notice the effect. Isolated in its enclosed crib and surrounded by machines regulating the crib atmosphere, the baby was calmed when thhe tinkling music played.

The music is soothing partly because the baby learns to associate it with the nurse's presence, said Alison Tito, unit leader.

"We use it at feeding time and cuddling time, so they associate it with something good. Then they relax when we turn it on."

"The babies are separated from their mothers, and we have to kind of substitute," said Mrs. Tito. The music boxes are one way of doing that, she said.

Guilt Adds To Hangover

LIVERPOOL (Reuter) — It's not how much you drink that gives you a hangover — it's how guilty you feel about it, a British specialist on alcoholism said Monday.

"People who have a negative attitude toward drink tend to have a more severe hangover," said Dr. Ron McKechnie, a psychologist with a Scottish research group. "Guilt is very important.

"Those morning-after blues will be much worse if you feel that drinking is immoral. It's not just a question of consumption."

In the Highlands of Scotland, where there are strong religious pressures against drinking, Dr. McKechnie said, the rate of admission to mental hospital for alcoholics is three times the Scottish average and 15 times the English rate.

Worldly Newcomer

The Old Dear has a new disco. Tiffany's.

Tiffany's.

And with the disco sound, you'll be dancing to the best of today's music.

Any evening, Tuesday to Saturday. From 8:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m.

And Thursday nights, it's 4/4 time. When Tiffany's features the familiar sound of the Big Bands. (Gather your strength upstairs first, with a delicious Buffet Dinner in the Empress Dining Room.)

So pick up your feet, and put on your dancing shoes.

And find out what's up, downstairs.

At Tiffany's.

Dogwood Requires Attentive Care

In a few weeks hikers and the slower moving public will be treated to the twice yearly display from British Columbia's floral emblem, the Western Dogwood — cornus nuttallii.

The spring display is seen after the dogwood leaves expand; the fall display is when all the warm colors of fall develop in the leaves before they drop. The large white bracts we admire in spring grow up around the round head of tiny true flowers which are a yellowish white, and without petals. The flowers later develop fruits which turn red.

So far many areas outside the built-up sections of the municipalities of Greater Victoria, have native stands of this lovely tree. Until the Dogwood achieved Provincial emblem status, trees were cut down on new building sites and seedings uprooted with little chance of success in transplanting. Newcomers were eager to get one into their gardens but found they were not easy to move. Now there are penalities for damaging or moving Dogwoods.

Most nurseries grow Cornus nuttallii in containers so that transplanting difficulties do not exist. By first observing how these lovely trees are placed in natural surroundings a gardener has a better idea of suitably planting one when purchased.

The first point most of us notice is that Dogwoods are usually seen facing the south or southwest, with a background of evergreen trees to the north and northeast. Think about this for a few minutes and you arrive at the fact they need that winter protection from harsh weather.

Another point to notice is that while sunshine appears a necessity for flowering, Dogwoods also need dappled shade on the trunk. This is naturally provided by the horizontal spread of its own leafy branches from ground to tip, and also by association in woodland with the native Big-leaved Maple, Acer Macrophyllum, having leaves often 12 inches across.

From these observations a gardener may decide against adding this Dogwood, figuring that only a completely open space is available in his garden and the tree will be too tall at maturity when the possible height of 40 feet is considered. But given the ground space for branch spread and backing from house, Dogwoods do thrive in gardens.

On local information from owners, light pruning can be done on branch ends in early July, after flowering, without harm. One owner took out the leading shoot to prevent further height and the tree has continued healthy and flowering.

Now a few words about the flowering of this Pacific Dogwood. From observation coupled with reports from gardeners or property owners with Dogwood seedlings, it would seem they must reach an age between eight and 12 years before first flowers appear. We have a 10-year seedling here that we now scan each fall for signs of flower formation. This may be the year.

The botanical name Cornus nuttallii is stressed because of several other fine species which also can be grown here.

Some have variegated foliage, some have pink bracts and the leaf habit is quite different. The whole genus of Cornus makes an interesting group not only to study but to grow in a two-lot city or suburban garden.

BOSUN'S YACHT BROKERAGE

More exciting changes around the Marina. We now have new coffee facilities. But our tables and chairs are still finding their way over from Vancouver. Come in anyway, pour a cup, have a walk in the sun, and look over the quality boats at the Sales Dock. Something else too, come in and meet our new Sales Manager, BOB BENTHAM, he will give you his personal attention to help you find the right boat for you. Bank financing is also available. You won't find fuel or supplies for your new boat any cheaper than BILL PARLBY is selling it down at the Fuel Dock.
BOSUN'S IS HERE FOR YOU!
Contact DON OMLID 7 days a week to aid you in any area of your boating needs. Look at these quality listings and make your choice.

24 Units—Gorge
2 Bldgs.—$395,000

This operation should gross about $80,000 this year and net nearly $46,000 before financing costs. The main building has 13 kitchen units, 2 sleeper units, and an owner's suite. It is cement block and has separate meters, (was built as an apartment, but licensed as a motel). The second block has 4 kitchen units, 4 sleeper units of the same size, and a two-bedroom house unit for family accommodation. This motel is at Gorge and Jutland, and is generally full, it is appraised at $500,000 for replacement. Big block is eleven years old and the other block is eight years old. For $3,500 expenditure you can increase monthly rentals by $250. Buildings are easily financed. Vendors may carry $50,000 second to qualified buyer. Hurry on this. Will accept clear title house as down payment. A good family operation. Completely recarpeted and painted last June. OOM-hot water heating in both buildings. Separate titles for easy mortgaging. F. The Gourmet Kitchen would be enough for someone to buy this home. For others, it might be the spacious, elegant living room or the unique 4-bdrms with built-in beds. Maybe this idea of a separate workshop (20x14) or the barn and fenced area for a horse. Or could it be the gorgeous seaviews from the three-acre lot this all sits on. Whatever it is, it is a good buy at $104,000. MLS 15336. To view, call

BEFORE THE JUDGE

The new cutback in Legal Aid came before Victoria provincial court Thursday for the first time when a 20-year-old Colwood man told Judge Blake Allan he needed more time to answer his Colwood charge of possession of a narcotic.

David Scott Thomson, 2783 Penelope, was asked to enter a plea but replied that "I approached Legal Aid and was told they do not handle possession, and I haven't obtained funds to get a lawyer yet."

Allan allowed a one-week remand but told Thomson that "you'll have to arrange to see a lawyer by then."

The B.C. Legal Aid Society, faced with a large cut in provincial financing, decided last week to stop providing help in such summary-conviction matters as possession of a narcotic, shoplifting, common assault, impaired driving and causing a disturbance.

A murder trial set in B.C. Supreme Court in Victoria later this month caused a delay in the preliminary hearing of a four-count Saanich charge against two men in connection with the Feb. 19 hostage incident at Wilkinson Road jail.

The two, Paul Desjarlais and Dennis Matthew Wilson, face two counts each of unlawful confinement of jail guards and attempting to break out of the building. Their hearing had been set for April 21 and 22 but was moved Thursday to July 22 and 23.

David Lisson, defence lawyer for Desjarlais, is also defending in the murder trial at the same time. Both Desjarlais and Wilson are serving terms for other offences.

★ ★ ★

Bail was refused by Allan in two separate cases.

The first was a charge against Langford area resident Larry Alan Preston, 32, of escaping from Wilkinson Road jail in Saanich Dec. 16 during a reported 10-man break. Preston has chosen higher-court trial on the charge and will face a preliminary hearing May 6.

The second was a charge against Courtenay resident Frederick Edwrad Poole, 17, of possession of a stolen car and making a false receipt in a purchase by credit card, both Thursday in Saanich. Allan remanded the case to today so authorities can find some place other than Wilkinson Road jail where Poole can be kept until trial or hearing.

★ ★ ★

A Victoria charge of perjury was read against Michael Laforme, 28, of 2924 Graham, who chose trial in provincial court, pleaded not guilty and had his trial set for May 5.

Laforme was charged with committing perjury during a trial Jan. 19 in Victoria provincial court on a charge of break-in and theft at a Victoria home "by swearing falsely that a certain coat" was not in the home before Dec. 23, 1975.

Defence lawyer Robert Johnston said no bail hearing was possible because Laforme had been sentenced Wednesday in another Victoria court to one year in jail in another case.

★ ★ ★

Trial by county court judge was chosen by David James Fleming, 25, of 1715 Bay, and Roy Charles Miller, 27, of 215 Oswego, on a joint charge of trafficking in marijuana March 26 in Victoria. Fleming also pleaded not guilty to a separate charge of possession of marijuana at the same time. All charges were set down for hearing Aug. 16.

★ ★ ★

In the court section of Judge Douglas Campbell, a plea of guilty was entered by Donald Gerard Lenihan, 20, of 957 Meares, to a two-count Victoria fraud charge.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang said Lenihan defrauded the Unemployment Insurance Commission of a total of $1,605 in eight benefit cheques received between Aug. 5 and Oct. 20, 1975.

He said the case was discovered when a commission employee "happened to pick up a piece of paper" on Fort Street which contained a set of instructions. Lenihan was remanded to May 10 for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

★ ★ ★

In traffic court, Brant Taylor Hoff, 21, of 4157 Hawkes, was found guilty by Judge William Ostler after a trial on a Victoria charge of impaired driving Nov. 29, 1975. Hoff was sentenced to three months in jail and banned from driving for one year.

★ ★ ★

Drink-and-drive fines were led by $450 imposed against Edward Gordon Paul, 37, of 1064 Stelly's Cross Road, who pleaded guilty to impaired driving March 25 in Sidney.

Fined $400 each for impaired driving were Victor Donald Fry, 41, of Vancouver, stopped March 25 in Sidney, and Charlene Lorraine Kowalski, 27, of 2969 Austin, Sunday in Saanich. Fined $350 each were Thomas Charles Burrows, 44, of Vancouver, Nov. 25, 1975, in Victoria, and Bruce Andrew Blyth, 52, of 1961 Fairfield, March 10 in Victoria.

Stephen Clark Lott, 19, of 1526 Vining, was fined $400 for driving March 25 in Saanich with a breath-analysis reading of more than .08 per cent. All drivers pleaded guilty except Burrows, who was found guilty after a trial.

Peace Predicted

EASTON, Mass. (AP) — A growing revulsion to violence on all sides will end the killing in Northern Ireland within five years, the Irish ambassador to the United Nations said. Ambassador Eamonn Kennedy said radical leaders were beginning to realize that violence would not accomplish their ends.

TROOPS FIGHT FLOOD

SOURIS, Man. (CP) — Troops moved into this southwestern Manitoba town early today to join the fight against record flood levels on the Souris River.

Ten homes had been evacuated by early today in the low-lying northeast corner of the town. Another 50 were considered in danger in an area never before flooded.

Occupants of a trailer court were evacuated at Melita, upstream from Souris, where a control dam was washed out Thursday night.

Mrs. L. W. Knight, wife of the mayor of this town of 1,700, described the flooding as "by far the worst we've ever had."

The river rose about six feet Thursday afternoon but the rise slowed considerably overnight.

The Souris flows into Manitoba from North Dakota, where a record level of 8.8 feet above flood stage was set Thursday at the border point of Westhope.

High water and ice Thursday knocked out the historic swinging bridge over a narrow section of the river at Souris. The bridge was a pedestrian crossing which had survived all previous spring floods since it was built in 1904.

School Taxes Up 16%: McGeer

Education tax rates could increase by an average of seven mills — from 40.98 to 47.6 — across the province this year, Education Minister Pat McGeer said today.

The rise of 16 per cent will occur if school districts do not trim their budgets back from the previously announced 19 per cent average increase.

The basic school tax levy, set by the provincial government, will be 32.5 mills, up six mills from 1975.

This levy is imposed to pay the local share of basic education costs and is the same in most school districts. The difference between the amount the basic levy raises and the actual cost of the basic education program, is paid by the provincial government.

But most school districts draw up budgets which go beyond the basic education program and thus actual mill levies go beyond the basic 32.5 set by the government.

While the basic mill rate levy has increased dramatically, McGeer said the provincial government's share of basic coasts is still $309 million or 47 per cent.

In addition, he said, the government pays 71 per cent or $42 million of college costs.

Macdonald Approves Gas Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said today the federal cabinet has decided not to intervene in an Anti-Inflation Board decision granting a price increase to Imperial Oil Ltd.

Mr. Macdonald said there is no scope under the board act for the cabinet to reduce the increase or to delay it.

"I have examined the board report and concluded the price increase is justified by increased costs," he told reporters.

The board ruled Thursday that Imperial could increase product prices by one cent a gallon, effective Monday. The company had asked for an increase of 1.5 cents.

Other oil companies, including Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Chevron Canada Ltd., have applied for increases but decisions are pending.

Mr. Macdonald said each case will be considered separately and "quite clearly all of the companies wouldn't qualify."

Quebec Teachers May Defy Curbs

Times News Services

QUEBEC — Quebec's 80,000 teachers, bluntly ordered by special legislation Thursday to cease work stoppages and harassment tactics, will likely risk grave penalties by defying the law and pursuing their contract battle with the government.

Most schools throughout the province were closed today as thousands of teachers gathered at union meetings to decide future strategy.

In an early development, the North Island Teachers Association, representing about 800 teachers in suburban Montreal, voted 95 per cent to defy the law.

The legislation, which goes into effect midnight Sunday night, bars the teachers from holding any disruptive activities for 80 days.

Unions face fines of up to $50,000 a day and members $250 a day for defying the law, which passed third and final reading Thursday night.

Montreal Teachers Association president Donald Peacock said he has recommended the 2,400 union members continue rotating strikes and work stoppages despite the legislation.

"For my part I'd rather go to jail than obey legislation like that."

CBers SPARK BLAZE

BURNABY (CP) — Two men were badly burned early today when a radio antenna they were erecting on an apartment house roof came into flashing contact with a 12,000-volt B.C. Hydro line.

The resulting fire burned the three-storey apartment building in this municipality neighboring Vancouver, sending five firemen to hospital with minor injuries.

Douglas Hawley and Gary Skett, both in their 20s and both residents of the apartment block, were in fairly good condition in hospital with third-degree burns.

A fire department spokesman said that the two men were putting up a citizens' band radio antenna when it touched the 12,000 volt line.

"It caused a short circuit that turned all the electrical wiring in the building red hot," said Burnaby assistant fire chief Basil Pontifex.

"At first, we thought it was the work of an arsonists."

Pontifex said that 40 firemen using five pumper trucks fought the fire for almost seven hours.

ECUADOR QUAKE KILLS 10

Times News Services

QUITO — A strong earthquake hit western Ecuador early today, killing at least 10 persons and injuring dozens in the Pacific oil port of Esmeraldas.

A number of buildings collapsed when the quake struck with a force of from 6 to 7 on the open-ended Richter scale at about 2:15 a.m.

The city was blacked out and people ran into the streets in panic.

Meanwhile a small boy was killed Thursday as a series of earth tremors continued to shake the eastern Turkish province of Agri.

The latest fatality brought to seven the death toll since earthquakes began to hit the foothills of Mount Ararat, the highest mountain in Turkey, a week ago.

B.C. to Join Federal Guides

Legislation allowing the B.C. government to sign an agreement with Ottawa to participate in the federal anti-inflation program was introduced in the House today.

At the same time the province announced it will intervene in a Supreme Court of Canada case which is testing the constitutionality of the federal anti-inflation program.

Premier Bennett said while B.C. supports the federal program it wants to ensure that agreement will not lead to any infringement on provincial rights in future.

In the court case, therefore, B.C. will support the federal position on the clear understanding that Ottawa can intrude on provincial rights only if there is evidence that emergency conditions exist.

The B.C. legislation, entitled Bill 16, the Anti-Inflation Measures Act, authorizes the government to enter into agreement with the federal government to have the anti-inflation guidelines applied to prices and wages in the public sector of the province.

Bennett stressed that the agreement, which is still under negotiation, will likely expire in April, 1977, considerably before the federal program is scheduled to end.

But Bennett said that by next year B.C. should have its own anti-inflation program in operation and can take back jurisdiction from the federal government.

The bill also allows the province to investigate and regulate the prices of commodities and services in B.C.

BOMB SCARE

A telephoned bomb scare resulted in the B.C. Medical Building on Government being temporarily evacuated today. An evacuation fire drill was carried out while units of the city police and the provincial government's security section searched the building.

BANK ON IT . . . AKLAVIK'S HERE

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A school teacher in the remote Northwest Territories community of Aklavik thinks a Canadian bank needs a geography lesson.

Barbra Lakatos is upset because a letter from the Banque Provinciale de Canada said:

"Further to your renewal for a Master Charge card, we have to inform you that we do not issue cards to be sent out of Canada.

"However, if you come back to Canada please get in touch with us and we will be glad to issue you a Master Charge card."

Mrs. Lakatos said she replied informing the company that Aklavik is in fact in Canada but has had no response from the company.

A spokesman for the firm, Francois Kogovsek, said it was a coincidence that Mrs. Lakatos got the letter, designed for people now living in the United States.

Secretary Says Lauk Removed Gov't Papers

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A secretary has accused former economic development minister Gary Lauk of carting away 22 boxes of government files — at government expense — shortly after the Dec. 11 election.

Socred Economic Development Minister Don Phillips carried the accusation into the legislature and at one point accused Lauk of "stealing" government material.

Lauk said all the files he removed were personal and it is common practice to take such material away when a minister leaves office.

But his former secretary, Sarjit Olaizola, said she felt what she was instructed to do was wrong and all the material taken away was ministerial, rather than personal files.

Olaizola said Lauk instructed her on Dec. 15 to pack up all the files in the office. On Dec. 16 he told her to rent a van and personally take all the material over to his home in Vancouver.

"I literally emptied the filing cabinet drawers," she said. "I objected to what I was being told to do, but I'm just a civil servant and I did as I was told."

(B.C. civil servants and cabinet-appointments take an oath of secrecy which stipulates they will not divulge or speak out on any government business.

(Ministers' secretaries by tradition are appointed politically through cabinet order in council. Olaizola was appointed by both NDP and Socred governments as secretary to Lauk and Phillips respectively — and similarly was made secretary to former highways minister Phil Gaglardi in the previous Socred regime.)

That same day the former premier's secretary phoned Olaizola and told her to be sure she packed up all the mining files.

"She said Dave (Barrett) wants you to be sure to take all the mines material," said Olaizola.

Former provincial secretary Ernie Hall apparently called Olaizola next and also told her to be sure to pack up the mining files.

She closed the minister's office for two days — Dec. 16 and 17 — while she moved the material.

Rent of $44.70 on the van was charged to the government and the department also paid a second bill, she said, covering the cost of sending over Lauk's personal possessions on another date.

Asked why the former government wanted to take the files away, Olaizola said she assumed it was because they had something they didn't want anyone to see.

She said none of the 22 boxes contained personal files, and most of it was correspondence with other government departments and agencies.

Shortly after Phillips was sworn in as minister in late December, a registered letter was sent to Lauk requesting he return the files, she said.

But Lauk phoned her she said, and told her the materi-

Third Mudslide Closes Road

CASTLEGAR (CP) — A third mudslide in three days has closed another portion of Highway 3 between Castlegar and Nelson.

The new slide, 200 feet long and about 12 feet high, closed the road about 3 a.m. today, a half-mile west of the two other slides and about eight miles east of Castlegar.

B.C. Telephone Co. reported long distance circuits in the area were out, although service was expected to be restored by afternoon.

Marchand, Jamieson Grilled Over Sky Shops

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Two cabinet ministers were grilled in the Commons Thursday over the possible role played by former assistants of theirs in the Sky Shops Affair.

Don Jamieson and Jean Marchand who came under fire from Tory MP Elmer McKay have already turned over to the RCMP files from their tenures as transport minister.

McKay asked Marchand to "clarify the role his staff played with regard to the sky Shops affair and whether unauthorized acts and signatures were arranged without his knowledge."

"The matter is hearsay," Marchand later told reporters, "and I will not comment further. I do not know if there is any foundation to the matter."

MacKay told reporters later there was "foundation" behind his questions and that the time frame involved was the spring of 1972—which was apparently the focal point for the RCMP investigation.

At that time, Jamieson was minister of transport and Marchand was minister of regional economic expansion and the prime minister's chief Quebec lieutenant.

Jean Rivard, Ottawa correspondent for Telemedia, the Quebec radio network, meanwhile, quoted letters purporting to show that the former aides are involved.

The case involves the 1972 cabinet extension, without competitive bids, of a Sky Shops license to operate a duty-free store at Dorval Airport in Montreal until 1980.

As reported Thursday by Rivard and also by Dan Turner on the Ottawa TV station CBOT, documents obtained in the investigation show the following sequence of events.

On Oct. 26, 1971, Marchand aide Carmel Carriere sent a handwritten note on ministerial stationery to Andrew Chatwood, executive assistant to Jamieson.

The note said Marchand insisted on reversal of transport ministry advice to call for competitive bids for the duty-free license at Dorval, rather than simply renewing the Sky Shops licence.

On Nov. 12, 1971, a Carriere note in the same vein went to Chatwood.

On Nov. 23, 1971, Chatwood wrote to William Huck in the air transport division of the transport ministry, with a copy of the letter going to O. G. Stoner, deputy transport minister, saying Marchand was insisting that no competitive bids be called.

On May 1, 1972, a typewritten letter from Chatwood informed Carriere that the decision on putting the Dorval duty-free license up for competitive bid had been reversed.

Toronto Prices Follow New York

TORONTO (CP) — Stock prices on the Toronto market turned mixed in slow mid-morning trading Friday in response to uncertain movements on the New York market.

The industrial index fell .22 to 188.94 and base metals .07 to 88.93. Golds rose .76 to 280.94 and western oils .14 to 214.94.

Volume of trading by 11 a.m. was 425,000 shares, down from 527,000 at the same time Thursday. Declines led advances 98 to 69 with 166 issues unchanged.

Trading in shares of Abbey Glen Property Corp. was delayed from opening at the request of the company pending an announcement expected Monday. On Thursday, shares of Abbey Glen gained 40 cents to $4 and warrants 15 cents to $1 amid reports of a possible takeover bid for the company.

Falconbridge Nickel fell 1 to $39½, Texasgulf ½ to $34, Kaiser Resources ⅝ to $10⅝, Versatile Manufacturing A ⅜ to $15⅜ and Western Broadcasting B ⅝ to $10¼.

Noranda A rose ⅜ to $35¾ and Bell Canada ⅛ to $45⅝.

Agnico-Eagle lost 10 cents to $4.50 and Westfield Minerals four cents to $1.73. Giant Mascot was up six cents to $1.44.

Canada Northwest Land was off ¼ to $7½ and Alberta Eastern ¼ to $10⅝. Merland added 15 cents to $3.60.

New York

After a 27-point slide over the last three trading days, the Dow steadied in early trading Friday and showed a one-point gain by noon. But the short spell of bargain hunting attracted little support, and the market was falling again by early afternoon.

Analysts said investors seemed convinced that the market was due for a period of retrenchment after its sharp gains earlier in the year.

The market also evidently was weighed down by a forecast from U.S. commerce secretary Elliot L. Richardson that the rate of inflation might pick up by early summer.

B. D. Eearle, the NYSE's most-active issue, was down ⅜ at $14¼ on the heels of a 1½-point loss Thursday when U.S. government regulators questioned some animal-testing procedures used by the company. Searle said it strongly disagreed with much of the government report.

Montreal

AT MONTREAL prices were mixed in moderate trading Friday. Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 250,700 shares, compared with 269,400 traded up to the same time Thursday. International Nickel fell ¼ to $31⅞, Kaiser Corp. ¼ to $10¾ and Celanese Canada ⅜ to $51½, while CP Ltd. increased ⅛ to $16⅝ and Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $15⅜.

London

AT LONDON prices moved lower in moderate trading Friday, continuing the decline of the previous two sessions. The Financial Times index lost 2.2 to 395.5 by the close of trading. Canadian issues were mixed to fractionally higher in moderate activity.

Are You Set To Pool It Workdays?

Measures to encourage extensive use of car pools are being studied by city and regional officials, following a visit to Seattle earlier this week.

Ald. John Hayes, chairman of Victoria's traffic and transportation planning committee, said Thursday the main purpose of the trip was to see how Seattle's one-year-old car pool system is working, and whether a similar program can be adopted locally to ease acute traffic and parking problems.

He was accompanied by city traffic engineer Derek Wild and Capital Regional District planner Peter Hammer.

"The Seattle traffic department people gave us quite a fascinating insight into some of their problems, and we've brought back tons of material to study," he said.

Hayes noted that the U.S. city has spent $3 billion on roads since 1961, which breaks down to $40,000 for every registered vehicle. Last year the city decided that even more roads were needed, but a refererdum for a major road expansion program was turned down by 80 per cent of the electorate.

That started a search for cheaper alternatives, including ways to encourage wider use of car pools.

Hayes said there were already some 8,000 pools operating at that time, and in the year since the city's official program started another 2,000 have been added.

A number of incentives are offered for commuters to join car pools, including free use of downtown parking structures and "preferential treatment by means of reversible lanes." In other words, cars bearing the city's official sticker can nip down one-way streets the "wrong" way on special lanes.

To qualify for such benefits under Seattle's "Pool-It" system, a minimum of three persons per car is laid down. Hayes said frequent checks are made and so far there appears to be no sign that commuters are cheating the rules.

As there is a free downtown bus service, the city has found that most applications to join car pools come from outside the five-mile circle.

"So you have a five-mile radius which is public transit territory and outside that people will consider pooling," he said.

Hayes was non-committal about the Seattle ideas which might be copied or adapted for use in Greater Victoria. The preferential lane principle was a possibility, but he was skeptical that free downtown parking could be provided as an incentive to poolers.

He said car pools could be organized for longer-distance commuters, including residents of the Saanich Peninsula and the western communities of Colwood, Langford and Metchosin.

But it will require a co-ordinated approach by municipalities, the regional district and the provincial government, and to be at all effective the program must be accompanied by significant improvements in public transit.

Cable Fee Hike

A $1 a month hike in Central and North Saanich cable TV fees has been authorized by Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission.

Subscribers to Saanich Cablevision Ltd., operating in Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney, will pay $6 a month for the service, which has been expanded to include community programming on channel 10.

The CRTC also approved installation fee of $15 for the first 150 feet of overhead cable or 100 feet of underground cable, with additional charges for longer lengths, an increase from the flat $15 fee.

Other approvals affecting Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands include a $2 rate increase to $8 for Salt Spring Cablevision (1972) Ltd., with installation up $6 to $25.

Night in Jail Called 'Inexcusable'

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A Victoria lawyer levelled sharp criticism Thursday at the lack of facilities here to handle people found not guilty of criminal offences because of mental illness.

Mike Hutchison said it "borders on the inexcusable" that a person specifically remanded by the court to be held in custody at a mental clinic on the mainland had to spend a night in jail here "because it happened at 4 p.m. rather than 1 p.m. or 10 a.m.

This occurred this week when Hutchison's client, Robert Schoeman, was found not guilty of raping one woman and common assault on two other women by reason of insanity.

County court Judge Peter Millward directed that Schoeman be held in custody at the provincial forensic psychiatric institute at Essondale pending a decision by the cabinet on his future.

Hutchison said in an interview Thursday there are two reasons why Schoeman spent a night in jail: Courts end at 4 p.m. each day "in accordance with the union contract," leaving disposition of matters such as Schoeman's transfer to the mainland until the following day, and the absence of suitable facilities in Victoria.

He said Schoeman was prepared for and understood why he had to spend a night in jail, but he wondered if that would apply to other persons in similar circumstances.

"I wonder what would happen to a dangerous criminal psychopath . . . who had to be strait-jacketed, would they hold him in city cells or make other arrangements," asked Hutchison.

He said there is "an inexcusable lack of facilities" in Victoria for people found by courts to be sick rather than criminal and "an apparent difficulty over time" if court decisions occur late in the day and sheriff's officers put off a transfer to the mainland until the next day.

He said there "obviously seems some logistical problem" in arranging transfers to the mainland late in the day, "but there are ferries."

The biggest problem is that in an area where there is a holding institution such as Wilkinson Road Jail, there are no psychiatric or forensic facilities.

Hutchison said he knows the provincial government has been considering such facilities at the Eric Martin Institute but there are no security arrangements there "and why this hasn't been done escapes me."

TOWN TALK

It would be nice, wouldn't it, if the Anti-Inflation Board lived up to its name and set the rest of us a modest example by keeping its stationery costs as low as possible?

A skimpy six-paragraph press release announcing the board's decisions on two teacher contracts in Ontario arrived at the Times office in a massive 15-by-10-inch buff envelope, the kind used for mailing bulky legal documents and technical reports.

An envelope one-quarter the size would have been ample. Please note, AIB bureaucrats.

WOLFE
. . . mint minister

In a year of financial restraint, it's the little things that count . . . like sticking your gum on the bedpost overnight to make it last just one day more.

We don't know if Finance Minister Evan Wolfe is a gum-chewer, but this week he displayed his own simple frugality for all to see.

While the TV cameras were rolling at the start of a press conference on the new printing of the budget, Wolfe whipped a mint out of his mouth and put it carefully on his desk.

At the end of the stormy conference, he grinned a little and popped it back in his mouth.

Scratch a "big band" and a little "big band" bleeds. Or so we found after writing about the 17-piece Coppertones a week ago.

We said something about the limited but nonetheless enthusiastic and enduring popularity of swing bands playing the original arrangements of the masters — Glenn Miller, Duke Ellington, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Stan Kenton, Count Basie . . .

Phone rings. S. J. Willis School bandmaster Ron Davies says, how about us? Every Wednesday night for about the same length of time the Coppertones have been together — 18 months — Davies' 10-piece stage band has been playing on contract at Esquimalt Legion.

Davies, who plays sax and clarinet, has three other reed players, two trumpets, trombone, electric bass, piano and drums and gives faithful rendition of mostly dance band arrangements of the Dorsey, Miller, Artie Shaw and the like.

"Are they popular?" we asked.

"The place is packed every Wednesday night," Davies said.

There's a con job happening at a few of the towns fancier eateries—like they're always out of the cheaper wines and you have to go top of the line. One seaside diner has gone so far as to bring patrons a handwritten list of a dozen popular brands it doesn't have in stock. Wouldn't it be easier to order more?

Water used for decorative purposes isn't inexpensive, it seems.

In Victoria's 1976 budget a sum of $11,500 is provided for maintaining the fountain in Centennial Square. That's more than $950 a month.

Talk about splashing out on civic amenities . . .

Several months after the widening of the Trans-Canada Highway into town supposedly started, all there is to show for it is a third-lane section about 150 yards long, just east of the Thetis Lake interchange.

Car-driving commuters caught in the wretched congestion of peak-hour traffic figure at this rate it will take another four or five years before the Trans-Canada has been widened to four-lanes all the way to the Town and Country shopping centre.

By that time, of course, the present traffic will have doubled and even four lanes will be hopelessly inadequate.

Why so slow, provincial department of highways?

And why, for that matter, wasn't the job done years ago? Surely it was obvious to everyone at least 10 years ago that rapid population growth in the western suburbs would place an impossible strain on that stretch of highway?

The federal government may have to intervene directly in the mortgage market to keep interest rates from soaring, Victoria Real Estate Board President John Thomson said today.

If interest rates go much higher it will become almost impossible for young couples to buy their first home, he said.

Federal government intervention may soon by necessary to assure a large supply of mortgage funds at interest rates young couples can afford.

Thomson, who was installed as board president Thursday, said the federal government should consider the following moves in order to keep the cost of home-buying within the reach of most Canadians:

—Require lending institutions to set aside a fixed quota of mortgage funds so there is a good supply during the year. Interest rates tend to rise as funds become scarce near the end of the year.

—Permit home-buyers to deduct part or all of the interest payments from taxable income. (On a $30,000 mortgage, a home-buyer pays about $3,600 interest the first year, which would make a tax rebate of over $1,000 cash if it were permitted. This type of deduction is permitted in the United States.)

—Devise methods of keeping interest rates stable.

The provincial government could assist by increasing its second mortgage loans (to first-time home-buyers) above its present level of $5,000 at 8.75 per cent interest. This type of grant helps young couples put together the down payment.

Thomson said lending companies appear to believe the interest rate will go higher rather than lower and are moving to shorter-term mortgages.

'Wicked Business' Drains Cancer Research Support

The manager of the local Canadian Cancer Society office said today that "quack" cancer treatments publicized locally have persuaded some people not to support the current cancer campaign.

Wilf Burton singled out Laetrile, made from apricot pits, as the biggest of several "treatments" found useless in coping with cancer.

The society has had half a dozen phone calls this week from people asking what's being done about Laetrile and the possibility its effectiveness hasn't been sufficiently researched, he said.

"There are two or three organizations which are proponents of quackery and we can no longer afford to bury our heads in the sand against these accusations."

The Canadian Cancer Society takes its medical advice from the Canadian and American Medical Associations and other affiliated organizations throughout the world, he said.

And the society has been provided with sufficient evidence from the medical profession to convince it that these quack "cures" are exactly that.

Burton said that besides Laetrile, the public has been fed stories about the effectiveness "of everything from psychic surgery to grape juice, castor oil mixed with olive oil, garlics and various herbs, as well as a 'magic cure board.'"

It's important people understand there are no "miracle cures" for cancer and the only ones proven successful are the techniques now used by doctors — surgery, radiation and drugs, he said.

The quack cures have been denounced by doctors as "a cruel fraud" and by the National Cancer Institute as "a wicked business — on a par with swindling widows."

All have one thing in common, said Burton, according to reports from major medical centres across North America.

"They have no recognized value in the treatment of cancer after thorough investigation and testing."

In the case of Laetrile, it was tested again recently under pressure of its proponents and found again to be valueless, he said. It has been banned in both Canada and the U.S. because it has never passed trials required by food and drug regulations.

Burton said the complexity of cancer coupled with the anxieties it produces has given rise to "miracle cures" for the sole purpose of extorting money from patients, their relatives and friends who are ready to clutch at straws.

The answer to cancer lies in legitimate research and the Canadian Cancer Society is the only local organization raising money for projects endorsed by the medical profession, he said.

Ask The Times

Q. I've heard jokes about the Yellow-Bellied Sapsucker. Is there really such a bird? L.P.

A. Yes. It's a member of the woodpecker family, found mainly in the East, and is so named because part of its diet is the sap from trees. There is also a Red-Bellied Sapsucker on the Pacific Coast.

Q. Could you find out for me what year Saskatchewan became a province? K.L.

A. Sept. 1, 1905.

UVic Standardizes Entry Requirements

University of Victoria senate has voted to standardize admission requirements for students.

Students must have at least a C-plus average in all Grade 11 and Grade 12 subjects, as an average taken over the best 11 subjects in those two grades. Course average excludes physical education and guidance.

Dean David Jeffrey, chairman of the senate committee on academic standards, said the "rationale is to remove inequities in treatment between applicants whose secondary school transcripts may show: all courses taken, all courses passed or only those selected courses which give the highest average while satisfying the minimum graduation requirements."

Senate, at its business meeting Wednesay, also defeated a motion by senator Charles Daniels to discontinue the schools of nursing and social work, scheduled to open with minimum staff this fall.

In his written statement, Daniels asked if the university could start two new schools with a total of 20 faculty members when philosophy, music and Slavonics still had not attained full faculty complements.

Only three of the 40-member senate supported the motion.

Police Get Less Cynical

Police become less cynical about life the older they get while members of the public tend to become more cynical as they grow older, a UVic sociologist's study shows.

This seems to contradict "a lot of comments by civilians and academicians about police being cynical and authoritatian because police have considerable contact with the seamy side of life," writes professor Daniel Koenig.

But the study also shows another contrary trend between police and public: as police grow less cynical, they also become less satisfied with their own life situation, especially with pay and standard of living, in relationship to males the same age among the working public.

KOENIG
. . . contradiction

Koenig and reseach assistant Marlene Martin wrote the report following two surveys in 1974, one a province-wide random sampling of public attitudes towards police and the other a sample from the ranks of RCMP officers working in B.C.

Koenig earlier wrote reports about each of these surveys and the current report represents a comparison of the surveys.

The study, entitled "Police as People: A Comparison of the RCMP and the Public within British Columbia," was funded by the Justice Development Commission.

The report also revealed that neither public nor police believe there is widespread police graft in the part of the province in which they live.

Rocky Mountain (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Errol Flynn and Patrice Wymore were husband and wife when they starred in this routine 1950 western.

Ballad of Cable Hogue (xxx), on 5 at 9. An entertaining 1970 comedy-western, stylishly directed by Sam Peckinpah, about the misadventures of an itinerant cowboy who becomes the successful owner of a stagecoach watering stop. Good performances are turned in by Jason Robards, Stella Stevens, David Warner and Slim Pickins.

The Story of David, on 8 at 9. Conclusion of this 1976 made-for-television Biblical drama about the shepherd boy David who became the king of Israel. Tonight's episode finds the adult David (played by Keith Michell) in his middle years, and about to embark on an adulterous affair with Bathsheba. Supporting cast includes Jane Seymour, Susan Hampshire and Barry Morse.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame (xxxx), on 9 at 9. Famed character actor Lon Chaney firmly established his career as the "man of 1,000 faces" as a result of his brilliant characterization in this 1923 silent screen version of Victor Hugo's classic. As Quasimodo, Chaney created one of his most grotesque but inspired makeups, and his performance has been referred to as "among the great screen portrayals of all time."

Escape (xx), on 12 at 10. A 1971 made-for-television drama about an escape artist hired to rescue a kidnapped scientist, starring Christopher George and William Windom.

It Happened One Night (xxxx), on 7 at 11. Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert star in this excellent, entertaining, multi-Oscar winning 1934 comedy about the madcap romantic adventures of an heiress running away from her father, and the reporter who's hot on her trail. Until this past Academy Awards which honored One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, this movie held the record for the clean sweep of Best Picture, Best Actress, Best Actor and Best Director (Frank Capra).

Nightmare, on 11 at 11. No rating available on this 1956 mystery about a jazz musician who dreams he has committed murder — a nightmare that begins to resemble reality, starring Kevin McCarthy and Edward G. Robinson.

Today's Movies

How Sweet It Is (xx), on 6 at 11:20. European locations enhance this otherwise predictable 1968 comedy about a couple who become involved in extramarital complications, starring James Garner and Debbie Reynolds. Terry-Thomas and Paul Lynde in supporting roles are hilarious.

Guns at Batisi (xxx) on 12 at 11:30. A provocative, literate 1964 British-made drama dealing with the strife-ridden political climate prevalent in Africa in the early 1960s, starring Richard Attenborough, Jack Hawkins and Flora Robson.

The Sergeant Was a Lady (x), on 2 at 11:45. A lightweight 1961 service comedy about an Army officer mistakenly assigned to a WAC unit.

The Panic In Needle Park (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Al Pacino in his first starring role is very effective in this grim, uncompromising 1970 portrait of a drug addict who drags his girlfriend into his world of prostitutes, pimps and thieves in New York City's West End. A sombre but well-directed story with a good supporting performance by Kitty Wynn.

Billy the Kid, on 4 at 12:15. No rating available on this 1941 version of the story of the western anti-hero Billy the Kid, starring Robert Taylor in the title role.

The Hook (xxx), on 5 at 1:15 a.m. An interesting, offbeat but well-acted 1963 Korean War story about three GIs who capture, and are ordered to kill, a wounded enemy, starring Kirk Douglas, Robert Walker and Nick Adams.

Butterflies Are Free (xxxx), on 8 at 2:20 a.m. Goldie Hawn, Edward Albert and Eileen Heckart (Oscar winner) are excellent in this lovely 1972 comedy-drama about a blind young man living on his own who falls in love with his kooky next-door neighbor — much to the consternation of his overprotective mother.

ALAN KING is the host of a comedy special in which the American Academy of Humor honors outstanding comedians in movies, television, theatre, nightclubs and print, to be telecast on Saturday at 10 p.m. on Channel 4. Dozens of celebrities will appear including Lily Tomlin (here masquerading as the character Edith Ann).

Today's Highlights

Daffodil Festival Parade, on 11 at 10 a.m. and 7 at 3:30 p.m. Coverage of the 43rd annual Grand Floral spring parade from Tacoma, Washington. (2 hrs.)

Dance in America, on 9 at 3. The Martha Graham Dance Company (the same group seen this past week in Victoria) perform two works choreographed by the famed Miss Graham — Adorations, and Appalachian Spring. (90 mins.)

Documentary Special, on 6 at 6. Baboons of Gombe — a study by animal behaviorist Jane Goodall of a troop of 40 baboons living on the shore of Lake Tanganyika. (60 mins.)

Cartoon Special, on 12 at 7:30. An encore telecast of Oscar Wilde's delightful cartoon, The Selfish Giant, about a giant who forbids children to play in his garden, an act that results in his grounds being plunged into permanent winter. (30 mins.)

America on Parade, on 7 at 8 p.m. A tour of Walt Disney amusement parks in California and Florida, hosted by Red Skelton. (60 mins.)

Cleo Laine, on 2 and 6 at 9. Backed by her husband and musical director John Dankworth, jazz singer Cleo Laine displays her three-octave range in a variety of musical styles. (60 mins.)

Sidestreet, on 2 at 10. Return of the Canadian-produced crime-drama series about police officers who are specialists in Community relations. Tonight's episode deals with a rape case and its effects on the lives of the victim and the rapist. (60 mins.)

Comedy Awards, on 4 at 10. Alan King hosts this special honoring outstanding comedians in movies, television, theatre, nightclubs and print. Presenters, performers include some 35 celebrities in the entertainment business. (90 mins.)

Petrocelli, on 6 at 10. Tonight's episode finds Petrocelli (series star Barry Newman) befriending an elderly woman who is hitchhiking across the country, but he ends up defending her when the lady is accused of murdering her son's employer. (60 mins.)

Carol Burnett, on 7 at 10. Repeat of the show featuring award-winning actress Joanne Woodward as Carol's special guest. (60 mins.)

Saturday Night, on 5 at 11:45. Another edition of this popular comedy series, tonight hosted by actress Madeline Kahn. (90 mins.)

Noted Jazz Singer In One-Woman Show

Just over a year ago, award-winning film producer-director Hall Bartlett was among a huge crowd attending a Hollywood Bowl concert in Los Angeles. Onstage, sending forth vocal electricity and firing the imagination of the thousands was singer Cleo Laine. Thirty songs and waves of excitement later, Bartlett went backstage, introduced himself and said "I would like to build my television special around you — will you do it?"

Cleo Laine: My Life — My Love, filmed in Hollywood, is the culmination of that collaboration. It will be telecast on CBC-TV, Saturday, April 10 at 9 p.m.

With international citations for documentaries, 13 Academy Award nominations, and feature films like Jonathan Livingston Seagull and All the Young Men under his belt, Hall Bartlett could hardly have chosen a more brilliant performer for his small-screen production debut. This concert by Britain's musical Renaissance woman, who has been called by critics "quite simply the greatest all-round singer in the world today" is stellar entertainment PLUS.

Dominating the stage, and drawing energy and inspiration from an astonishing rapport with her arranger-composer-saxophonist husband John Dankworth, Cleo Laine offers vocal quicksilver and supreme musicianship in this hour-long encounter. Indeed they work together like Oscar Peterson and a piano.

With her dark brown voice squeezing emotion out of love songs by such diverse talents as Cole Porter, Jacques Brel, Carole King, and Stephen Sondheim, and playing with the catchy rhythms of a Dankworth Bossa Nova, and his capricious 'Bird Song', the shining-white gowned Ms. Laine is a magic-weaving revelation. Her evocative singing style is all-conquering, and touches every nuance of sadness and joy. Essentially, she strokes a song until it virtually purrs.

Radiating an aura of "I've lived through it all and I'm glad", Cleo Laine, now in her mid-forties, has a fine touch of genius about her, and her unique interpretations of old standards and brand new songs alike yield unusually satisfying results. Bartlett's inventive camerawork sheaths her in a glamorous light which blends nicely with the incendiary glow of her style, especially her bittersweet rendition of Let Me Be The One.

Canadian audiences sampled her varied repertoire recently at her sold-out London, Toronto and Hamilton concerts, where she ranged from Bach to Paul Williams, light opera to Harold Arlen.

Spanning over three octaves, her voice range too is impressive, particularly in the lower register, and her version of Born On a Friday (written by prominent jazz authority Leonard Feather) should be made required listening for every aspiring singer — male or female. Foggy but not smoggy, the Laine larynx is an amazingly precision-honed instrument capable of giving vertigo and goose pimples at the same time. With the probable exception of Lena Horne, there is no one around today who can dramatize a lyric and evoke a mood like Cleo Laine.

This is a very special special, with something for everyone: jazz, swing, blues, ballads, show-tunes, pop, and even a refrain from a hymn — Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord. Flanked by supple strings and brass, and probing yet discreet reed work by John Dankworth, Ms. Laine makes an auspicius television debut

As she said during her recent appearance on CBC-TV's Bob McLean Show — "Musically, I'm willing to try anything, once I have confidence in the lyrics, because for me, the word's the thing . . ."

Saturday, April 10 at 9 p.m. — be there. You'll become a Cleo-patriot, if you're not one already.

CLEO LAINE displays her unusual three-octave range in a variety of musical styles in a concert special to be telecast on Saturday at 9 p.m. on Channel 2 and 6. Miss Laine is backed by her husband and musical director John Dankworth.

CHANEY'S BEST

Lon Chaney stars in The Hunchback of Notre Dame, which returns to The Silent Years, April 10 at 9:00 p.m., on Public TV 9. This lavish film rocketed Chaney to stardom, as he overwhelmed audiences with his convincing performance.

Produced in 1923 and directed by the then-unknown William Wyler, this adaptation of the Victor Hugo novel is still considered the best screen version of the famous story. Intensely moving and colorful, the film is as stunning to see today as it was when presented to an earlier generation.

A million and a half dollars went into the making of Hunchback of Notre Dame, as evident in the vast sets and large-scale mob scenes. But in spite of the enormity of the spectacle, Hunchback emerges as film in which the magnetism of the central character dominates.

Chaney, often called "The Master of 1000 Faces," was a master of the macabre, a genius in make-up, and an actor of rare strength and sensitivity. Hunchback was a perfect vehicle for him, as he enacted the part of Quasimodo, the deformed bellringer of Notre Dame, hopelessly in love with Esmerelda, the dancing gypsy girl.

28 Cameras Trained On Golf Tournament

JACK NICKLAUS

Nicklaus became the first player to win five Masters, a stroke ahead of Weiskopf and Miller, with a four-round total of 276. And CBS Television Network Sports won an Emmy Award for technical achievement.

"It was almost removed from the category of being a sports program," said Frank Chirkinian, producer-director for CBS Television Network Sports coverage of the Masters Tournament, which this year, will be broadcast Saturday, April 10 (1:00-3:00 p.m. and Sunday April 11 (1:00-3:00 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network. "I think we justified television's existence with our coverage," he added.

Twenty-one cameras captured the action and CBS Television Network Sports sent two Advent machines to the scene, versatile electronic devices capable of carrying tape, film or live action on a parabolic screen.

Dan Jenkins wrote in Sports Illustrated magazine that "you can take all of your double eagles and your playoffs and your Arnold Palmers and Ben Hogans and Byron Nelsons, and nothing has ever equaled what happened when Nicklaus bagged his fifth Masters and his 15th major championship."

And so, even with its history of the unexpected and the unbelievable finish — playoffs over the last decade or so turn up around every four years — it is unlikely that the 1976 Masters will furnish anything that can't be captured by the record number of cameras (28) and the announcers to be employed.

Today's Movies

A Gift for Heidi, on 4 at 1 p.m. A 1959 continuation of the classic children's story of a young girl's life in the Swiss Alps.

Life With Father (xxxx), on 5 at 1. Irene Dunne, William Powell and Elizabeth Taylor head a large cast in this excellent 1947 film version of the hit Broadway comedy about the ups and downs of a New York family in the 1890s.

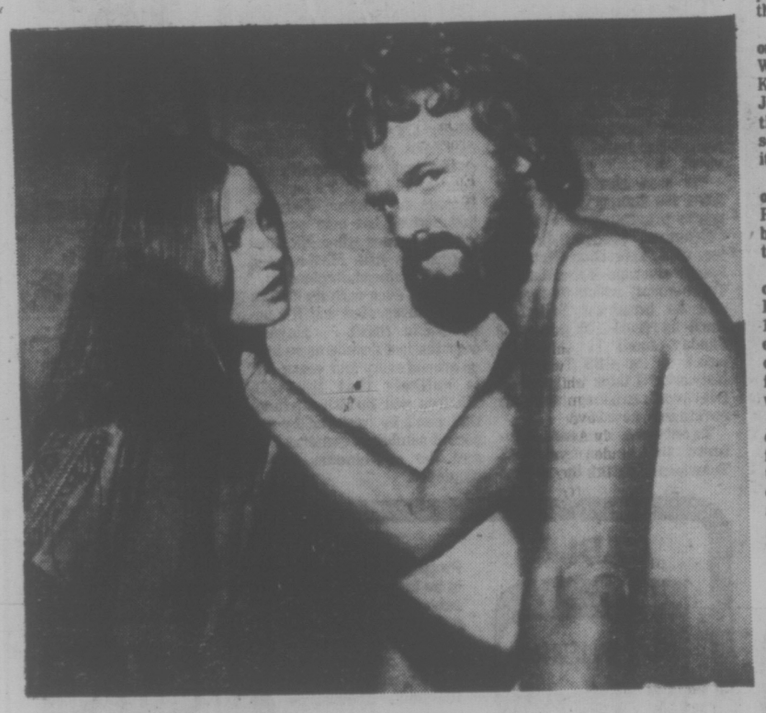
UFO, on 11 at 1:30. A 1956 documentary which offers a detailed re-creation of an Air Force investigation into flying saucers observed in the skies over Utah and Montana in the early 1950s.

The Wonderful World of Puss 'n Boots, on 8 at 2:30. An animated story for children, loosely based on the Perrault fairy tale.

Dingaka (xx), on 11 at 3. Stanley Baker and Juliet Prowse star in this 1965 South African-made drama about tribal vengeance and the effects of urban civilization on a simple native. The story centres on a lawyer who defends a tribesman accused of murdering a fellow villager out of revenge.

Pufnstuf, on 7 at 3:30. A 1970 blend of puppetry and live action about the adventures of a tardy youth in make-believe land. Strictly for the kids.

The Story of David, on 4 at 9. Conclusion of a 1976 made-for-television Biblical drama about the shepherd boy David who became the king of Israel. This episode finds the adult David (played by Keith Michell) in his middle years, and about to embark on an adulterous affair with Bathsheba. Supporting cast includes Jane Seymour, Susan Hampshire and Barry Morse.



KEITH MICHELL as King David takes another's wife, Bathsheba (Jane Seymour) and then plots her husband's death in the conclusion of the two-part dramatization of The Story of David, to be telecast on Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4.

Adventure (xx), on 12 at 9. A much-publicized ("Gable's back and Garson's got him") 1945 comedy about the rocky romance between a seaman and a shy librarian, starring Clark Gable and Greer Garson. (This was the first film made by Gable after the death of his wife Carol Lombard and his service during the war).

The Lodger (xx), on 4 at 11:25. Merle Oberon, George Saunders and Laird Cregar star in this 1944 thriller which tells the story of Jack the Ripper's reign of terror in turn-of-the-century London.

Arizona Bushwackers (xx), on 5 at 11:30. Routine 1968 Civil War western starring Howard Keel, Yvonne DeCarlo and John Iréland. In case you think the voice of the narrator sounds familiar, it should — it's James Cagney.

The Magnificent Dope (xxx), on 2 at 11:45. Don Ameche and Henry Fonda star in this bright 1942 comedy about an egotistical operator of a success school, who thinks he has found the "perfect failure" on which to test his theories.

Panic in Needle Park (xxx), on 6 at 11:50. Al Pacino in his first starring role is very effective in this grim, uncompromising 1970 portrait of a drug addict who drags his girlfriend down into his sordid world of prostitutes, pimps and thieves in New York City's West End. A somber but well-directed story with a good supporting performance by Kitty Wynn.

Sayonara (xxxx), on 8 at midnight. The cast (Marlon Brando, Miiko Taka, Red Button and Miyoshi Umeki) is flawless in this excellent 1957 film version of the James Mitchener novel about interracial love and prejudice in post-war Japan. Both Buttons and Miss Umeki won Oscar for their supporting roles in this film, which was beautifully directed by Joshua Logan.

In A Lonely Place (xxx)), on 7 at 12:30. Humphrey Bogart, Gloria Grahame and Frank Lovejoy star in this gripping, well-acted 1950 story of a Hollywood writer who is under suspicion of murder and his strange romance with his female alibi. A good script raises this film above the average murder yarn.

Butterflies Are Free (xxxx), on 6 at 2:10 a.m. A poignant 1972 comedy-drama about a blind young man living on his own who falls in love with his kooky next-door neighbor — much to the consternation of his overprotective mother, starring Edward Albert, Goldie Hawn and Eileen Heckart (Oscar winner).

Today's Highlights

V.I.P., on 2 at 12:30 p.m. Interviews with B.C. Indian Chief Dan George, and Rudolph Bing, former director of the Metropolitan Opera. (30 mins.)

Nova, on 9 at 1. An encore telecast of the acclaimed Portrait of Joey, dramatizing the life of Joseph Deacon, a brain-damaged Englishman who has spent most of his life in an institution. (60 mins.)

The Weather Machine, on 9 at 2. A science special designed to examine the conditions which cause climatic conditions. Meteorological experts from around the world present the most current theories on man's use and misuse of the atmosphere, and the possible consequences to the global environment. (2 hrs.)

Eternal Light, on 5 at 4. In honor of Passover, a special which examines the Jewish struggle for freedom. (30 mins.)

Destination America, on 4 at 5. Interwoven with drawings, stills and film clips is this historical look at Chicago's Polish immigrant community, the largest American settlement of Poles. (60 mins.)

Ellery Queen, on 5 at 8. Tonight's episode finds Ellery (series star Jim Hutton) involved in the case of a newspaper publisher who was shot while riding in an elevator alone. Guest cast includes Dina Merrill and Pat Harrington. (60 mins.)

Nova, on 9 at 8 p.m. The Transplant Experience, an examination of heart-transplant procedures from the selection of a donor to post-operative care. The program includes graphic laboratory film of a new heart being placed in a dog, and interviews with men who have undergone heart-transplant operations. (60 mins.)

McCloud, on 5 at 9. A repeat episode in which McCloud's (Dennis Weaver) girlfriend is kidnapped in an effort to force the marshal to reveal the whereabouts of some stolen money. Guest cast includes Diana Muldaur and Neville Brand. (2 hrs.)

Moura: Citizen Baroness, on 2 and 6 at 10. A documentary profile of the late Baroness Moura Budberg, daughter of a Czarist politician, and companion to Maxim Gorki and later H. G. Wells. (See page 16 for background article.) (60 mins.)

Oral Roberts Special, on 7 at 10. An Easter celebration with Oral Roberts and his guest singer Robert Goulet and evangelist Corrie ten Boom. (60 mins.)

Bill Moyers' Journal, on 9 at 10. Host Bill Moyers interviews Minnesota senator (and possible Presidential nominee) Hubert Humphrey. (60 mins.)

RANGER'S GUIDE TO NATURE—a combined animated and live-action lecture tour of the forest, will be telecast on the World of Disney, Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 2, (and 7 p.m. on Channel 5).

ABC-TV's Fall Schedule Reflects Ratings Success

By SANDER VANOCUR

WASHINGTON (WP) — ABC, which moved this year from its traditional last place in the network ratings race to challenge CBS's 20-year dominance, announced a 1976-77 schedule that moves the network away from dependence on action dramas toward an emphasis on situation comedy and variety shows.

This announcement, the first by any network and at least a month earlier than networks traditionally have released their new schedules, was reflective of the desire of ABC Television President Frederick S. Pierce to give the creative community in Hollywood a longer lead time to prepare their programs. The commitments made in this announcement, plus a later-than-usual starting date, Sept. 27, will give producers a full six months to prepare.

Reflecting ABC's strong finish this season is the fact that only one program, Starsky and Hutch, which finished high in the ratings, is being moved to a new time period, from Wednesday at 10 to Saturday night at 9, where it will compete against the Mary Tyler Moore Show and the Bob Newhart Show if CBS keeps them in their present slots.

ABC is cancelling nine shows, some old, some new. Among them are Marcus Welby, which has been on ABC for even years. The others are Harry O, The Rookies, SWAT, On the Rocks, Swiss Family Robinson, Good Heavens, Almost Anything Goes and Superstar.

Of the nine new shows, the variety shows look the most interesting, especially one with Bill Cosby, which will be on Sunday nights at 8. Cosby will operate from a specially designed set, to allow him access to engage in conversations with children in the audience, something he does very well. The show will include his monologues, comedy sketches and various musical groups.

The other variety shows are The Captain and Tennille, who gained fame with a hit song, Love Will Keep Us Together. It will be on Monday nights at 8, immediately preceding NFL Monday Night Football. Donnie and Marie, a surprisingly strong midseason replacement, will stay at 8 p.m. Friday.

In addition to its regular detective shows, such as Starsky and Hutch, Baretta and Streets of San Francisco, ABC is adding Most Wanted starring Robert Stack, 10 p.m. Thursday, and Charlie's Angels, both of which have been on television as pilot movies in recent weeks.

Tuesday night is ABC's big comedy night, leading off with Happy Days and Laverne and Shirley and following with two half-hour sitcoms, one with Nancy Walker, the other with Tony Randall. Walker's is called The Nancy Walker Show, produced by Norman Lear's T.A.T. Communications. She is a talent agent who is married to a retired naval officer who wants her to retire. But she won't.

Randall is case as a Superior Court Judge in Philadelphia. (In the pilot, he was in Los Angeles.) He is great on the bench, but totally incompetent off it. He is a widower with a housekeeper who looks after him. She is played by Rachel Roberts — who is closer to him than his two children — a daughter who is in law school and a son who reads a lot. ABC's two hours of comedy on Tuesday will be followed at 10 by either Family or a continuation of the very successful Rich Man, Poor Man.

Also in the narrative area, ABC is committed to a 10 or 12-part adaptation of Alex Haley's forthcoming book, Roots, a black man's exploration of his family through seven generations.

The remaining two of the nine new shows that ABC has scheduled are set for Saturday Night: Mr. T and Tina at 8:30 and Feather and Father at 10. The former is about a Japanese businessman, yet another widower, who comes to this country to represent his company, bringing with him his mother-in-law and two children. He is a traditionalist who hires an attractive young woman as a housekeeper. She is anything but traditional; in fact, she is somewhat inscrutable to him.

Feather and Father stars Stephanie Powers as a criminal lawyer whose father, played by Harold Gould, is a field investigator. The father — yes, another widower — is a con man, someone who has been in trouble with the police. His daughter, as is often the case in situations like this, wants him to go straight.

One pilot that apparently came close to making it was Eight is Enough, a series based on Washington columnist Tom Braden's book about what it's like to raise eight children. It could turn up as a mid-season replacement, however.

This is probably ABC's most balanced schedule in years. It is challenging CBS, the king of the sitcoms, with proven successes and a few promising new entiries. It has moved somewhat away from shoot-em-up programs such as SWAT, and The Rookies and Harry O, while retaining proven winners such as Baretta and Streets of San Francisco and adding a couple of detective shows with twists, an example being Charlie's Angels.

There also seems to be some concern about material that can arise from the problems of older people — Nancy Walker and her retired husband — plus three widowers with children.

Nova Reports On Heart Transplants

Heart surgeon Dr. Norman Shumway of Stanford University is the subject of a penetrating Nova study, The Transplant Experience, April 11 at 8:00 p.m. on Public TV 9.

The first heart transplant took place in 1967, when Dr. Christian Barnard gained worldwide recognition with his experimental techniques. Many other surgical teams followed his lead — with often disastrous results. Critics insisted that the heart transplants often were undertaken with the doctor's fame — and not the patient's health — in mind.

After the death of almost all 100 transplant patients, most doctors gave up the technique. But Dr. Shumway persisted. Shumway, who has performed more heart transplants than any other surgeon in the world, can claim that his patients have a 70 per cent chance of surviving more than a year. Thirty five of his eighty patients are still alive.

Nova examines what makes Shumway's procedure unique — from his careful choice of the donor, to his aggressive after-care. The program also shows in detail one of the animal operations that serve as "practice" for the Shumway team. Patients who have undergone transplants also speak with the Nova investigators.

SCIENCE THE SUZUKI WAY

On the next five editions of Science Magazine seen Sundays at 5 p.m. on CBC-TV, the topics range from trains without wheels; effective ways to clean up oil spills on beach and ocean; bacteria that are becoming resistant to drugs; why more athletic records are being broken; and the discovery of a link with man on North America 27,000 years ago and perhaps the discovery of "Yukon Man".

Host David Suzuki, proving science is good entertainment and fun, introduces these new discoveries and breakthroughs that will make major differences in Canadian lives.

On Sunday, April 11, the program has a special guest, Dr. Magnus Pyke, secretary of the British Association for the Advancement of Science and Dr. Pyke will discuss the subject dear to both their hearts — the popularizing of science. Both men are pre-eminent in their fields as well as outstanding personalities, and both are hosts of TV programs in their respective countries.

Dr. Pyke was in North America to attend the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting which took place in Boston in February and was especially brought to Toronto to do this interview for Science Magazine.

On Sunday, April 18 at the regular time of 5 p.m. the subject is cleaning up ocean oil spills and the work being done at the Bedford Institute of Oceanography in Halifax. Scientists there are still wrestling with the problem of the Arrow tanker oil spill which took place in Chedabucto Bay, Nova Scotia eight years ago. This program also shows work being done by Dr. Susan McIver of the University of Toronto into the sensorary mechanisms of mosquitoes.

On Sunday, April 25 the program looks at a new form of X-ray being developed in England. Called an EMI, this scanner gives doctors a three-dimensional view of the soft tissues of the body such as kidneys, brains, hearts, livers, and lungs. Shown too, will be the study of Dr. Gunther Stent of the University of California into the nervous systems of the leech. This work is progressing towards further understanding of human brain. In a third item the history of Clocks will be documented including film of the National Research Council's atomic clock in Ottawa which can split time into 1/1,000,000 of a second, the most accurate clock in the world.

On May 2, one of the topics is genetic variances in types of seaweed and oysters based on work being done by biologists Drs. Tony Chapman and Les Hayley at Dalhousie University. This program also films the archaeological excavation ongoing in the area of the Old Crow Flats in the Yukon. Human artifacts have been recently found there that carbon-date back 27,000 years. establishing the existence of the oldest known human settlement in North America. If a human skeleton is found it will be "Yukon Man" and establish another link to the past. The same program looks at a study that can determine what animals mosquitoes have fed on by examining the blood swallowed by the mosquitoes.

On the last program of the season, Sunday, May 9, Dr. Suzuki talks about transferable drug resistance and wonders if our abuse of antibiotics, which is creating new and greater numbers of mutant bacteria, will lead to antibiotics being almost useless in a few years' time. Commenting will be Drs. Varleton Gyles and D. C Barnum of Guelph University. Explaining why athletic records are being broken with greater and greater frequency is Dr. Eric Bannister of Simon Fraser University. His field is kinesiology which is the science of human movement with reference to body types and exercise. A third item on the program explains those little black boxes — the microcomputers.

Science Magazine with host Dr. David Suzuki will return to CBC-TV next season. The programs are under the direction of executive producer James Murray.

Today's Movies

The Cobra (xx), on 8 at 12:45. Routine 1968 Italian-made adventure about American agents trying to track down opium sources in the Middle East, starring Dana Andrews and Anita Ekberg.

Doctor X, on 11 at 1. No rating available on this 1932 thriller about the investigation of a series of full-moon murders, starring Lee Tracy, Lionel Atwill and Fay Wray.

Well of Love, on 5 at 3:30. A 1971 compilation of several television Lassie episodes about the collie's rescue from a well.

Tender Scoundrel, on 11 at 9. No rating available on this 1966 French-made comedy about a charming bachelor and his various romantic adventures, starring Jean-Paul Belmondo and Robert Morley.

Love Hate Love (xx), on 12 at 10. A 1971 made-for-television suspense-melodrama about a psychotic young man seeking vengeance on the woman who spurned him, starring Peter Haskell, Lesley Warren and Ryan O'Neal.

Blow-Up (xxxx), on 12 at 11:30. Director Michelangelo Antonioni's fascinating 1966 psychological puzzler about a young photographer who believes he is an accidental witness to a murder and who goes to extraordinary lengths to try and prove it. Antonioni captures the pop-art world of 1960s London with superb camerawork and the cast (Davis Hemmings, Vanessa Redgrave) fits in beautifully. Recommended for film buffs.

Kitten With a Whip (x), on 2 at midnight. A trashy 1964 drama about a political whose life and career are threatened by a group of hoodlums led by a delinquent young girl, starring John Forsythe and Ann-Margret.

The Mad Room (xx), on 6 at midnight. Shelley Winters and Stella Stevens star in this 1969 thriller about insanity and murder, loosely based on the chilling story, Ladies in Retirement. The story centers on a girl who is a companion to a wealthy widow, who brings her brother and sister to live with her after they are released from an asylum. There are some gory scenes, but fans of this type of horror story will be fascinated.

Sapphire (xxx), on 8 at midnight. An intriguing, well-paced 1959 British-made mystery about the painstaking investigation of the murder of a girl who was part black. Suspenseful and well-handled combination of crime and racial problems, with a good cast that includes Nigel Patrick and Michael Craig.

The Man From Colorado (xx), on 7 at 12:30. Glenn Ford turns in a strong performance in this offbeat 1948 psychological western about a sadistic Army officer out to control post-Civil War Colorado.

So Evil, So Young, on 6 at 1:55 a.m. No rating available on this 1960 English-made drama about an innocent young girl who is sent to a cruelly run reformatory, starring Jill Ireland.

Cry Panic, (xx), on 8 at 2 a.m. A 1974 made-for-television drama about a man caught in a nightmarish web of circumstantial evidence after he accidentally kills a drunk with his car. A competent cast includes John Forsythe, Anne Francis and Ralph Meeker.

Olympiad Profiles "The Australians"

Betty Cuthbert, Marjorie Jackson, Shirley Strickland, Ron Clarke, Herb Elliott and John Landy. These six are Australia's representatives chosen by Bud Greenspan for his production of The Australians, on Monday at 10 p.m. on Channel 8.

Australia is one of five countries that has competed in every Olympiad since their revival in Greece in 1896.

Sixty-seven countries competed in Melbourne, Australia, at the 16th Olympiad. For the first time Ethiopia, Kenya and Uganda were entered; the dawning of East Africa's dramatic surge to international prominence in Olympic Games.

At the 1956 Melbourne Olympic Games "The Golden Girl", Betty Cuthbert, won three gold medals in the 100 and 200 metres and the 400-metre relay. Four years later in Rome she injured her leg and retired. "Eighteen months later," she recalls, "a little voice began telling me to run, but I didn't want to. As soon as I made the decision, I felt terrific." Betty Cuthbert, after eight years in retirement won the gold medal in the 400-metre race at the 1964 Tokyo Games.

Marjorie Jackson is credited as the woman responsible for the return of Australia to prominence in Olympic competition. At the 1952 Helsinki Olympic Games, Marjorie won gold medals in the 100 and 200 metre races. Marjorie, as anchor leg for the favored Australian 400 metre relay team, attempted to win her third gold medal. During the pass-off the baton fell and the gold medal was awarded to the United States.

In three Olympiads, Shirley Strickland won three gold, one silver and three bronze medals. Of all the times she stood on the victory platform, she recalls her greatest moment was in Helsinki. "In Australia we'd had some argument about which was the national anthem "God Save The Queen" or "Advance Australia Fair". Both were played while I stood there and to me that seemed a very special bonus."

Today, Ron Clarke is regarded by many as the greatest middle distance runner in history. Ironically, although he held 21 world records, Ron Clarke never won an Olympic or Commonwealth gold medal. The greatest vocal acclaim he received during his career was on a day he did not compete — the day he lit the torch to open the Melbourne Olympic Games in 1956.

Australia's Herb Elliott is looked upon by many as the greatest mile runner in history. In his four year career he never lost either the mile or 1500-metre distances. "Winning was vital to me," said Herb, "I was probably more frightened of being beaten than most people, because I enjoyed winning more."

John Landy was the second man to break the four-minute-mile barrier. He is also the athlete with the dubious distinction of reading the wrong Olympic oath in Melbourne. He's the runner who during the Australian championships, stopped to help Ron Clarke to his feet after he had tripped and then went on to win the mile event. A modest man, Landy summed up his career: "I think that I got a little more publicity than my athletic prowess deserved and suffered the fate of always being thought able to do more than I could."

It was during the 1956 Melbourne Games that a young Australian-born Chinese wrote to the Chairman of the Olympic Committee suggesting a final march take place during the closing ceremonies. "This march," he suggested, "must not have any teams marching together. Members of every team should join side-by-side, as one nation."

The Australians closes with this final March of Athletes as one nation in the Melbourne Stadium, a tradition that today remains a part of all Olympic Games.

Narrator, David Perry says, "It was a mixture of love and warmth that had not been seen before and has not been felt since."

Petrochemicals— Canada's Biggest Economic Gamble

The energy crisis has pitchforked Canada into one of the biggest economic gambles in our history. It has set the stage for a massive move into one of the fastest growing industries in the world—petrochemicals.

New world-scale plants being built in Ontario and Alberta will create thousands of high-paying jobs processing our own oil and gas and could play a crucial role in restoring Canada's balance of payments deficit. As a side effect, energy-rich Alberta will emerge as a major partner in the confederation of Canada's provinces.

The story of the risks and potential benefits of this development will be told in a CBC-TV documentary, Petrochemical Giant? . . . Now or Never, to be telecast on Wednesday, April 14, at 10:30 p.m.

The age of petrochemicals has arrived with a rush. Petrochemicals are the basis of the plastics and chemicals that have transformed our way of life. Scarcely a thing we use today does not have a petrochemical component. The industry can generate tremendous wealth. A dollar's worth of natural gas put through the petrochemical system will multiply to a market value of $50 to $100. But Canada has largely missed out on the bonanza of manufacturing these products. We let other countries make them for us to buy.

This documentary looks at the massive challenge facing Canada. More money is being invested in the Canadian petrochemical industry over the next five years than in the previous thirty.

Building these plants and bringing them on stream will be a major challenge for Canada. Governments will have to take off their gloves and fight hard for tariff adjustments to give our producers access to world markets. The petrochemical firms will have to develop the marketing expertise to sell aggressively and ticking relentlessly in the background will be the time bomb of Arab oil and Arab ambition to become competitors in these same markets. The petrochemical game is a game for the strong. And the experts say it is a now or never situation. Within a very few years, the Middle East countries which have far greater petrochemical and petroleum resources than we do, are likely to make a massive investment in that industry.

The petrochemical story goes to the very heart of Canada's political life. Petrochemicals have become part of the historic Canadian struggle among regions. Alberta asks, will the benefits of this development go to the people of Alberta who own the gas, on which those jobs are based, or will they go to the people of Ontario and Quebec who have the political clout in Canada to direct the countries political life?

The program leaves little doubt that petrochemicals give Canada an important new opportunity to diversify out of our excessive dependence on resources industries.

Petrochemical Giant? . . . Now or Never was produced by Larry Arcand for the CBC-TV agriculture and resources department. Researcher-commentator was Garnett Anthony.

IN A RARE TELEVISION APPEARANCE Her Serene Highness Princess Grace of Monaco discusses her former acting career, her life as a Princess and the problems of raising a family, when she appears on the Mike Douglas Show on Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 12 and 6:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

Today's Movies

Marco Polo (x), on 8 at 12:45. A 1961 costume adventure starring Rory Calhoun as the traveller to China. The supporting cast is dubbed into English.

Morgan the Pirate (x), on 11 at 1. Another Italian-made adventure, this one filmed in 1960 and starring muscle-man Steve Reeves as a pirate with Herculean powers.

Fitzwilly (xx), on 5 at 3. Dick Van Dyke plays a butler who organizes his fellow servants into a gang of thieves to keep their once-wealthy mistress from going broke in this whimsical 1967 comedy, also starring Dame Edith Evans and Barbara Feldon. (Today's movie begins one-half hour earlier today, pre-empting Somerset.)

Les Miserables (xxxx), on 12 at 7. A superb 1935 film version of Victor Hugo's classic novel about a reformed criminal, imprisoned for stealing a loaf of bread, who is relentlessly pursued by an unforgiving police inspector. Fredric March and Charles Laughton are flawless. Recommended for lovers of classic drama.

The Hellbenders (xx), on 11 at 9. Routine 1966 Italian-produced Civil War western about a Confederate officer on a private vendetta, starring Joseph Cotten.

The Deadly Visitor, on 4 at 11:30. No rating available on this made-for-TV mystery starring Gwen Verdon as the owner of a boarding house haunted by the apparition of a vengeful ex-tenant.

The Comedians (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. Sluggish direction, and a script that dwells to long on unnecessary detail mars this otherwise interesting 1967 movie version of the Graham Greene novel about a group of people caught up in "Papa Doc" Duvalier's reign of terror in Haiti. An excellent cast includes Richard Burton, Elizabeth Taylor, Alec Guinness, Peter Ustinov, Lillian Gish and Paul Ford.

Espionage in Lisbon (x), on 2 at midnight. Low-budget 1965 Spanish-made drama about secret agents vs. spies trying to get hold of a secret invention. Cast is unfamiliar.

Cromwell (xx), on 6 at midnight. An excellent cast (Richard Harris, Alec Guinness, Robert Morley, Dorothy Tutin, Frank Finlay and Patrick Magee) make up for some of the historical inaccuracies in this 1970 British-produced account of how Oliver Cromwell toppled the throne of King Charles I.

Topaz (xx), on 8 at midnight. Alfred Hitchcock directed this 1969 film version of the best-selling suspense novel about a security leak during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, starring John Forsythe, Dany Robin and Canadian actor John Vernon who is particularly good as a Castro-type revolutionary.

Charlie Bubbles (xxx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. Celebrated actor Albert Finney directed and stars in this offbeat, but interesting 1968 portrait of a young man of very modest circumstances who is catupulted out of his station and into fame, fortune and an excessive boredom he simply cannot bear. Liza Minnelli in one of her first screen appearances is excellent as Finney's girlfriend.

Pursuit Across the Desert, on 8 at 2:30 a.m. No rating available on this 1961 Mexican-made western with the familiar plot of a sheriff on the trail of a man falsely accused of murder.

I Love My Wife (xx), on 6 at 2:55 a.m. Elliott Gould and Brenda Vaccaro star in this 1970 satire on sex and marriage.

Today's Highlights

HOCKEY PLAY-OFFS—Channel 2 and 6 may pre-empt regularly scheduled programs this evening to telecast a quarterfinal round in the Stanley Cup Play-offs.

Festival of Lively Arts for Young People, on 7 and 12 at 3. A song-and-dance salute to jazz, from 19th-century work songs to the electronic sounds of the 1970s with Dionne Warwick, Lionel Hampton, Count Basie, Stan Getz, Dizzy Gillespie and Gerry Mulligan. (60 mins.)

Mike Douglas, on 12 at 12:30 and 7 at 6:30. Among Mike's special guests today is Princess Grace of Monaco in a rare television appearance. (90 mins.)

Drama Special, on 5 at 7. The Phantom Rebel, about the adventures of a U.S. Revolutionary War cobbler and his fight against the British. (60 mins.)

Anyone for Tennyson?, on 9 at 7. Actress Valerie Harper (of Rhoda) joins the First Poetry Quartet for a reading of works by Edna St. Vincent Millay. (30 mins.)

Cartoon Special, on 7 at 8. Here Comes Peter Cottontail, an animated Easter story about the adventures of a rabbit, with voices by Danny Kaye and Vincent Price. (30 mins.)

Alias John Preston (xx), on 11 at 1. An unexceptional 1955 psychological drama about a respected citizen who has recurring dreams in which he is a murderer, starring Christopher Lee, Alexander Knox and Betta St. John.

A Farewell to Arms (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. (Part 1) Rock Hudson and Jennifer Jones star in this 1957 film version of Ernest Heminhway's First World War classic about the romance between an American ambulance driver and a British nurse. Not as good as the 1932 Gary Cooper-Helen Hayes version, but still entertaining. Conclusion tomorrow.

Charley Varrick, on 8 at 9. An unpreviewed 1973 crime-drama starring Walter Matthau as a small-time bank robber who runs afoul of big-league racketeers when he unwittingly steals their payroll. Supporting cast includes Joe Don Baker, Felicia Farr, John Vernon and Sheree North.

Romeo and Juliet (xxxx), on 11 at 9. Ballet fans will enjoy this 1966 British production of Shakespeare's classic tragedy set to the music of Prokofiev, and performed by Rudolf Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn.

The Heat Wave Lasted Four Days, on 4 at 11:30. A 1974 Canadian produced crime-drama about a television cameraman who becomes involved with a narcotics dealer being sought by both syndicate killers and the police, starring Gordon Pinsent and Alexandra Stewart.

Judith (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A muddled 1966 espionage tale about an Austrian Jewess helping the Israeli underground track her ex-husband who betrayed her to the Nazis. A poor script mars the performances of Sophia Loren, Peter Finch and Jack Hawkins.

The Lady Vanishes (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. A top-notch Alfred Hitchcock 1938 thriller classic about a playgirl who befriends an elderly lady on a train, and finds she is involved in a dangerous spy plot when the lady disappears. Produced in Britain with an excellent cast that includes Margaret Lockwood, Paul Lukas, Michael Redgrave and Dame May Whitty. Recommended.

Tiara Tahati (xx), on 8 at midnight. A leisurely paced 1963 British-made comedy-drama about a pompous former officer who arrives in Tahati with plans to build a modern hotel, but finds unexpected opposition in the form of an old army enemy living a life of ease on the island. James Mason and John Mills star.

Oedipus the King (xxx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. An excellent 1968 film rendering of Sophocles' classic tragedy of murder and incest in ancient Greece, starring Christopher Plummer, Lilli Palmer and Orson Welles.

The Strange Love of Martha Ivers, on 6 at 1:30 a.m. No rating available on this grim and compelling 1946 drama about passion and violence in a small U.S. town, starring Barbara Stanwyck and Van Heflin.

Ransom for a Dead Man (xxx), on 8 at 3 a.m. Late night viewers will enjoy this well-acted 1971 pilot for the popular series Columbo, starring Peter Falk as the bumbling police lieutenant on the trial of a woman lawyer (Lee Grant) who killed her husband.

Today's Highlights

Great Canadian Culture Hunt, on 2 and 6 at 8. In the last program of this series, host Gordon Pinsent looks at television in Canada and the effect of foreign programs on the Canadian's sense of identity. (60 mins.)

Little House on the Prairie, on 5 at 8. An encore telecast of the two-hour series pilot movie, based on Laura Ingalls Wilder's novel about a family's adventure-filled life on the Kansas frontier. This 1974 film was directed by Michael Landon who also plays the leading role. (2 hrs.)

To the Sea in Ships, on 2 and 6 at 9. A documentary special examining 7000 years of shipbuilding. Ancient frescos and paintings, and film footage of restored and reconstructed vessels illustrate the history of water travel from the Nile River boats of Pharoah's Egypt through the age of explorers, the clipper ships of the 19th century to modern craft like the hydroplane. The program also includes a discussion of the future of the worldwide shipping trade. (90 mins.)

Mozart in Seattle, on 9 at 9. A look at the Seattle Symphony Orchestra focusing on two musicians as they prepare for a performance. Violist-conductor Milton Katims and violinist Henryk Szeryng are followed through daily activities from rehearsals to discussion of interpretations of various musical works. Climaxing the program is a performance of Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante for Violin, Viola and Orchestra. (60 mins.)

Sandburg's Lincoln, on 5 at 10. The Last Days, a dramatization of the South's surrender at Appomattox; President Lincoln's plans for a "harmonious reconciliation" and Edwin Stanton, the powerful and distrustful Secretary of War, who attempts to block the President's plans. But more than politics is weighing on Lincoln's mind, as he becomes obsessed with dreams that foretell his death. Hal Holbrook portrays Lincoln. (60 mins.)

Missa Solemnis, on 9 at 10. A music special featuring a 1970 performance of Beethoven's Solemn Mass, celebrating the bicentennial of the composer's birth and the 50th anniversary of the ordination of Pope Paul VI, by the Bavarian Radio Chorus. The mass was filmed in St. Peter's Basilica. (90 mins.)

Petrochemical Giant, on 2 and 6 at 10:30. A documentary special which examines the possible consequences of a broad expansion of Canada's petrochemical industry, with the focus on its impact on the employment situation in Alberta and Ontario, and on Canada's balance of payments. (30 mins.)

Today's Movies

A Farewell to Arms (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. (Part 2) Conclusion of this 1957 film version of Hemingway's novel about the romance between an ambulance driver and a British nurse during the First World War, starring Rock Hudson and Jennifer Jones.

The Greatest Story Ever Told (xxx), on 5 at 9. (Part i) A lavishly mounted but overlong 1965 Biblical drama depicting Christ's life on earth. Max von Sydow is well cast as Jesus Christ, but there are a number of big name stars wasted in minor roles, for example John Wayne as the Centurion; Charlton Heston as John the Baptist; jose Ferrer as Herod, and Shelley Witners as a woman of no name. Others in the huge cast include Telly Savalas, Claude Rains, Sal Mineo and Dorothy McGuire. (The film concludes on Saturday, April 17.)

Major Barbara (xxxx), on 9 at 9. An excellent, 1941 British-produced film version of George Bernard Shaw's classic comedy about labor, politics and an extraordinary Salvation Army girl. A flawless cast includes Wendy Hiller, Rex Harrison, Robert Morley, Emlyn Williams, Robert Newton, Sybil Thorndike and Deborah Kerr. Recommended.

A Man Called Adam (xx), on 11 at 9. Sammy Davis Jr. stars in this 1966 drama about a jazz musician striving for success and personal acceptance in a racially prejudiced world. A bit heavy going at times, but Davis turns in a solid performance.

Dial Hot Line, on 12 at 10. No rating available on this 1970 drama about a psychiatric social worker and the troubled youngsters who call him for help, starring Vince Edwards and Kim Hunter.

How Green Was My Valley (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. A poignant, multi-Oscar winning 1941 movie adaptation of Richard Llewellyn's best-selling novel about life in a Welsh coal mining town, starring Walter Pidgeon, Maureen O'Hara and Donald Crisp. The film, the director (John Ford) and Donald Crisp all won Academy Awards. Recommended.

Promise Him Anything, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1975 made-for-television comedy about the misadventures of a couple matched by a computer dating service. Cast is unfamiliar.

Hello, Dolly! (xxxx), on 8 at midnight. Barbra Streisand plays the title role in this lavishly produced 1969 film version of the hit Broadway musical about Dolly Levi, the irrepressible matchmaker of 1890s New York. Barbra overpowers everyone in the cast (Walter Matthau, etc.) with the exception of the indomitable Louis Armstrong who makes a brief cameo appearance.

Secret Mission, on 12 at midnight. No rating available on this 1942 British-made espionage drama about four Allied agents on special assignment in Nazi-occupied France, starring James Mason, Michael Wilding and Hugh Williams.

Shamus (xx), on 6 at 1:30 a.m. Burt Reynolds portrays a tough New York private detective hired to recover stolen diamonds in this 1973 crime-drama filmed on location. Dyan Cannon is cast as the romantic interest.

The Girl Who Came Gift-Wrapped (xx), on 8 at 3 a.m. A lightweight but fairly entertaining 1974 comedy about the romantic misadventures of a country girl who comes to the big city in search of a husband, starring Karen Valentine and Richard Long.

EARL HAMNER (left), creator and executive story consultant of The Waltons, visits on the set with series star Richard Thomas, during the filming of the special two-hour presentation of The Waltons, entitled, The Easter Story, to be encored on Thursday at 8 p.m. on Channel 7 and 12.

Highlights

HOCKEY PLAY-OFFS — Channel 2 and 6 may pre-empt regularly scheduled programs this evening for coverage of a quarterfinal round in the Stanley Cup Play-offs.

The Waltons, on 7 and 12 at 8. Tonight's program expands to two hours in an encore telecast of episode in which Olivia (Michael Learned) contracts polio which was a mysterious crippler during the Depression. Confined to her bed, the iron-willed woman is fighting two battles; to overcome paralysis, and to make sure her family can stand without her. (2 hrs.)

The Way It Was, on 9 at 8. College football takes the spotlight as tonight's edition of this sports retrospective series looks at Columbia's triumph over Army in 1947, with some of the game's highlights recalled by guests Earl "Red" Blaik and Gene Rossides. (30 mins.)

Maclear, on 8 at 9:30. An encore telecast of a program entitled, After the Parcel Exploded, the story of a British army officer serving in strife-torn Ulster in 1973 who was the victim of an IRA parcel bomb, leaving him blind, partially deaf and with the loss of one hand. The program is a study of the man's determination to overcome his disabilities. The program was prepared by journalist and broadcaster Michael Maclear. (30 mins.)

ABC News Special, on 4 at 10. Medicine and Money — an examination of America's health care system which, according to the producers of this report, is rife with frauds and abuse. (60 mins.)

Johnny Carson Show, on 5 at 11:30. Among Johnny's guests tonight is comedian-impressionist John Byner. (90 mins.)

Tomorrow, on 5 at 1 a.m. Host Tom Snyder's guest is world-famed pediatrician and author Dr. Benjamin Spock. (60 mins.)

What's Cooking?—A Food Show With a Difference

By SHAWN G. KENNEDY

NEW YORK — At first glance "What's Cooking?" (Wednesdays at 7 p.m. on Channel 9) seems indistinguishable from any other television cooking show. An aproned hostess, in one of those cheery, pristine kitchen sets that is supposed to be in a home (but seems too tidy, too well-equipped) stands behind a free-floating cooking unit, her utensils and ingredients ready and waiting, about to launch into the how-to's of whipping up a gourmet feast.

But that notion is exploded as soon as this hostess, La Deva Davis, starts to speak.

"We're going to do some dynamite things with eggs today," she said on a recent show. "We're going to make an egg pie; that's quiche lorraine, if you want to be fancy about it. And then we'll try a cheese souffle. But don't be scared. If I can do it you can do it."

"And then," she continued, "let me lay this one on you. We're going to make something called an egg shake that'll make you forget about bacon and eggs in the morning."

"Booga, booga, booga," she crooned as she danced and twisted toward the cooking unit.

With a style more comparable to that of Pearl Bailey than Julia Child, Miss Davis' personality lends a sugar-coating to this Public Broadcasting Service series on low-cost, high-nutrition cookery.

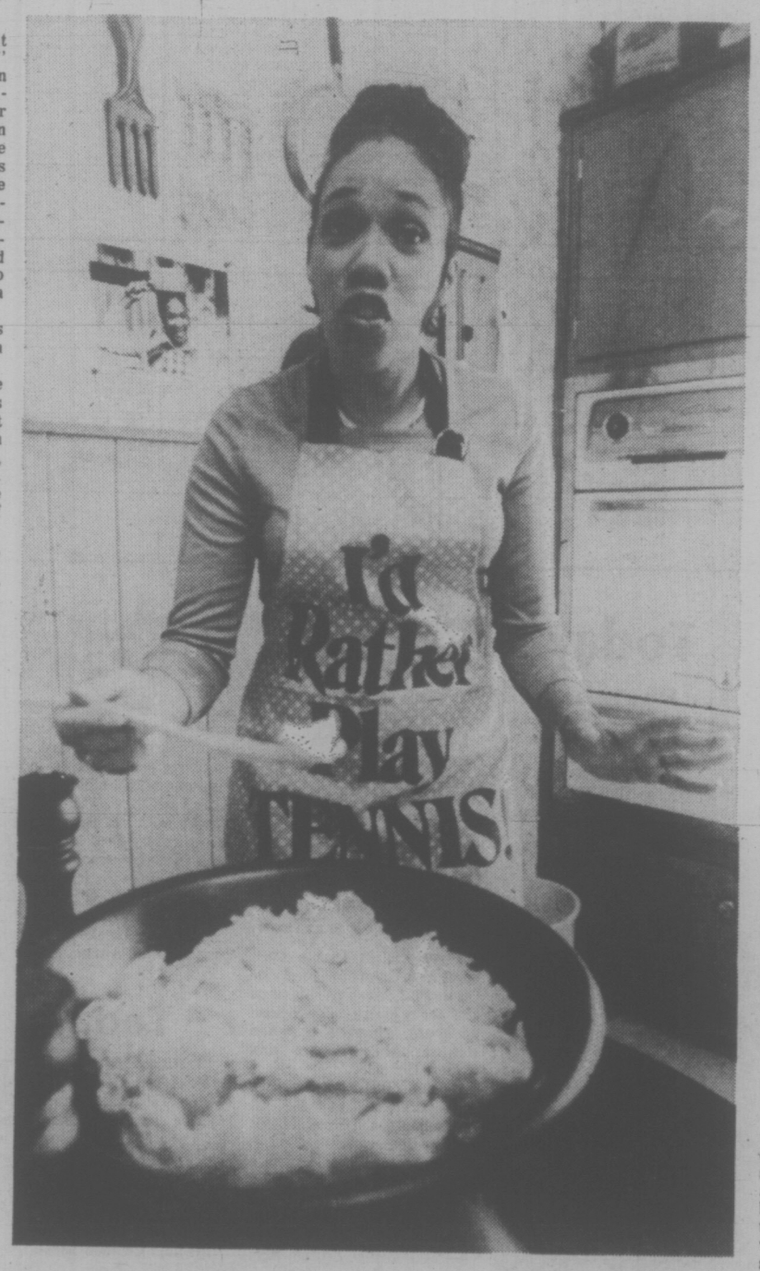
Mindful of the "boring" image a straight-talking nutritionist or home economist might create, from the very beginning the producers of the show knew they wanted a hostess who would make the program fun to watch.

"We came up with the idea for this type of cooking show — a sort of televised 'recession cookbook' — because the other consumer-oriented programs like Consumer Survival Kit had received such tremendous audience response," said Shellie Karabell, of station WHYY-TV, the public broadcasting affiliate in Philadelphia that developed and produced the program.

"But we knew that we needed a personality, someone like La Deva with noise and a sense of humor, to carry it off. We didn't want the show to be informative but dull."

So last spring, Miss Davis, a 31-year-old junior high school music teacher, who was neither a professional cook nor a seasoned television performer was offered the job. The producers had "discovered" Miss Davis, who sings professionally, two years before when she brought an Afro-American dance troupe to the station for a show.

"They called me at home about a year ago and said, 'La Deva, do you cook at all?'" Miss Davis recalled during an interview recently. "I told them that I was no Julia Child but that I knew my way around the burners." The 13-week series, Miss Davis said, was taped last summer during her vacation, so although the show is being aired now, she is back in the classroom "with the kids, who I really enjoy."



LA DEVA DAVIS hosts her special brand of low-cost, high-nutrition cookery on Wednesdays at 7 p.m. on Channel 9. This week she prepares special dishes for calorie counters.

There is no doubt, staff members insist, that Miss Davis' humorous approach was responsible for the show's success. But there was a no-nonsense side to it all as well. A cadre of nutritionists, dieticians and staff members worked out the recipes, planned the menus, tested the dishes, computed the cost, calories and nutritive value of each recipe and then shopped for the groceries and set up the kitchen for each taping session with Miss Davis.

Though low-cost was a factor —most dishes cost no more than $2.25 to prepare and a few could be made for 95 cents— Miss Davis's repertory included some things for all tastes. Among the dishes prepared during the series were some with a foreign flavor, like the chicken in almond sauce and the bouillabaise, and some "down home" dishes like cornmeal and bacon.

And then there were others that defied classification, such as the meatballs simmered in cranberry sauce and tomato soup.

The show's producer, Lynn Lonker, won't say "What's Cooking?" is a hit, but the program is now seen in 95 viewing areas across the country. And Miss Davis has received more than 4,000 fan letters and recipe requests since the first broadcast last Jan. 21.

"What makes me feel good about the show is that people tell me that even though the dishes are cheap, they still taste good," Miss Davis said. "That must be true because even though I'm not a cook ..I couldn't keep the crew and staffers away from the stuff I fixed. It went like crazy. Gone as soon as we finished the show; every time. Except the day I fixed my BLT." BLT?

"Oh, that's what I called my brains, liver and tongue dishes," Miss Davis said.

PBS RAISES $7 MILLION

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Public Television, long the poor relation of commercial TV, is shucking its Cinderella image and turning up a money-maker.

Festival '76, public television's second annual fund-raising campaign, has brought in more than $7.8 million for public broadcasting service stations during its March 7 through March 21 campaign, breaking last year's record of more than $5 million in donations.

The fact that PBS stations are non-profit doesn't mean they are indifferent to money. Private donations are a prime goal, particularly since federal funding requires public television to match every federal dollar with $2.50 acquired elsewhere.

New Era

"What we are in now is a whole new era in which public television for the first time is moving alongside commercial television as a major system of broadcasting," said Lawrence K. Grossman, the new president of PBS.

PBS audiences nationally still are but a small proportion of the total television audience, but Grossman was understandably elated that its viewers were willing to give out, as well as speak out, on the need for alternative television.

There has been an enormous outpouring of public support for Public Television," Grossman said. "We have exceeded our goals, which were double last year's goals. I think this is a demonstration on how Public Television has really caught on and is going to explode in this country."

Festival '76 provided audiences with a wide variety of specials, as well as standard PBS fare, in an effort to lure viewers who would contribute and become members.

Grossman believes the wide variety of excellent programming for the fund-raising effort deserves credit for much of its success — from specials such as the Edith Piaf musical biography, I Regret Nothing, to the regularly scheduled and very popular Upstairs, Downstairs and Adams Chronicles.

If this were commercial television, programming executives antennae would be quivering at the reception given particular shows, such as the Piaf special.

"There's a great danger of falling into that trap and we have to be careful," Grossman said. "We pay close attention to the ratings but they are not our prime determinant of programming. If they were, we would look at the Piaf response — it was our biggest money-maker — and say, "wow, we ought to get more Piafs.'

"But then we would be programming for the educated white upper and upper middle class audience. We get our money from them, true, but we have other responsibilities as well."

Public Television works with patchwork financing, and some of its problems are peculiar to its special circumstances.

Foundations will supply funding for certain types of programs, and individual corporate sponsors often are delighted to back just such shows as the Piaf special — high caliber entertainment that polish the corporate image. It can be difficult to find such shows on commercial television which, with its emphasis on audience numbers, is better suited to selling products than pitching images.

Public television stations do need money that comes in with no strings attached, not earmarked for particular use.

"The money the stations get from the public is really the only major uncommitted funds they can use at their own discretion," Grossman said. "It can be used to best serve the community in ways for which underwriting or grants are not available — news, public affairs, controversial programs."

Challenge

Grossman also spoke of the challenge inherent in the matching funds approach to federal financing, saying:

"It's important because stations that must get the support of their communities must stay in touch with their communities. They can't just throw stuff on the air because it's good for people and expect to get anywhere.

"Some think that you have to plead poverty to get donations, but I think you must show success to attract contributions, and we have demonstrated to corporations, foundations and government that there is tremendous public support for public television.

"We have shown we are worth their support. Our new members (those who pledge contributions) mean a great deal to us, not only in dollars but in political clout."

Today's Movies

David Copperfield (xxxx), on 8 at 12:45. An excellent 1970 British-made version of the Charles Dickens' classic about a young man's adventures in 19th-century England, starring Robin Phillips, Richard Attenborough, Laurence Olivier and Pamela Franklin. Recommended.

The Night Riders (x), on 11 at 1. Routine, low-budget 1939 John Wayne western.

Gidget Grows Up (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Karen Valentine plays the title role in this lightweight 1969 made-for-TV comedy that finds our heroine working as a UN tour guide. Supporting cast includes Edward Mulhare and Paul Peterson.

A Boy Named Charlie Brown, on 7 and 12 at 8. Fans of the comic strip Peanuts will enjoy this 1969 feature-length cartoon about the adventures of Charlie Brown and his friends. The film was written by Peanuts creator Charles M. Schulz and includes songs by the poet-singer Rod McKuen.

Love Story (xxx), on 4 at 9. One of Hollywood's most successful box-office hits is this 1970 tearjerker about the ill-fated romance between a Harvard rich boy and a Radcliffe poor girl, starring Ryan O'Neal and Ali McGraw. It's high-gloss histronics all the way, but movie audiences loved it and the film's score won an Oscar.

Three Violent People (xx), on 11 at 9. An action-filled 1956 Civil War western about a rancher fighting illegal land grabbers, starring Charlton Heston, Anne Baxter and Gilbert Roland.

Beneath the Planet of the Apes (xxx), on 7 at 9:30. This 1970 sequel to the excellent 1968 science-fiction classic focuses on the future world where monkeys rule and a race of mutated humans lives underground, and features many of the original film's cast including Charlton Heston, Kim Hunter and Maurice Evans.

The Cardinal (xxx), on 12 at 9:30. Otto Preminger directed this lavishly-produced but overlong 1963 saga about the personal life and religious career of a dedicated young Catholic priest who rises to the lofty position of cardinal. Tom Tryon (who gave up his film career for that of a successful novelist) stars in the title role with a uniformly fine supporting cast including John Houston and Burgess Meredith.

The Ten Commandments (xxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. Director Cecil B. DeMille's massive 1956 Biblical spectacle about the life and religious conflicts of Moses, lavishly filmed, with Charlton Heston, Yul Brynner and Edward G. Robinson heading a huge cast. (4½ hours.)

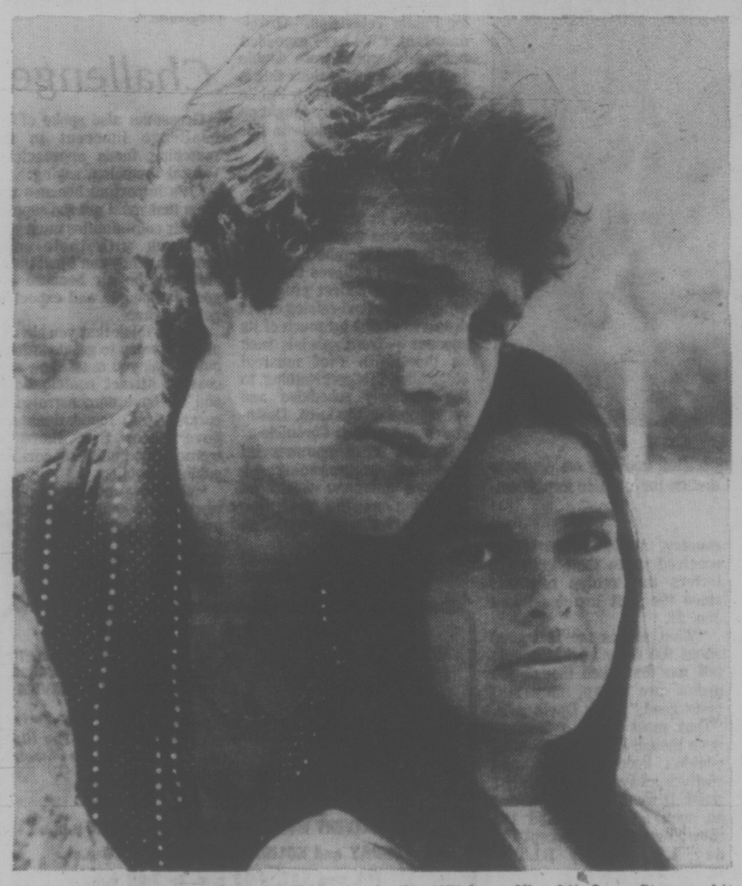
The Mystery of Edwin Drood (xxx), on 7 at 12:30. An interesting 1935 film adaptation of Charles Dickins' final—and uncompleted—novel, starring Claude Rains in the title role. It's an 18th-century horror story about a maniacal choirmaster who leads a double life, giving lessons by day, and smoking opium and committing murder by night.

Ambush Bay (xx), on 4 at 12:40 a.m. A 1966 Second World War drama about a group of U.S. Marines on a dangerous mission in the Philippines, starring Hugh O'Brien and Mickey Rooney.

Something for the Boys (xx), on 2 at 1 a.m. A tuneful, bawdy 1944 musical set in a home for war wives, starring Vivian Blaine, Phil Silvers and Carmen Miranda.

Take Her, She's Mine (xx), on 12 at 1 a.m. James Stewart, Audrey Meadows and Sandra Dee star in this lightweight 1963 comedy about a harrassed father worrying over his nubile teen-age daughter.

The Invisible Woman, on 7 at 2:15. No rating available on this 1940 film about an eccentric scientist who uses a vengeful model to test his method for rendering humans invisible, starring John Barrymore and Virginia Bruce.



ALI MACGRAW AND RYAN O'NEAL star in the 1970 box-office hit, Love Story, a bittersweet story of a rich boy-poor girl romance set against college life at Harvard and Radcliffe, to be telecast on Friday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4.

Today's Highlights

McMillan and Wife, on 8 at 7:30. A repeat of the episode which finds Mac and Sally (series stars Rock Hudson and Susan Saint James) shocked to discover a human skeleton buried behind a wall of their house which fell down during a minor earthquake. (2 hrs.)

Peanuts Cartoon Special, on 2 and 6 at 8. An encore telecast of a seasonal favorite, It's the Easter Beagle, Charlie Brown. (30 mins.)

Oral Roberts Special, on 11 at 8. An Easter celebration with Oral Roberts and his special guests singer Robert Goulet and evangelist Corrie ten Boom. (60 mins.)

Tommy Hunter Easter Show, on 2 and 6 at 8:30. Tonight's program expands to 90 minutes for an Easter celebration with host Tommy Hunter and his guests Elaine Overholt, Stephanie Taylor, Yves Abel and the Orpheus Choir. (90 mins.)

Masterpiece Theatre, on 9 at 9. Part 2 of the three-episode dramatization of Somerset Maugham's Cakes and Ale, about the romantic adventures of a promiscuous barmaid. (60 mins.)

Holy Week in Egypt, on 2 at 10. The Christians of Egypt—the Copts—whose religious traditions date back to St. Mark the Evangelist, are the subject of this special film presentation. Titled Holy Week in Egypt, this spectacularly beautiful film shows the daily life of the four million Copts, their religious ceremonies during Holy Week, and traces the history of the Coptic Church back to the time of its establishment by St. Mark. (60 mins.)

Ellery Queen, on 6 at 10. Tonight's episode finds Ellery (series star Jim Hutton) investigating the murder of a ruthless advertising executive who was quietly murdered in his office during the lunch hour. Guest cast includes Eddie Bracken, Bob Crane, Carolyn Jones and Juliet Mills. (60 mins.)

Johnny Carson Show, on 5 at 11:30. Among Johnny's guests tonight are opera star Marilyn Horne and comedian Robert Klein. (90 mins.)

Midnight Special, on 5 at 1 a.m. Hostess Olivia Newton-John welcomes the Ike and Tina Turner Review, Waylon Jennings, Kenny Rankin and British pop singer Leo Sayer. (90 mins.)

Spring Season Brings Radio Program Changes

Like spring, CBC Radio brings a few changes in the air. While some old favorites return, such as Music de Chez Nous, Opera By Request and Variety International, a spate of new programs gives CBC Radio a new look for spring and summer.

Montreal musician Pierre Rolland and host Jim Coward return with Music de Chez Nous, Saturdays at 7 p.m. They introduce some of the finest concerts and recitals recorded during the past year by the French network of CBC Radio. Among the highlights is a Soiree d'Opera, May 29, with soprano Louise Lebrun and bass Joseph Rouleau joining the Orchestre de Radio-Canada. The June 12 edition features the International Conference of Horn Players in a varied 90-minute program.

Regional Orchestras returns to the 9:30 p.m. spot Saturdays, with Edmonton music critic Anne Burrows as host. The series features half-hour performances by the Hamilton Philharmonic Virtuosi under Boris Brott and the Calgary Philharmonic and the Edmonton Symphony Orchestras under Pierre Hetu, Russell Stanger and Harman Haakman. The Alberta programs were recorded at the CBC Alberta Festival.

Many of Canada's leading musicians are featured in a wide-ranging repertoire on Music Alive, back again at 11:03 p.m. on Saturdays. Eric McLean, music critic for the Montreal Star, once more introduces the programs, most of which are recorded at CBC Festivals across Canada.

Recycling the Blues, a popular CBC-FM series, is now broadcast on CBC-AM as well on Sundays at 11:03 p.m. It's an uninterrupted hour of rhythm and blues reflecting an important aspect of black culture from Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee to Aretha Franklin.

After the Metropolitan Opera ends its broadcast season, Bill Hawes returns to host Opera By Request, Sat. April 24 at 2:03 p.m. For the third season, listeners can enjoy their favorite choruses, arias, overtures or other operatic selections, by writing Opera By Request, CBC, Box 500, Station A, Toronto M5W 1E6. As a special new feature, Bill Hawes interviews some famous opera personalities including tenor Luciano Pavarotti and soprano Joan Sutherland.

In a lighter vein, Larry Palef introduces Sounds Like Summer, Saturdays at 9:30 a.m., as of May 29. It will consist of popular music from the large repertoire of CBC Broadcast Recordings.

When the NHL playoffs conclude, (probably late May), Sunday evenings will be taken up with two hours of Variety International at 7:05 p.m. — musical biographies of big-time entertainers, celebrities in concert and other extravaganzas culled mostly from the BBC and other broadcasting organizations. It's followed at 9:03 p.m. with Folk Circle (formerly heard only on CBC-FM), in which Bill Hawes introduces an hour of traditional and contemporary folk music.

For 11 weeks starting Sat. July 10 at 8:30 p.m., CBC Radio brings listeners the best From the Proms, summery selections on disc and tapes recorded at pop concerts.

For other lively summertime listening, cellist Peter Schenkman hosts an eight-week series about The Art of the Collector, Sundays at 4:03 p.m. starting July 11.

Books . . .

Pat Barclay

Two novels this week, as unalike as two modern Canadian novels could conceivaly be, except for one thing: both could have benefited from the services of a judicious editor.

Jacques Ferron, according to his dust-jacket, is "without a doubt the most prominent literary figure in Quebec today." He has written plays, novels, short stories, essays and journalism, and has won a number of major prizes for his work, including a Governor-General's Award. He also studied medicine at Laval, worked at a psychiatric hospital and at present conducts a suburban practice near Montreal.

The original French edition of Wild Roses appeared in 1971. A novella rather than a full-length novel, it was accompanied by a long short story titled Love Letter. Both pieces have now been translated into English by Betty Bednarski, who teaches French-Canadian literature at Dalhousie University.

Good translation is an art which requires technical skill and empathy in very nearly equal amounts. Then what, I ask you, are we to assume from a passage which reads like this: "They were two very beautiful people, they seemed suited, but perhaps they were already too deeply in love to be able to love without honour. Was it because they were of different peoples and different countries? Partly, no doubt. And because of this it was hard for them to share the familiar, slightly vulgar gestures so natural within a village or clan."

(Reading this stilted prose I was irresistibly reminded of a stately gentleman I once knew who taught Russian literature in translation. He was devoted to his subject, yet every so often he would break into a furious denunciation of the translator and finish up by declaring that we'd all be better off ignorant than reading works so badly mauled. Then he'd revert to his normal color again and light up a gold-tipped cigarette.)

For all that, Wild Roses and Love Letter make unusually haunting reading. Both centre around characters of marked mental instability. Ferron's skill at showing us how the world looks from inside a disturbed head is surely remarkable, and his poetic style is apparent even in this translation.

But Ferron is also anxious to be topical, and a large portion of Wild Roses is devoted to describing his hero's visit to Moncton, N.B. In the context of the story proper, his comments on topography, Acadians and local history are, quite frankly, a distracting bore, and I doubt whether any editor would have allowed them to stand if Ferron had been a less celebrated writer.

Also in need of an editor's firm hand is R. J. Chick Childerhose, a west coast freelance writer who has recently published his third novel for adults, The Man Who Wanted to Save Canada. Childerhose's book is exciting and written with a nice touch of throwaway wit in places, but it suffers from an excess of enthusiasm.

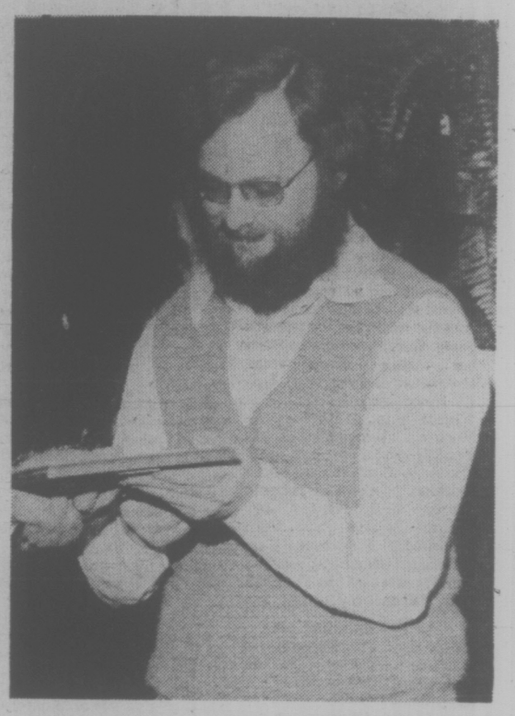
Childerhose calls his book "a prophetic novel," and has dated it sometime in the near future when the country is about to collapse under the dual pressures of Quebec separatism and U.S. imperialism. Its hero, Neil Brody, is a former RCAF officer who decides to take on Canadian apathy single-handed. What happens to him, given Childerhose's view of our federal leadership, is no less chilling because it is predictable.

With this novel Childerhose has, either consciously or unconsciously, set about writing a Canadian version of George Orwell's 1984. But it lacks focus because it contains no counterpart to Orwell's Big Brother as a readily identifiable enemy. Neil Brody's antagonist is the many-headed hydra of Ottawa bureaucracy, RCMP surveillance, media censorship, intellectual mugwumpery, student irresponsibility, etc., etc. He flails away via letters to the editor, newspaper advertisements, public speeches and protest marches. He also renews ties with an old flame, trades quips with a French-Canadian friend and gains access to more busy men with less difficulty than could reasonably be expected of Caspar the friendly ghost. All this after researching the latest developments in biological and chemical warfare.

Reading The Man Who Wanted to Save Canada is like attending a smorgasbord dinner and discovering that you've piled too much on your plate. Yet if it had had the advice of a canny editor before publication, and been backed up by a shrewd publicity campaign after it, I suspect this novel could have been more than a match for Richard Rohmer's Ultimatum, which has now passed the 150,000 sales mark in paperback. Compared to Childerhose's elaborate smorgasbord, the Rohmer offering is strictly crackers and cheese.

WILD ROSES, by Jacques Ferron. McClelland & Stewart. $6.95.
THE MAN WHO WANTED TO SAVE CANADA, by R. J. Chick Childerhose. Hoot Productions, Victoria. $10.

Howard White, of Pender Harbor, is this year's winner of Eaton's second annual British Columbia book award for his collected edition of Raincoast Chronicles. The history anthology was deemed by a panel of judges to be the book published in 1975 that had contributed most to the enjoyment and understanding of the province.



Raw History Of the Coast

By DAVID DAY

Most regional histories are rather like Great-Aunt Ethel's photo album. Only Ethel really knows who is actually in those faded photographs, and when she explains it means nothing to anybody who didn't live within one mile of Horsefly between the year 1904 and the year 1906.

Raincoast Chronicles: Stories and History of the B.C. Coast is, fortunately, not one of these books. It is a book that is deeply involved in the presentation of the raw history and legend from which any region's character and identity grow. Raincoast is essentially a journal of folk history—a working class history in a province settled by loggers, fishermen, miners and homesteaders. As editor Howard White explains in his introduction, he is after "the spirit of the B.C. coast" — something he admits is as elusive as the wily Sasquatch, but White and his associates none-the-less pursue the creature with enthusiasm and conviction.

The book is a collected edition of the Raincoast Chronicles magazine which first made its appearance three years ago. It combines the first five issues of the magazine with a substantial amount of new material. Raincoast has a kind of handmade, homespun quality about it which is fitting for a journal edited, printed and published in a barn in a forest clearing by what Maclean's magazine calls "the publishing magnate of Pender Harbour."

Through Raincoast I gain a strong sense of the rough anthenticity of this province's history. Professional historians have not yet had a chance to smooth it over yet, and Hollywood hasn't polished up any of the coarse characters.

There is certainly nothing glossy about this book's presentation, although it is a large and handsome 8" by 12" hard-bound book. It has 130 sepia tint photographs, 100 drawings and over 50 essays, articles and stories covering a range of regional subjects that cannot be found in any other publication.

The essential ingredients of the Raincoast history are the raw elements of the coast: the sea, the forest and the people who inhabit that piece of territory between. The book has articles and stories dealing with sailing clippers, steamers, towboats, whalers, gillnetters, bank trollers, handtrollers and sealers. A respectable representation of native Indian myths and life studies may be found from petroglyphs and Nootka whaling techniques to Haida potatoes and William Duncan's Indian "kingdom" of Metlakatla.

There is a great deal of excellent material on logging (from horse and oxen to steam and diesel) that is largely due to the efforts of associate editor Peter Trower. (Trower is probably one of the most knowledgeable men in the province on logging history and folklore, and definitely the most authentic "logger poet" to breathe air.)

There are articles on such divergent topics as rum running and leper colonies, lighthouses and sheep ranches, the Finnish utopia at Sointula, and a discussion on Buddhist settlements in Malaspina Straits.

Without doubt, this is the best source book currently available on Canada's West Coast. Anyone interested in the history and the "spirit" of the B.C. coast would be well advised to take a good look at Raincoast Chronicles.

RAINCOAST CHRONICLES: Stories and History of the B.C. Coast, edited by Howard White. Harbour Publications. $12.95.

'Precious' Poetry Gains Foothold Here

By LEONARD RUSSO

I used to think that a major difference between Canadian and American poetry was that there was less glossy magazine verse in this country — fewer of those precious, polished jewels, often written by academics, that you find in Esquire, the New Yorker, and Atlantic Monthly.

After reading Jeni Couzyn, I'm not so sure. Hers is a precious sort of verse, with a certain "Pulitzer" veneer to it, and if the workaday poetry addict is destined to find it sheer bull, no sweat, because innumerable learned folks are going to adore it.

In a word, Couzyn's a professional. Her stuff has an aura of sophistication, but no wallop. It's mature. It's artistic. The work of someone who could probably tell you sordid secrets and still come off looking pretty decent and good.

Fortunately, for the crude reader who insists on something direct, gritty, and memorable from poetry, section 3 of Couzyn's book offers a brief respite from the ooze. A poem called The Needy, though 11 lines too windy, is refreshingly unpoetic and tough. It's a flurry of short, stinging punches right to the gut. The Dilemma Of A Telephone Operator is more inventive, but just as effective.

If Couzyn could stick with poems like these, her work would become haunting and memorable soon enough. But with a background of poets' unions, conferences, and secretariats to overcome, the odds are against it.

Stuart MacKinnon's work is worse. It's boring, unfocused, and deceptively esoteric. He often starts with something to say, but is incapable of carrying it off. He's a hopeless academic, dishing out words — and subordinating us to his meandering poetic.

Oddly, MacKinnon's vocabulary is down-to-earth. Individual lines are clear and tight, but collectively they seldom add up. He looks easy enough, but anyone who bears to the bitter end of a MacKinnon poem deserves an Olympic medal.

Storm Warning 2, a long-awaited anthology among poetry lovers, parades forth 33 young Canadian poets, some of whom should be fairly familiar to readers of little magazines. For me, Rosemary Aubert, Rolf Harvey, and Hans Jewinski are among the more interesting of the bunch (though, in Jewinski's case, the selection of poems isn't the best).

It's always exhilarating to come across a poem like Harvey's The Desperate Canadian that pounds you to an emotional pulp, or Aubert's One Picture Is Worth A Thousand Words that casts an irreverent glance at a well-known marriage.

Poems like these are not engineered, but felt. They begin with something bold and solid and, lucky for us, they don't muck it up. Reading them is becoming a rare but not extinct modern experience.

CHRISTMAS IN AFRICA, by Jeni Couzyn. J. J. Douglas. $3.95.
THE LOST SURVEYOR, by Stuart MacKinnon. Oberon. $2.50.
STORM WARNING 2: The New Canadian Poets, selected by Al Purdy. McClelland & Stewart. $4.95.

Disaster Out of Denver

Leon Uris has done it again. His latest novel, Trinity, is a worthless piece of writing that is bound to become a best seller.

The contradiction is due to the man's understanding of the law of supply and demand. His formula (first exploited with Exodus) is to find a topical and highly emotional theme, spin it out — Trinity runs to 751 pages — and persuade the publisher to cut costs (poor paper and poor printing) in order to keep the price reasonable.

Trinity is set in Ireland during the period from the famine of the 1840s to the Easter uprising of 1916. This enables the nimble Uris to make a religious switch. After banging the drum for years on behalf of embattled European Jewry he is now carrying the torch for Irish Catholics.

The trinity of the title consists of the Larkin family, generations of impoverished Catholic hill farmers in Donegal, the Hubbles — the Earls of Foyle — representing three centuries of British aristocratic colonizers and exploiters, and the MacLeods of Belfast, a family of devout Scottish-Presbyterian shipyard workers.

Uris is not noted for his subtlety; to him everything is black or white. In Trinity, British aristocrats and industrialists, aided and abetted by Catholic bishops and an obnoxious Protestant clerical charlatan (the Rev. Ian Paisley in the thinnest of disguises), are portrayed as heartless creatures playing on the fears of Protestant workers in Ulster to maintain the profitable climate of hatred and violence which effectively keeps the Catholic majority subjugated.

Whilst every student of history will readily grant that Irish Catholics have been oppressed and exploited (with Vatican connivance) since the 12th century, the Uris case is a gross over-simplification. For one thing, native Irishmen, over the centuries, have often been their own worst enemies.

For another, Protestant families in the North, whose ancestors settled centuries ago, rightfully regard Ireland as their homeland, rather like modern white South Africans. Being in the minority, like South Africans, Rhodesians, Israelis and others, they feel threatened and naturally resort to bellicosity.

In Ireland, since the Reformation, it has always been the religious animosities, inflamed by priests of the opposing factions, that have been at the core of the problem. Absentee British landlords and rich Ulster industrialists have traditionally been conveniently visible whipping-boys, but in reality they are peripheral to the religious question.

To ignore this salient fact, as Uris does, is to ignore the real tragedy of that bedevilled and beautiful land.

If Trinity was a tautly-written novel of exceptional merit I might have been inclined to pull my punches, but to tamper with facts in order to hammer home a shaky point, and to take 751 pages to do it, is unpardonable literary license.

But that's not the worst of it. Uris visited Ireland ostensibly to accompany his photographer-wife on an assignment, and to write the text for her subsequent book of photographs. The idea of writing a novel himself appears to have been an afterthought, for the research was mostly done by someone else who was dependent on the resources of the public library in Denver, Colorado.

Considering the circumstances, this someone else (I won't mention her name to spare her blushes) did her very best, but the result, as you can imagine, is a major shambles. Dates and titles are muddled; a passport and a fountain-pen are mentioned before they were invented; and similar gaffes pop up at intervals in the rambling text.

To attempt a novel based on the most turbulent time in Ireland's long history demands endless preparation; to leave the research to someone working out of the Denver Public Library shows a contempt for the thinking public's intelligence, to say nothing of the Irish.

The research finished, the novel had to be written and this was certainly done by Leon Uris himself for it bears his hallmarks — wordiness, grotesque characterizations, often absurd and inaccurate dialogue, loose ends and an abrupt conclusion.

The story is supposed to be told in the first person by someone named Seamus but there are so many lengthy digressions — sometimes of several chapters — that the device merely confuses.

The protagonist is Conor Larkin, who risks losing our sympathy through being overdrawn. In a few years he bounds from being an uncouth, illiterate youth to a self-taught young man of profound learning and wisdom. There is nothing Conor cannot do splendidly, from becoming the finest wrought-iron craftsman in Europe, and an outstanding rugby player, to surviving inhuman torture with a sneer, making mincemeat of a British judge, and mastering the tactics and strategy of guerrilla warfare.

Naturally, he is a giant of a man, a born leader, and has the looks of a Greek god. And, predictably, he falls in love with a MacLeod girl who, again predictably, is tortured and killed in an alley by Catholic-hating Protestant women, led by a grotesque spinster who is secretly in love with the charlatan Protestant clergyman who is named — are you ready? — Oliver Cromwell MacIvor.

And, so it goes. One longs for just one engagingly feckless Catholic, but no. They're all noble and brave and the salt of the earth. If Trinity is ever filmed and I suppose it will be, the Catholics should all wear white hats.

The bad guys, the Protestants, are divided into two factions. The workers are Orangemen and therefore hateful, but they too are the victims of the British aristocrats and industrialists who manipulate the economy to retain their power.

Uris hasn't the slightest understanding of Ulster's old haute monde. And the dialogue! He has one 19th century aristocrat exchanging filthy late 20th century American expletives with his countess and using phrases like "You're putting me on." In the Edwardian period we come across words such as "dicy" and "oneupmanship" — and "master-sergeant".

Catholic Ireland, which has suffered so grieveously through the centuries, deserves the attention of someone vastly superior to Uris, some major novelist who can match in fiction the magnificent effort of Cecil Woodham Smith.

Meanwhile, as I said at the beginning, Uris, who is completely out of his element (and his depth) will undoubtedly find enough undemanding readers to make Trinity a best seller. Sad.

TRINITY, by Leon Uris. Doubleday. $12.75.

The Billion-Dollar Think Tank Boondoggle

By JULIAN REID

Everyone has heard the old canard, "An expert is a man who knows more and more about less and less." But today it is being supplanted by a fresher and apter definition: "An expert is a man who's learned nothing from life, and has a university degree to prove it."

Tens of thousands of such personifications of disembodied expertise staff the 3,000 or more "think-tanks" which have increasingly taken over the guidance of both business and government enterprises in the U.S. According to the Association of Consulting Management Engineers, theirs is a $2 billion-a-year industry, employing some 40 to 60 thousand professional consultants.

Nor are the specialists in so-called "scientific management" techniques alone in the field. All in all, according to the figures of the National Council of Professional Services Firms, the consulting industry does about $11 billion worth of business each year — though this sum also includes payments to architects, consulting engineers, etc. Somewhere midway between these two outside figures lies the true measure of America's financial commitment to think-tankery.

Of all the billions expended on consultant brainpower, about half are laid out by government. Details are hard to come by, since for the most part both the public agencies involved and the private consulting firms they hire deny the public even elementary access to information regarding their mutual activities. But now attorneys Daniel Guttman and Barry Willner, acting on behalf of Ralph Nader's Center for Study of Responsive Law, have conducted a systematic investigation into the workings of what gives their report its title: The Shadow Government.

Through no fault of theirs, this volume is almost as murky as its subject-matter. After all, though the activities of the consulting industry are not entirely divorced from social reality, their ties to it are no closer than those of their collective employer, the government bureaucracy — whose obtuse imperceptiveness and general inefficiency are by now virtually proverbial. It is humanly impossible to write lucidly about the doings of bureaucracies.

Collectively the consultants comprise, as Guttman and Willner put it, "an invisible bureaucracy of private corporations whose services are contracted for by the official bureaucracy." These services don't come cheap; the price of employing contract personnel is about seven times that of an equivalent number of full-time government employees. But though "expertise" is expensive, it isn't hard to come by. No special credentials are required to qualify as a consultant, apart from a university degree (a B.A. will do) in a field not necessarily related to that of one's alleged competence.

What is it, then, that these congeries of experts peddle? In the budgets of government departments, is it variously, but always vaguely, labelled: Operations Research; Management Consulting; Training and Technical Assistance; Research and Development; Systems Analysis; or sometimes, simply, Planning. In practice, what it mainly seems to mean is words.

One million-dollar report on housing for the poor endeavored to enlighten befuddled bureaucrats with some "useful definitions," e.g., "Doors — doors can be a component of an interior partition subsystem; Hinge — a hinge is an example of a part." Another, prepared for the Office of Child Development by the Stanford Research Institute, was largely plagiarized from outdated articles, all written by the official to whom it was submitted. A third, for which the Office of Education paid the University of Pittsburgh $146,000, "was of such low quality that it was never released."

Needless to say, the consultants' submissions are not always of this calibre. But these instances come closer to being the rule than the exception. And no wonder, considering that the rewards of consultancy have little relationship to the quality of the consultant's performance. For the most part, Guttman and Willner show, "there are no coherent merit criteria by which contractors are selected," and evaluations of past performances are "rarely relied upon in the contract process."

Instead, contracts are solicited and awarded in an incestuously inbred atmosphere. So commonplace are conflicts of interest that they are tactfully ignored. The consulting firms, Ralph Nader explains in his introduction, "form part of a career triangle with government and business." Thus public and private bureaucrats are all members of one big happy family, as assiduously engaged in scratching each other's backs as the chimpanzees in the nearby National Zoo.

Just one thing sets the consultantship bureaucrats apart from their corporate and governmental fellows. The former are accountable, however remotely, to the boardroom and the ups and downs of the market; the latter, in principle at least, are accountable to the American public. But the consultants have succeeded in almost entirely evading the principles of both private and public accountability.

In effect, as Guttman and Willner have documented, the faceless experts in their think-tanks have increasingly come to dominate decision-making in the governance of the U.S. Perhaps this was inevitable, given the public bureaucrats' well-known penchant for buck-passing — in this case escalated well into the billions. But the result has been, quite literally, a sell-out of the public interest. Aptly, Ralph Nader characterizes this wholesale "surrender of governmental powers to corporate enterprises" as "a quiet coup d'etat."

THE SHADOW GOVERNMENT, by Daniel Guttman and Barry Willner. Random House. $11.50.

Moura—Memoirs of A Russian Baroness

Every so often, from out of the pages of history, emerges a little-known individual whose life was filled with the kind of adventure, romance and intrigue from which great novels are written.

Such is the case of the late Moura Budberg, a Russian Baroness, who was a woman before her time — a woman of great intelligence, independent spirit and enormous attractiveness to men.

Moura: Citizen Baroness is the story of that woman and of history; of a lifetime filled with legend. It will be telecast Sunday, April 11, at 10 p.m. on CBC-TV. Interviewer-narrator is Lovat Dickson, author of Grey Owl and official biographer to the Baroness. He also co-authored the script with CBC director George Robertson.

Borne in the Ukraine in 1892, to a liberal-minded Russian senator, Moura was given the usual education, particularly in languages where she excelled. At age 18, she married a childhood sweetheart, Baron John von Benckendorff. He was a career diplomat and they were posted to Germany, just before the First World War. There, she was caught up in the court ceremonies and social events of the diplomatic life.

Romance

While in Germany, she was presented to the Kaiser who demanded to know who the "little Queen of Sheba" was. In the documentary, Moura describes him as having been "incredibly impolite . . . simply rude."

War broke out and her husband returned to duty in the Russian army. Moura returned to Moscow. The Revolution (1917) came and the British sent a handsome young Scotsman, Bruce Lockhart, to represent them in their contacts with the Bolsheviks.

Moura and Lockhart met and fell in love. (Their romance, chronicled in his biography, Memoirs of a British Secret Agent, was later made into a film of the same name, starring Leslie Howard and Kay Francis.) She confesses that the romance was "colored by danger" and the circumstances of the time "stirred . . . an attraction to this man which eventually turned to love."

In the meantime, her husband, Baron von Benckendorff, was being held prisoner on his estate, by his servants. Dressed as a peasant, Moura walked for ten days across Russia, to the estate to tell her husband of her love for Lockhart. She then walked to Moscow where she joined Lockhart. But their reunion was short; both were implicated in an assassination attempt on Lenin's life, and arrested.

In retaliation, the British arrested a Russian agent in London, accusing him of spying. Lockhart was exchanged for the Russian. Moura was released and the romance was over.

Now, Russia was vastly changed. The old estates were broken up, and many of the aristocratic families fled to cities in Western Europe to live as emigres, perpetually mourning the land and the life that was no more.

Moura would have none of this. Though the revolution had cost her hardship (and a spell in solitary confinement), she nonetheless thought that it had been necessary, that the task was now to build a new Russia. Like everyone else now, she had to work. Moura, fending for herself in Moscow, put her talent for languages to good use, and got a job as a translator in the publishing house of Russia's greatest living writer, Maxim Gorki.

Gorki was then at his peak and had been asked by Lenin to head the new publishing venture, House of Literature. Moura came to work for him, he was attracted at once, an attraction that later led to her becoming his mistress.

It was while working for Gorki, that Moura heard that her husband had been killed by his servants. Her children were left in the care of their governess, Ducky.

Gorki's health was failing and Lenin sent him to Finland to recuperate. Moura was allowed to visit Estonia, and reunite with her children. While she was away, Gorki had a mild flirtation with another woman. This angered Moura and she married in revenge. The new groom was Baron Budberg, a handsome aristocrat who had an unfortunate weakness for gambling. He soon became a burden and was sent off to South America.

Gorki and Moura reunited in Sorrento, Italy, where they lived an idyllic existence. (This period is considered one of Gorki's most prolific.) Moura was his mistress, hostess and secretary. Other accomplished writers from across the continent came to pay homage; one of whom was the English novelist, H.G. Wells. (He was later to play a greater part in Moura's life.)

Sentimental

But Gorki missed his homeland and made several pilgrimages to Moscow before returning there for good, in 1931, a national hero.

With a less optimistic view of the new Russia, Moura chose to stay behind. She feared that once back in Russia, she would never be allowed out, to visit her children again. So she moved to England and to her friend, H.G. Wells.

It was there, that this documentary's interviewer-narrator, Lovat Dickson, a young man enamoured with the talents of Wells, first met Moura. He confesses to "feeling her powerful attraction," even then.

The physical and political climate of Russia was again undergoing change at the hands of Stalin, and Gorki's health began to fail. Fourteen years after they had last been together, Moura was allowed to go to Russia to visit her dying love. She stayed with him until his death, July 18, 1936.

She then returned to London and H.G. Wells, for what she calls "sentimental reasons." Wells wanted to marry Moura. He even went so far as to arrange an intimate party luncheon to announce their engagement. But on the way there, Moura threatened to jump from the taxi if he did, so the engagement was never announced and they never married. Her close relationship with Wells lasted until his deth, in 1946. Though she never lived with him, she was undoubtedly his closest friend and ally, especially in the last decade of his life.

Vulnerable

After Wells' death, Moura busied herself doing translations, acting as a consultant on films by producer Alexander Korda, and enjoying the friendship of a wide circle of writers, actors, publishers, directors and producers. She was a consultant on the BBC television adaptation of War and Peace, and to the movie, Nicholas and Alexandra.

In the fall of 1974, after several decades of living in London, Moura decided to move to Italy, to be with her son, Paul. London had become too expensive. She was now 82 years of age.

"It was at London airport that I saw the Baroness for the last time," says Lovat Dickson. "For the first time, she seemed so small and vulnerable."

Moura, Baroness Budberg, died of cancer in October of 1974, leaving behind two children and their families, scores of friends and admirers, and a legend.

CBC-TV Buys Best-Seller

Peter Herrndorf, Head of Current Affairs for CBC Television, announced that the CBC has acquired from McClelland and Stewart publishers the exclusive television rights to Peter C. Newman's current best-selling book, The Canadian Establishment.

Mr. Newman will spend the next few months developing outlines for a possible multi-part CBC-TV series.

"The Canadian business community has been largely ignored on Canadian television," said Mr. Herrndorf, "and we are delighted about the possibility of adapting Peter Newman's book into a major television series."

CB — Citizens Band And What It Is!

CB is a low-cost, short-range, two-way radio system which any Canadian citizen 16 years or older is eligible to use. All you need is a licence and they're not very hard to get. You can obtain a simple "licence application form" from any Radio Shack store, fill it in and mail to the Department of Communications (DOC) along with a $13.50 check or money order. It takes about six weeks to get your licence and there's no test to take!

The CB radio is called a transceiver because it consists of a receiver and a transmitter combined in one package. In addition to the transceiver, you'll need an antenna and cable for connecting the antenna to the transceiver. The antenna is very important because it directly affects the quality of CB reception or transmission.

CB's are not all the same. There are many different kinds to fit many different types of applications. But don't let this bother you. Radio Shack has a large selection of transceivers, antennas and CB accessories to choose from plus "knowing" personnel who can help you find the right unit to fit your needs. We've been selling Realistic CB for 16 years!

CB is easy to operate. A transceiver consists of three basic controls — a volume on/off switch like your car radio, a channel selector similar to your TV set, and a "squelch" which you can adjust to keep the speaker quiet when no callers are on the air. Some sets have a few additional controls, lights and meters. But, our salespeople can show you how easy it is to use them.

Most CB's operate on 23 channels which are shared much like a telephone party-line. No one has an assigned channel, though a couple of channels have been authorized for specific use. For instance, Channel 9 is reserved for emergency use only and Channel 11 is used to make contact with another CB'er where they decide what other channel to use to carry on their conversation.

Some CB sets have a capacity of only 3 to 6 channels, and come with a pair of crystals for one channel, but you can expand their channel range by purchasing additional crystals from any Radio Shack store. Each crystal will give you a specific channel, so you must decide which channels you want before you buy and install additional crystals.

CB applications are virtually unlimited! But here are a few specific uses where they've proven to be handy — Truckers and highway travelers use channels 10 and 19 to pass on road conditions to one another and to give road directions. Boaters and fishermen use it to report on waterway, fishing or weather conditions. Small businesses use it to dispatch trucks and for warehouse inventory control. And, of course, many use it simply for the pleasure of listening in on the many interesting and sometimes unusual conversations between other CB'ers.

There are many, many more uses for CB than are listed here. So, just stop into one of the Radio Shack stores near you and let us put you "on the air" with a Realistic CB that'll satisfy all your CB needs.

Micronta Electronic Ignition System

- 40,000 VOLTS TO THE SPARK PLUGS!
- ASSEMBLED AND READY TO USE!

49.95 Reg. 59.95

Capacitive Discharge system in a fully assembled unit — not a kit. Easy to install with complete instructions supplied. For all 4-6-8 cylinder negative ground automotive engines.

THE HIGH PERFORMANCE WAY TO SAVE ON GAS AND MAINTENANCE!

PERFORMANCE

- Higher voltage, longer spark duration, with less current means BETTER COLD STARTS.
- Medium duration, clean, high voltage pulse means SMOOTHER IDLE, SMOOTHER ACCELERATION.
- Higher voltage maintained at higher engine speeds means BETTER HIGH SPEED PERFORMANCE.

ECONOMY

- Spark plugs and points last 4 to 5 times longer
- Higher voltage at highway speeds means no high miss — USE LESS GAS!
- Fires fouled or eroded plugs at any speed
- Stays "in tune" longer — USE LESS GAS!
